[fol. 10] In United States District Court

Bill of Complaint—Filed Oct. 5, 1931

To the Honorable the Judges of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania, sitting in Equity:

The complainants, Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters and Frank B. Cahn, as the Reorganization Committee constituted under the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation, bring this their Bill of Complaint against National Radiator Corporation on their own behalf and on behalf of all other creditors of the defendant who may join in the prosecution of this suit, and allege upon information and belief as follows:

First. The complainants, Rudolph B. Flershem and Charles O. Cornell, are residents and citizens of the State of New York; the complainant, John H. Waters, is a resident and citizen of the State of Pennsylvania; and the complainant, Frank B. Cahn, is a resident and citizen of the State of Maryland.

Second. The defendant, National Radiator Corporation, is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, and a citizen and resident of said State. The principal office of the defendant is in the City of Johnstown, in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in the Western District of Pennsylvania, and a substantial part of the properties owned by the defendant is located in said Western District of Pennsylvania, including two manufacturing plants in said City of Johnstown, [fol. 11] a manufacturing plant in the City of New Castle and other properties and assets.

Third. The ground upon which the jurisdiction of this Court depends in this suit is the diversity of citizenship of the plaintiffs and of the defendant, and the matter in controversy in this suit is in excess of the sum of $5,000, exclusive of interest, costs and expenses. This suit is brought for the purpose of enforcing the claim of the complainants against the defendant; for the determination of the claims of the creditors of the defendant; and for the sale of the assets of the defendant and the distribution of the net proceeds of said assets among the creditors of the defendant in accordance with their respective rights and for the other relief hereinafter prayed.

Fourth. Shortly before August 30, 1927, the defendant duly authorized an issue of its 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures (hereinafter called the "Debentures") in the aggregate principal amount of $16,000,000. The Debentures are coupon debentures in denominations of $1,000 and $500, dated August 1, 1927, payable August 1, 1947, and bear interest from August 1, 1927, at the rate of 6½% per annum, payable semi-annually on the 1st days of February and August in each year, upon the presentation and surrender of the interest coupons thereto attached, and are in the form or substantially the form set forth in the Indenture hereinafter mentioned. For the purpose of setting forth the terms and provisions governing the issue of the Debentures and appurtenant coupons and the rights and remedies of the holders thereof, on or about August 30, 1927, the [fol. 12] defendant duly made and executed under its corporate seal and delivered to Bankers Trust Company, a corporation of the State of New York, as Trustee, its Indenture dated August 1, 1927 (hereinafter called the "Indenture"). At the time of the execution and delivery of the Indenture, Bankers Trust Company was duly authorized and empowered to act as Trustee thereunder and duly accepted the trusts under the Indenture and united in the Execution of the Indenture. A copy of the Indenture is hereto annexed and marked "Schedule A" and made a part of this Bill of Complaint, and complainants pray leave to refer to the same with the same force and effect as if herein set forth at length.

The Indenture was and is the proper act and deed of the defendant, was by it duly authorized, made and delivered in all respects in conformity with law and remains in full force and effect.

Fifth. After the execution and delivery of the Indenture, and on or about August 30, 1927, the defendant duly executed $12,000,000 aggregate principal amount of Debentures with all appurtenant coupons in substantially the form provided by the Indenture and said Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, authenticated the same and delivered them to or upon the order of the defendant, all in accordance with the provisions of the Indenture.

Sixth. Thereafter the defendant duly negotiated and sold for value and issued to numerous bona fide purchasers thereof said $12,000,000 aggregate principal amount of Debentures with all coupons for interest thereunto appertaining. Of the Debentures so issued, $1,169,000 principal amount have been delivered by the defendant from time to [fol. 13] time since the execution of the Indenture and prior to the verification of this Bill of Complaint to said Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, for cancellation in lieu of the semi-annual Sinking Fund payments provided for in the Indenture, and the Debentures so delivered have been cancelled by said Bankers Trust Company, all as provided in the Indenture.

Seventh. Of the Debentures issued as aforesaid, $126,000 principal amount have been purchased and acquired by the defendant and are now held in its treasury. At the date hereof $10,705,000 principal amount of said Debentures are outstanding in the hands of divers persons who are the owners and holders thereof for value and said Debentures are now in all respects valid and outstanding obligations of the defendant.

Eighth. On February 1, 1931, the defendant made default in payment of the interest then falling due on all of said Debentures issued and outstanding as aforesaid, although the coupons or some thereof appurtenant to said Debentures were duly presented for payment and payment duly demanded.

Ninth. On or about February 11, 1931, the complainants, Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters, under a Plan and Agreement of Reorganization dated February 11, 1931 (hereinafter called the "Plan and Agreement"), constituted themselves a Reorganization Committee for the purpose of effecting the reorganization of the defendant. A copy of the Plan and Agreement is [fol. 14] hereto annexed and marked "Schedule B" and made a part of this Bill of Complaint, and complainants pray leave to refer to the same with the same force and effect as if herein set forth at length. On or about September 17, 1931, the complainant, Frank B. Cahn, was duly elected a member of the Reorganization Committee as provided in Article 16 of the Reorganization Agreement with the effect in said Article 16 provided. The Plan and Agreement provides, among other things, that holders of said Debentures of the defendant may become parties to said Plan by depositing their Debentures with the February 1, 1931 and all subsequent coupons with Bankers Trust Company, as Depositary, and that such deposit of Debentures shall transfer to and vest in the Reorganization Committee the legal title to such deposited Debentures and the coupons appertaining thereto. More than $8,736,000 principal amount of Debentures have been deposited with Bankers Trust Company, as Depositary under the Plan and Agreement, together with coupons for interest on said Debentures due on February 1, 1931, and all subsequent interest dates, and the complainants are now the holders and owners of said Debentures and said coupons.

Tenth. On August 1, 1931, the defendant made default in payment of the interest then falling due on all the Debentures issued and outstanding as aforesaid, although the coupons or some thereof appurtenant to said Debentures were duly presented for payment and payment duly demanded.

Eleventh. Shortly before the verification of this Bill of Complaint, the complainants, as the holders and owners of coupons representing interest on the Debentures due Febru- [fol. 15] ary 1, 1931, in the aggregate amount of not less than $283,920, and as the holders and owners of coupons representing interest on the Debentures due August 1, 1931, in the aggregate amount of not less than $283,920, duly presented all of said coupons for payment at the place specified for the payment thereof and duly demanded of the defendant payment thereof in full and the defendant made default in the payment of all of said coupons and the interest thereby represented and omitted and refused to pay the same or any part thereof, and the defendant is therefore at the date hereof indebted to the complainants on account of said coupons and the interest thereby represented in an amount not less than $567,840, together with interest thereon, and no part of said sum has been paid and no bond or other security has been given for the payment thereof.

Twelfth. The defendant is engaged principally in the business of manufacturing and selling heating appliances, round and sectional boilers and hot water and steam radiators. The defendant owns manufacturing plants in the Cities of Johnstown and New Castle, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in the Western District of Pennsylvania; in the City of Trenton, State of New Jersey, in the District of New Jersey; in the City of Framingham, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in the District of Massachusetts; in the Cities of Dunkirk and North Tonawanda, State of New York, in the Western District of New York; and in the City of Chicago, State of Illinois, in the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division. In all of the aforesaid places the defendant owns sub- [fol. 16] stantial amounts of property, including real estate, plants, mills and warehouses, and also stocks of raw materials, goods in process and finished goods. The defendant also owns warehouses in the City of Baltimore, State of Maryland, in the District of Maryland; in the City of Cincinnati, State of Ohio, in the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division; in Washington, D. C.; and in the City of Richmond, State of Virginia, in the Eastern District of Virginia; wherein are stored finished goods and other property of the defendant.

Thirteenth. The defendant has no means at hand with which to meet, pay or satisfy the interest charges on the Debentures overdue as aforesaid, without seriously jeopardizing the ability of the defendant to continue its business and without making it difficult or impossible for the defendant to secure necessary supplies, materials and labor to continue the operation of its plants and the sale of its products. The defendant does business and has sales offices generally throughout the United States; the sale of its products is dependent upon a feeling of confidence among its customers that its business will be continued so that repair parts will be available and servicing of its products will not cease. A large part of the property of the defendant consists of land, buildings, fixtures, plants, machinery, patterns and other equipment, trademarks and patents which are not immediately available for the payment of the indebtedness of the defendant and cannot be levied upon or converted into cash or sold except as an entirety, without great sacrifice. Certain of the properties of the defendant cannot be levied upon and sold in an action at law and said [fol. 17] properties can be sold as an entirety and as a going concern only through the intervention of a court of equity.

Fourteenth. Certain holders of the Debentures not deposited with the complainants have threatened to bring suits in respect of interest due on their coupons and may levy execution upon the property of the defendant. An attempt by the complainants to enforce their claim as a general creditor would precipitate immediate action on the part of other creditors of the defendant in different courts, and, unless this Court will take jurisdiction in this cause for the protection of every interest in the property and assets of the defendant, the result will be a multiplicity of suits, a race of diligence wasteful strife and controversy; attempts will be made to obtain judgments and priorities; levies will be made upon the working capital, materials and supplies indispensable to the operation of the business of the defendant and this will result in the dismantling and dismemberment of its properties and will greatly interfere with and ultimately prevent the defendant from continuing to operate its properties, and will result in dissipating the administrative, technical and sales forces of the defendant, which cannot be reassembled without great cost, and in destroying the confidence of the customers of the defendant and the cancellation of many orders now on its books. The unity of the property of the defendant and its integrity as a whole, as now held and operated, the administrative, technical and sales organization and the good-will of its customers constitute most important elements of value, and to permit their severance and dissipation will result in ruin[fol. 18] ous sacrifice of every interest in said property, to the great loss and damage to the complainants and other creditors of the defendant. It is to the best interests of the defendant and the complainants and other creditors of the defendant that the going concern value of the defendant's business and properties should be maintained, continued and kept intact for the benefit of all creditors, until all of the assets and business of the defendant can be sold as an entirety, and the complainants believe that this can be accomplished and the property preserved for equitable distribution among those entitled thereto, only by the intervention of a court of equity and the granting of equitable relief for the preservation of all of the property of the defendant as a going concern, and enjoining all creditors from interfering with or attempting to obtain any priorities and thus permitting a sale of all of the assets of the defendant for the benefit of all creditors.

Fifteenth. Complainants have no adequate remedy at law and no other previous application has been made for the relief herein sought.

In consideration whereof, and inasmuch as the complainants have no adequate remedy at law and can have relief only in equity, the complainants file this their Bill of Complaint, on behalf of the complainants and all other creditors of the defendant who may hereafter join in the prosecution of this suit, and pray for equitable relief as follows:

1. That the rights of the complainants and of other creditors of the defendant may be ascertained, decreed and determined; that this Court will fully administer the fund [fol. 19] in which the complainants are interested, constituting all the property and assets of the defendant, in accordance with the rights, equities, liens and priorities, if any, existing thereon, and will enforce and decree the rights, equities, liens and priorities of the creditors of the defendant as the same finally may be ascertained and decreed by this Court.

2. That this Court, for the purpose of granting the relief prayed for and to protect the rights and interests of the complainants and of other creditors of the defendant, take over unto itself the jurisdiction and control of all the assets and property of the defendant of every kind and description whatsoever, and that pending this suit it grant such specific relief as from time to time may be expedient and appropriate to maintain such jurisdiction and control.

3. That, upon application by the complainants for the purpose of preserving the unity and integrity of the property and assets of the defendant and of preventing disruption thereof by separate executions, attachments and levies during the pendency of this suit, a receiver or receivers be appointed by this Court of the defendant and all of its property and assets, real, personal and mixed and of whatsoever kind and description and wheresoever situated, and all the tolls, earnings, rents, issues, profits, revenues and income thereof, with the usual powers of receivers in such cases, and with full power and authority to take possession of the plants, properties, real and personal, premises, easements, franchises, rights, privileges and interests of the [fol. 20] defendant of whatsoever kind and character, and to manage and operate the same and to continue the business of the defendant and to collect and receive the tolls, earnings, issues, rents, profits, revenues and income thereof and every part thereof and to apply the same as this Court from time to time may order or decree; and that such further powers and authority as to this Court may seem meet and proper may be granted by it to any receiver or receivers so appointed.

4. That the properties and assets and business of the defendant may be ordered to be sold as an entirety, with such exceptions and in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as this Court shall deem just and equitable, and that any such order shall make proper and suitable provisions for the protection of all equities, rights, priorities, claims and liens of the creditors of the defendant and shall provide for the sale of the property, assets and business of the defendant, subject to or free and clear from any and all liens or encumbrances, and that the proceeds of any such sale may be distributed by and under the direction of this Court among the creditors of the defendant and such others, if any, as this Court may adjudicate.

5. That pending this suit an injunction may issue out of and under the seal of this Court enjoining and restraining all creditors of the defendant from levying executions upon, attaching or intermeddling with or taking possession of any of the property and assets of the defendant.

[fol. 21] 6. That the complainants may have such other, further and different relief in the premises as to this Court may seem proper and as may be necessary fully to protect and to enforce the rights and equities of the complainants and of all creditors of the defendant.

7. That a writ of subpœna may be granted to the complainants to be directed to the defendant, thereby requiring said defendant to be and appear on a certain day before this Court and then and there full, true, direct and perfect answer make to all and singular the premises, but not under oath, answer under oath being hereby expressly waived and further to perform and abide by such further order, direction or decree as to this Court shall seem meet.

Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters and Frank B. Cahn, the Reorganization Committee Constituted under the Plan and Agreement Dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation, by Maynard Teall, Their Solicitor. Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb, New York; Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, Pittsburgh, Penna., of Counsel.

Seligman & Co. in the Borough of Manhattan, The City and State of New York, or, at the option of the bearer or registered owner hereof, at the principal office of Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank in Chicago, Illinois, the principal sum of — Dollars in gold coin of the United States of America of or equal to the standard of weight and fineness existing August 1, 1927, and to pay interest thereon from the first day of August, 1927, at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum, in like gold coin, at any of said offices, semi-annually on the first days of February and August in each year until the payment of the principal sum hereof, but, up to the date of maturity hereof, only upon [fol. 26] presentation and surrender of the interest coupons therefor hereto attached as they severally mature.

The interest on this debenture shall be paid without deduction for any Federal income tax (except such part thereof as may be in excess of two per cent (2%) per annum of such interest) which the Company or the Trustee under the Indenture hereinafter mentioned or any paying agent may be required or permitted to pay thereon or retain therefrom under any present or future law of the United States of America; which tax the Company agrees to pay, except as above mentioned. It is provided in said Indenture that the Company will reimburse the bearer, or, if this debenture be registered, the registered owner hereof, for any Pennsylvania or Connecticut personal property tax not exceeding four (4) mills per annum, or for any District of Columbia personal property tax not exceeding five (5) mills per annum, or for any Maryland securities tax not exceeding four and one-half (4½) mills per annum, which may be legally assessed against and paid by such bearer or registered owner on each dollar of the principal amount of taxable value of this debenture, by reason of his ownership hereof, or for any income tax not in excess of six per centum (6%) per annum legally imposed by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts on account of the interest received hereon and paid by such bearer or registered owner, if application for any such reimbursement be made in writing to the Company as provided in the Indenture within sixty (60) days after payment of any such tax and in any event within six (6) months after such tax shall have become due and payable.

[fol. 27] This debenture is one of a duly authorized issue of debentures of the Company, all of like date and tenor, except as to denominations, known as its "Six and One-half Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Debentures", limited to an aggregate principal amount of $16,000,000, issued and to be issued under and pursuant to an Indenture (herein called the Indenture), dated August 1, 1927, executed and delivered by the Company to Bankers Trust Company (herein called the Trustee), as Trustee, to which Indenture reference is hereby made for a statement of the rights of the holders or registered owners of such debentures and coupons and of the Company and of the Trustee, and of the terms and conditions upon which the debentures are and are to be issued, received and held.

The debentures are subject to redemption, in whole, or in part by lot, at the option of the Company or from the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, on any interest payment date. Any redemption of debentures shall be upon at least forty (40) days' prior notice given by publication in a daily newspaper printed in the English language and published and of general circulation in the Borough of Manhattan, The City and State of New York, in the manner provided in the Indenture. The redemption price of any debentures redeemed as above provided shall be the principal amount of the debentures to be redeemed and accrued interest thereon to date of redemption, together with a premium calculated on the principal amount of the debentures to be redeemed as follows: seven and one-half per centum (7½%) if the date of redemption is on or before August 1, 1932, six per centum (6%) if the date of redemp- [fol. 28] tion is after August 1, 1932, and on or before August 1, 1937, four and one-half per centum (4½%) if the date of redemption is after August 1, 1937, and on or before August 1, 1942, and three per centum (3%) if the date of redemption is after August 1, 1942, and prior to the maturity date expressed in this debenture. From and after the date of redemption, interest on any debentures called for redemption shall cease, unless default shall be made in the redemption of such debentures on presentation. The debentures of this issue are entitled to the benefit of the sinking fund provided for in the Indenture, which sinking fund may be paid by the Company in cash or in debentures or both as provided in the Indenture.

In case an event of default, as defined in the Indenture, shall occur, the principal of all of the debentures issued thereunder and outstanding may become or be declared due and payable in the manner and with the effect provided in the Indenture.

As provided in the Indenture, debentures of the denomination of $1,000 or $500, at any time outstanding, when surrendered, and upon the payment of charges, may be exchanged for an equal aggregate principal amount of debentures of the other denomination, of numbers not contemporaneously outstanding.

This debenture is transferable by delivery unless registered as to principal in the name of the owner at the office or agency of the Company in the Borough of Manhattan, The City and State of New York, such registration to be noted hereon. After such registration, no transfer [fol. 29] hereof shall be valid unless made at said office or agency by the registered owner in person or by duly authorized attorney, and similarly noted hereon; but this debenture may be discharged from registration by being, in like manner, transferred to bearer; and thereupon transferability by delivery shall be restored, after which this debenture may again from time to time be registered or made transferable by delivery as before. Such registration, however, shall not affect the negotiability of the coupons hereto attached, which shall always continue to be payable to bearer and to be transferable by delivery merely.

No recourse shall be had for the payment of the principal of or the interest on this debenture, or for any claim based hereon or otherwise in respect hereof or arising from the Indenture, against any incorporator, or against any past, present or future stockholder, director or officer of the Company, as such, or of any successor corporation, whether by virtue of any constitution, statute or rule of law, or by the enforcement of any assessment or penalty; all such liability being by the acceptance hereof, and as part of the consideration of the issue hereof, expressly waived and released by every holder or registered owner hereof.

Neither this debenture nor any coupon hereto attached shall be valid or become obligatory for any purpose unless and until the certificate endorsed hereon shall have been executed by the Trustee under the Indenture.

Article I

Description, Execution, Exchange and Registration of Debentures

Section 1. The debentures to be issued under this Indenture and the coupons thereto belonging shall be substantially in the respective forms hereinbefore set forth, and shall be known as the "Six and One-half Per Cent Sinking Fund Gold Debentures" of the Company. The debentures shall be dated the first day of August, 1927, shall be payable on the first day of August, 1947, unless called for previous redemption; and shall bear interest from the first [fol. 33] day of August, 1927, at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum payable semi-annually on the first day of February and on the first day of August in each year until the payment of the principal amount thereof.

The aggregate principal amount of debentures which may be issued under this Indenture shall not exceed $16,000,000, except as provided in Section 7 of this Article with respect to lost, stolen or destroyed debentures.

* * * * * * *

Section 6. The debentures shall be negotiable and shall pass by delivery, unless registered as to principal in the manner hereinafter provided. The Company at an office or agency to be maintained by it in the Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York, will keep or cause to be kept books for the registration (as to principal only) and for the transfer of debentures, as provided in this Indenture.

The principal office of the Trustee in the Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York, is hereby fixed as the office or agency of the Company, for the time being, in said Borough of Manhattan, for the registration and transfer of debentures as herein provided.

The holder of any debenture, whether temporary or definitive, may have the ownership thereof registered as to principal, at such office or agency and such registration shall be noted on the debenture. After such registration, no transfer thereof shall be valid unless made at such office [fol. 34] or agency by the registered owner in person, or by duly authorized attorney, and similarly noted on the debenture; but such debenture may be discharged from registration by being in like manner transferred to bearer, and thereupon transferability by delivery shall be restored; after which such debenture may again from time to time be registered or made transferable by delivery as before. Such registration, however, shall not affect the negotiability of the coupons, which shall continue to be payable to bearer and to be transferable by delivery merely, and payment therof to bearer shall fully discharge the Company in respect of the interest therein mentioned, whether the debenture be registered or not.

For any such registration or transfer of a debenture, the Company at its option may require the payment of a sum sufficient to reimburse it for a stamp tax or other governmental charge incidental thereto.

With respect to all debentures registered as to principal, the persons in whose names such debentures shall be registered shall for all purposes of this Indenture be deemed and regarded as the absolute owners thereof, and payment of or on account of the principal of any such debentures shall be made only to or upon the order of such registered owners thereof, but such registration may be changed as herein provided. All such payments shall be valid and effectual to satisfy and discharge the liability of the Company upon such debentures to the extent of the sum or sums so paid. The Company and the Trustee and any Paying Agent of the Company may deem and treat the bearer of any debenture issued hereunder which shall not at the [fol. 35] time be registered as to principal, and the bearer of any coupon for interest on any debenture, whether such debenture be registered as to principal or not, and whether such debenture or coupon be overdue or not, as the absolute owner of such debenture or coupon, as the case may be, for the purpose of receiving payment thereof and for all other purposes whatsoever, and neither the Company nor the Trustee nor any such Paying Agent shall be affected by any notice to the contrary.

Remedies of Trustee and Holders of Debentures

Section 1. No coupon or claim for interest belonging to any of the debentures which in any way shall have been transferred or pledged separate and apart from the debenture to which it relates shall, unless accompanied by such debentures, be entitled in case of a default under this Indenture to any benefit of or from this Indenture except after the prior payment in full of the principal of the debentures and of all coupons or claims for interest not so transferred or pledged.

[fol. 36] Section 2. In case one or more of the following events, herein termed events of default, shall happen, that is to say, in case

(a) default shall be made in the payment of any instalment of interest on any of the debentures when the same shall become payable, as therein or herein expressed; or

(b) default shall be made in the payment of the principal of any of the debentures when the same shall become due and payable, either at maturity or by declaration or otherwise; or

(c) default shall be made in the payment of any instalment of the sinking fund herein provided for when the same shall become payable; or

(d) the Company shall create, issue, sell, or assume any secured debt or obligation or lien contrary to the covenants of the Company herein; or

(e) default shall be made in the observance of any other of the covenants or agreements on the part of the Company in the debentures or in this Indenture expressed, and the Company shall not remedy such default within sixty (60) days after written notice of such default, requiring the Company to comply with the covenant or agreement in respect of which it is so in default, shall have been served upon the Company by the Trustee, which may at its discretion, and at the request of the holders of not less than one-tenth in principal amount of the debentures then outstanding shall, serve such notice; or

[fol. 37] (f) the Company shall be adjudged bankrupt or become insolvent, or a receiver shall be appointed of all or a substantial part of the property of the Company and not be dismissed within thirty (30) days after appointment; or

(g) the Company shall file a petition for voluntary bankruptcy or make a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, or shall admit in writing its inability to pay its debts as they become due; or

(h) final judgment for the payment of money shall be rendered against the Company and the Company shall not discharge the same or cause it to be discharged or a stay of execution to be procured thereon within sixty (60) days from the entry thereof, or shall not within said period of sixty (60) days, or such longer period during which execution on such judgment shall have been stayed, appeal therefrom or from the order, decree or process upon which or pursuant to which said judgment was granted, passed or entered;

then, the Trustee may in its discretion, and, upon request in writing by the holders of at least one-fourth in principal amount of the debentures then outstanding, shall, declare the principal of and interest on all the debentures, if not already due, to be forthwith due and payable, and upon such declaration the same shall become due and payable immediately. This provision, however, is subject to the conditions that if, at any time after the principal of the debentures shall have been so declared due and payable and before the recovery by the Trustee of final [fol. 38] judgment or decree under this Indenture, all arrears of interest upon all of the debentures, with interest on overdue instalments of interest at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum, and all arrears of sinking fund payments with interest on overdue payments at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum, together with the reasonable charges and expenses of the Trustee, its agents and attorneys, shall be paid by the Company, and all other defaults under the debentures or any of them, or under this Indenture, shall be made good to the satisfaction of the Trustee, then and in such case the holders of a majority in principal amount of the debentures then outstanding, by written notice to the Company and to the Trustee, may rescind and annul such declaration and its consequences; but no such rescission or annulment shall extend to or affect any subsequent default or impair any right consequent thereon.

Section 3. In case

(a) default shall be made in the payment of any instalment of interest on any of the debentures when the same shall become payable, as therein or herein expressed; or

then, upon demand of the Trustee, the Company will pay to the Trustee, for the benefit of the holders and registered [fol. 39] owners of the debentures and coupons then outstanding, the whole amount that then shall have become due and payable on all such debentures and coupons then outstanding, for interest or principal, or both, or will pay to the Trustee all payments then due in respect of the sinking fund, as the case may be, with interest in each instance at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum, upon the overdue principal, instalments of interest or sinking fund payments; and, in addition thereto, such further amount as shall be sufficient to cover the costs and expenses of collection, including reasonable compensation to the Trustee, its agents, attorneys and counsel, and any expenses or liabilities incurred by the Trustee hereunder; and, in case the Company shall fail to pay the same forthwith upon such demand, the Trustee, in its own name and as trustee of an express trust, shall be entitled to recover judgment for the whole amount so due and unpaid and to enforce such judgment in accordance with law.

Any moneys thus collected by the Trustee shall be applied by the Trustee as follows:

(a) to the payment of all costs and expenses of such action, including reasonable compensation to the Trustee, its agents, attorneys and counsel and to the payment of all expenses, liabilities and advances made or incurred by the Trustee hereunder;

(b) in case the principal of the debentures shall not have become due, to the payment of the interest in default in the order of the maturity of the overdue instalments of [fol. 40] such interest, with interest on the overdue instalments of interest at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum; such payments to be made ratably to the persons entitled thereto, without discrimination or preference, subject, however, to the provisions of Section 2 of Article IV hereof and of Section 1 of this Article; or in case of default in the payment of any instalment of the sinking fund, to the payment of the sinking fund instalment so in default;

(c) in case the principal of the debentures shall have become due, to the payment of the whole amount then owing and unpaid upon the debentures for principal and interest, with interest at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum on the overdue principal and overdue instalments of interest; and in case such proceeds shall be insufficient to pay in full the whole amount so due and unpaid upon the debentures, then to the payment of such principal and interest, without preference or priority of principal over interest or of interest over principal or of any instalment of interest over any other instalment of interest, ratably to the aggregate of such principal and the accrued and unpaid interest; subject, however, to the provisions of Section 2 of Article IV hereof and of Section 1 of this Atricle.

The Company, for itself, its successors and assigns, covenants and agrees with the Trustee, that if by reason of the happening and continuance of any event of default aforesaid the Trustee at any time commence or institute [fol. 41] any suit or action or other legal proceeding to recover any judgment as in this Section 3 provided, it will, and its successors and assigns shall, waiving the issue and service of process, thereupon enter a voluntary appearance in such suit or action or proceeding, and consent to the entry of judgment therein for any and all amounts then remaining due and unpaid on all such debentures and coupons then outstanding, for interest or principal or both, or in respect of said sinking fund, as the case may be, and for all costs and attorneys' fees in such suit or action or proceeding, and for all other sums payable hereunder.

In the event of any bankruptcy or receivership of the Company or its properties, the Trustee is hereby irrevocably appointed the true and lawful agent and attorney of the holders and registered owners of the debentures and coupons, with full power and authority to file with any court or officer thereof proof of debt on behalf of such holders and registered owners in respect of their debentures and coupons and/or as creditors of the Company with respect thereto, and to demand, collect, receive, sue or take such other proceedings for the collection and recovery of any sums paid or payable thereon, as the Trustee may be advised; but the Trustee shall be under no obligation with respect thereto.

Section 4. In case, upon the happening and continuance of any event of default specified in Section 2 of this Article, the Trustee shall proceed by a suit in equity or action at law, as above provided, the Trustee shall be entitled, pend-[fol. 42] ing any such suit or action, as a matter of right, to the appointment of a receiver of the Company and of all of its properties, and of the earnings, revenues, rents, issues, profits and incomes thereof.

Section 5. Upon written request of the holders or registered owners of at least one-fourth in principal amount of the debentures at the time outstanding, and upon being indemnified to its satisfaction, if the Trustee shall so require, as hereinafter provided, it shall be the duty of the Trustee to take all steps needful for the protection and enforcement of its rights and the rights of the holders or registered owners of the debentures whether by judicial proceedings or otherwise as the Trustee, being advised by counsel, shall deem most expedient in the interest of the holders or registered owners of the debentures.

Section 6. No holder of any debenture or coupon shall have any right to institute any suit, action or proceeding in equity or at law for the enforcement of any covenant or remedy contained in or given by this Indenture, unless the holders or registered owners of at least ten per cent (10%) in principal amount of the debentures then outstanding shall have given to the Trustee written notice of some event of default and of the continuance thereof for the period, if any, in Section 2 of this Article provided; nor unless the holders or registered owners of at least twenty-five per cent (25%) in principal amount of the debentures then outstanding shall have requested the Trustee in writing to take action in respect of the matter complained of, and shall have afforded to it a reasonable opportunity to institute [fol. 43] such action, suit or proceeding in its own name; nor unless also such holders or registered owners of debentures shall have offered to the Trustee security and indemnity satisfactory to the Trustee against the costs, expenses and liabilities to be incurred therein or thereby; nor unless the Trustee for thirty (30) days after receipt of such notification, request and offer of indemnity shall have refused or neglected to act on such notification, request and offer of indemnity; and such notification, request and offer of indemnity are hereby declared, in every such case, at the option of the Trustee, to be conditions precedent to the exercise of the powers and trusts of this Indenture and to the availability and the commencement and prosecution of any action or suit or proceeding hereunder, whether for the appointment of a receiver or for any other remedy; and it is expressly declared and intended that no one or more holders or registered owners of debentures or coupons shall have any right to enforce any right hereunder, except in the manner herein provided, and that all proceedings hereunder, at law or in equity, shall be instituted, had and maintained in the manner herein provided and for the equal and pro rata benefit of all holders or registered owners of such outstanding debentures and coupons.

Nothing in this Section or contained elsewhere in this Indenture or in the debentures or in the coupons attached thereto shall affect or impair the obligation of the Company, which is unconditional and absolute, to pay the principal and interest of the debentures to the respective holders or registered owners of the debentures and to the respective holders of the coupons attached thereto, at the [fol. 44] respective due dates in such debentures and coupons stated, nor affect or impair the right of action at law, which is also absolute and unconditional, of such holders to enforce such payment by virtue of the contract contained in the debenture and not by virtue or availing of any provision of this Indenture.

Section 7. Except as herein expressly provided to the contrary, no remedy herein conferred upon or reserved to the Trustee, or to the holders or registered owners of debentures, is intended to be exclusive of any other remedy, but each and every such remedy shall be cumulative and in addition to every other remedy given hereunder or now or hereafter available at law or in equity or by statute.

Section 8. No delay or omission of the Trustee or of any holder or registered owner of debentures to exercise any right or power accruing upon any event of default shall impair any such right or power or shall be construed to be a waiver of any such default or acquiescence therein; and every power and remedy given by this Indenture to the Trustee or to the holders or registered owners of debentures may be exercised from time to time and as often as may be deemed expedient by the Trustee or by the holders or registered owners of debentures.

Section 9. All rights of action under this Indenture, or under any of the debentures or coupons, may be enforced by the Trustee without the possession of any of the debentures or coupons or the production thereof on any trial or other proceeding relative thereto, and any such suit or [fol. 45] proceeding instituted by the Trustee shall be brought in its name as Trustee, and any recovery of judgment shall be for the ratable benefit of the holders and registered owners of all of the debentures and coupons, except as provided in Section 2 of Article IV hereof, and Section 1 of this Article.

Concerning Consolidation, Merger and Sale

Section 1. Nothing in this Indenture contained shall prevent the consolidation or merger of the Company with or into any other corporation, or prevent any consolidation or merger with or into the Company of any other corporation, or prevent the sale by the Company of its property as an entirety; provided, however, that any such consolidation, merger or sale shall be on such terms as to preserve and not to impair any of the rights and powers of the Trustee [fol. 46] and/or of the holders of the debentures, and that any successor corporation formed by or resulting from such consolidation or merger, or any corporation to which such sale shall be made, shall, as a part and condition of such consolidation or merger, and as a part of the purchase price for the sale of the property of the Company as an entirety, expressly assume in writing the due and punctual payment of the principal and interest of all of the debentures, and the observance and performance of all of the covenants and conditions of this Indenture, and shall, simultaneously with the consummation of such consolidation, merger or sale, or simultaneously with the delivery to it of the conveyances for the property of the Company as an entirety, if such conveyances be delivered prior to the consummation of such consolidation, merger or sale, execute and deliver to the Trustee a proper indenture, in form satisfactory to the Trustee, whereby such corporation formed by or resulting from such consolidation or merger or such corporation to which such sale shall be made shall so assume the due and punctual payment of the principal and interest of all of the debentures, and the observance of all of the covenants and conditions of this Indenture.

Section 2. In case the Company shall be so consolidated with or merged into any other corporation, or in case any corporation shall be consolidated with or merged into the Company as aforesaid, or in case of a sale of the property of the Company as an entirety, the corporation formed by or resulting from such consolidation or merger, or to which such sale shall have been made, upon executing and causing [fol. 47] to be delivered to the Trustee a proper indenture, whereby such corporation shall assume the due and punctual payment of the principal of, and the interest on, all of the debentures then or at any time thereafter outstanding, and the performance of all the covenants and conditions of this Indenture, shall succeed to and be substituted for the Company, with the same effect as if it had been named herein as party of the first part hereto, and such corporation may thereupon, subject to the provisions hereof, cause to be signed and sealed, and may issue, either in its own name or in the name of the Company, any or all of the debentures which shall not theretofore have been signed and sealed by the Company and delivered to the Trustee, and upon the order of such corporation, in lieu of the Company, and subject to all the terms, conditions and restrictions herein prescribed, the Trustee shall authenticate any and all debentures which shall have been previously signed and sealed by the officers of the Company and delivered to the Trustee for authentication and any debentures which such corporation shall thereafter cause to be signed and sealed and delivered to the Trustee for that purpose, and deliver the same to such corporation or upon its order signed by its President or a Vice-President and by its Secretary or an Assistant Secretary. All debentures so issued shall in all respects have the same legal security, rank and validity as the debentures theretofore or thereafter issued in accordance with the terms of this Indenture as though all of the debentures had been actually issued by the Company as of the date of the execution hereof.

SCHEDULE "B" TO BILL OF COMPLAINT

Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation

Plan and Agreement Dated February 11, 1931

Rudolph B. Flershem, Chairman; Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters, Reorganization Committee. Armand Erpf, 50 Broad Street, New York City, Secretary. Murray, Aldrich & Webb, 15 Broad Street, New York City, Counsel.

[fol. 49] Depositary: Bankers Trust Company, 16 Wall Street, New York City

New York, N. Y., February 11, 1931.

To the holders of 6½% sinking fund gold debentures, $7 cumulative convertible preferred stock, and common stock of National Radiator Corporation:

National Radiator Corporation (hereinafter called the "Corporation") has defaulted in the payment of the interest due February 1, 1931, on its outstanding Debentures, the Board of Directors of the Corporation having reached the conclusion that, if the enterprise is to be maintained as a going concern, this interest payment must be omitted, as the continuance of business operations requires the conservation at this time of the cash resources of the Corporation.

The Corporation was formed in August, 1927, as the result of a merger of six companies. Before integration of the constituent enterprises was perfected, unfavorable competitive conditions in the industry developed, and a drastic decline in residential building construction became apparent, which has since continued. The problem has been further aggravated by the industrial depression. According to estimates of a leading authority on building statistics, expenditures for residential building construction, which is the principal outlet for the products of the Corporation, began to decline in the middle of 1928, and in 1929 [fol. 50] declined 30% as compared with 1928, and in 1930, 40% as compared with 1929.

The consolidated net earnings available for interest, after depreciation, since the merger, are reported as follows:

	1927 (four months)		1928		1929		1930*
Net earnings available for Interest, after depreciation	$993,948	(d)	587,123	(d)	490,371	(d)	740,542
Debenture Interest	271,805		756,378		743,958		713,328
Net after Interest	722,143	(d)	1,343,491	(d)	1,234,329	(d)	1,453,870
Additional charges to surplus	$222,752		658,689		51,451

(d) Deficit.
* Tentative Figures.

The management of the Corporation has endeavored to meet these conditions, and in 1930 made substantial reductions in costs and overhead; it has been particularly concerned to maintain a liquid working capital position. The tentative balance sheet of the corporation (not consolidated) as of December 31, 1930, approved as substantially correct by Messrs. Lybrand, Ross Bros. and Montgomery, who are at present engaged in auditing the accounts of the Corporation for the year 1930, is as follows:

While the working capital as reported is reasonably ample, it will be apparent that an increasing volume of busi- [fol. 53] ness, such as the Corporation must anticipate in order to support even the reduced service on its capitalization as readjusted under the following Plan, will require the use of a correspondingly larger amount of cash to carry larger inventories and receivables. In addition, increased expenditures for the design of new products, and for equipment necessary in their manufacture, will be essential to keep the Corporation's competitive position as against other enterprises in the industry. Moreover, the outlook for the immediate future is obscure, with no definite promise of an early recovery in earning power.

Confronted with these problems, the management of the Corporation has sought a solution of the difficulties, which would be most advantageous to the holders of the corporation's securities. It is the firm conviction of the management that a liquidation of the Corporation, either by action of the stockholders or by a forced sale at the instance of the Debentureholders, would, under present conditions, result in a very small payment to Debentureholders and other creditors and might well prove disastrous, and would, in any event, leave nothing for the stockholders. Therefore, it is the view of the management that the only proper course, under the circumstances, is to effect with all possible expedition a reorganization of the Corporation upon a basis which will provide a revised capital structure with drastically reduced fixed charges, and which will permit the employment of the liquid assets in the current conduct of the business.

To this end, the management (which includes the owners and representatives of owners of substantial amounts of [fol. 54] the Debentures and the Preferred and Common Stocks) has requested the undersigned, Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters, to act as a Reorganization Committee to formulate and submit to the security holders a Plan of Reorganization designed to accomplish the objects recommended by the management. This Committee is in accord with the conclusions of the management as stated above, and, believing that a reorganization of the Corporation may be effectively accomplished at this time, has formulated the following Plan of Reorganization. The Committee has consulted with other holders of large amounts of the Debentures, who have approved the Plan.

The Plan is recommended by this Committee to your favorable consideration and you are urged to deposit your securities promptly, to insure that the Plan may be declared operative as soon as possible.

The Board of Directors of the Corporation and this Committee are convinced that, unless this Plan is carried out, the only alternative is liquidation which will deprive all security holders of any opportunity to participate in a revival of business following the present depression.

Rudolph B. Flershem, Chairman; Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters, Reorganization Committee.

The New Company

A new corporation or corporations (hereinafter called the "New Company") will be organized with such corporate name and under the laws of such State of the United States as shall be approved by the Re-organization Committee, to acquire the assets and the business of the present Corporation, subject only to such changes as may result from the ordinary course of business, and subject also to existing liens, charges and encumbrances. In so far as practicable, title to the assets and business so acquired will [fol. 56] be vested in the New Company, but in certain instances it may be deemed advisable to transfer certain of these assets to one or more subsidiary companies, whose entire capital stock (except directors' qualifying shares) will be owned by the New Company.

The capitalization of the New Company, upon the consummation of the Plan, will be approximately as follows:

	Authorized	To be presently Outstanding
15-Year 5% Debentures	$5,500,000	$5,358,000
$7 Preferred Stock (no par value)	55,000 shares	53,580 shares
Common Stock (no par value)	400,000 shares*	272,966 shares

*Up to 90,902 shares to be reserved against the exercise of Stock Subscription Warrants.

The New Company will assume and agree to pay in full all liabilities of the Corporation for taxes, wages, services and merchandise, which have not been paid at the time of the acquisition by the New Company of the assets and business of the Corporation.

III

Description of New Securities

The following securities (hereinafter collectively called "New Securities") will be authorized by the New Company:

1. 15-Year 5% Debentures (hereinafter called the "New Debentures") will be authorized for the aggregate principal amount of $5,500,000 and will be issued to the extent [fol. 57] and upon the terms provided in the Plan. The New Debentures shall be dated March 1, 1931, shall mature March 1, 1946, and shall bear interest from their date, at the rate of 5% per annum, payable annually on March 1 in each year up to and including March 1, 1934, and payable thereafter semi-annually on March 1 and September 1 in each year, but required to be paid, prior to the maturity of the principal thereof, only as hereinafter provided out of the New Company's net earnings, as such net earnings shall be more fully defined in the Indenture under which the New Debentures are issued. The interest will be cumulative, but accumulations of interest shall not bear interest. At the maturity of the principal of the New Debentures (whether by their terms or otherwise), all arrears of cumulative interest shall be payable, whether earned or not. The net earnings of the New Company for the calendar years 1931, 1932 and 1933 shall be determined annually by the Board of Directors of the New Company, and up to 40% of such net earnings shall be available for and shall be required to be applied to the payment of the interest on the New Debentures for the first three years, that is up to and including March 1, 1934. Beginning with the calendar year 1934, and in each year thereafter, the net earnings of the New Company shall be determined semi-annually by the Board of Directors, and all of the net earnings in each such year shall be available for and shall be required to be applied to the payment of the interest on the New Debentures which is payable on September 1 in such year and on the next succeeding March 1, and to the payment of all arrears of cumulative interest. Said Indenture shall provide that no divi- [fol. 58] dends on any class of stock of the New Company shall be paid or set apart for payment unless the interest on the New Debentures payable on the next succeeding interest date, at the full rate of 5% per annum, as well as all cumulative interest in arrears, if any, shall have been paid or set apart for payment.

The New Debentures will be issued under an Indenture to be made to a Trustee designated by the Reorganization Committee, which Indenture shall contain provisions approved by the Reorganization Committee, customary in such an instrument, including a covenant of the New Company that it will not mortgage or pledge any of its assets to secure any funded debt as defined in the Indenture, without simultaneously making provision for securing equally with such funded debt the New Debentures then issued and outstanding. The Indenture may also contain further provisions and restrictions approved by the Reorganization Committee, designed to protect the New Debentures. The New Debentures will be redeemable, as will be more fully provided in said Indenture, as a whole or in part, on any interest payment date, at 107½% of their principal amount, together with all interest accumulated and accrued thereon to the date of such redemption; but they shall not be redeemed in part so long as any accumulated interest on any of the New Debentures remains unpaid.

2. $7 Preferred Stock (hereinafter called "New Preferred Stock") will be authorized for the amount of 55,000 shares without par value, and will be issued to the extent and upon the terms provided in the Plan. The New Pre- [fol. 59] ferred Stock will be preferred both as to assets and dividends and the holders thereof will be entitled to receive on voluntary liquidation $115 per share, and on involuntary liquidation $100 per share, plus in each case accumulated and unpaid dividends. The New Preferred Stock will be redeemable as a whole or in part on any dividend date at $115 per share, plus accumulated and unpaid dividends. The holders of the New Preferred Stock shall be entitled to receive preferential dividends at the rate of $7 per share per annum, payable quarterly on January 15, April 15, July 15 and October 15 in each year, when and as declared by the Board of Directors out of funds of the New Company legally available for such dividends. Such dividends shall be non-cumulative up to and including July 15, 1934, but shall be cumulative from and after July 15, 1934, that is to say, the first cumulative dividend will be the quarterly dividend payable on October 15, 1934. It shall be a term of the New Preferred Stock that the authorized number of shares of the New Preferred Stock shall not be increased, and that no additional shares of stock of any class ranking as to assets or dividends prior to or on a parity with the New Preferred Stock shall be authorized or issued by the New Company, without the consent of the holders of at least two-thirds in interest of the outstanding New Preferred Stock.

The holders of the New Preferred Stock shall be entitled to one vote for each share.

3. Common Stock (hereinafter called "New Common Stock") will be authorized for the amount of 400,000 shares without par value, and will be issued to the extent [fol. 60] and upon the terms provided in the Plan. 90,902 shares (or such lesser amount as may be required) of such New Common Stock will be reserved for the exercise of the Common Stock Subscription Warrants below described.

The holders of New Common Stock shall be entitled to one vote for each share.

4. Common Stock Subscription Warrants (herinafter called "Stock Warrants"), in form approved by the Reorganization Committee, will be authorized for issuance to the extent required for distribution to the Common Stockholders of the Corporation participating in the Plan. The Stock Warrants will be issued in registered form, and will grant the holder thereof the right to purchase shares of New Common Stock, at any time on or before July 1, 1941, at a purchase price of $20 per share. The Stock Warrants will be issued under an agreement which will contain provisions designed to safeguard the purchase right against dilution resulting from the issuance of additional Common Stock of the New Company, and to preserve such purchase right in the event that the New Company should merge or consolidate with one or more other corporations.

IV

Distribution of New Securities

Holders of the 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, the $7 Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock and the Common Stock of the Corporation, who become parties to the Plan, will be entitled, upon its consummation and the [fol. 61] surrender of their Certificates of Deposit in form transferable by delivery, to receive New Securities upon the following basis:

1. Holders of 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of the Corporation will be entitled to receive, for each $1,000 principal amount of deposited Debentures, $500 principal amount of New Debentures and 5 shares of New Preferred Stock, and 20 shares of New Common Stock.

2. Holders of $7 Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock of the Corporation will be entitled to receive, for each share of deposited Preferred Stock, one share of New Common Stock.

3. Holders of Common Stock of the Corporation will be entitled to receive a Stock Warrant granting the right to purchase as aforesaid one share of New Common Stock for every three shares of deposited Common Stock of the Corporation, but only upon the payment to the Depositary for the account of the Reorganization Committee of the sum of $1 in cash in respect of each share of New Common Stock covered by such Stock Warrant. No payment will be required of depositors of Common Stock of the Corporation at the time of deposit or until the Plan has been declared operative and the Stock Warrants are ready for distribution. After the Stock Warrants are ready for distribution, the Reorganization Committee may fix a date on or before which such payment must be made by depositors of Common Stock, and, upon failure to make such payment within the time so fixed, such depositors will forfeit all rights under the Plan. Stock Warrants will be [fol. 62] issued only in respect of even multiples of 3 shares of Common Stock of the Corporation, and fractions arising in respect of less than 3 shares of such Common Stock will be disregarded.

V

Method of Participation

Holders of Debentures and/or Preferred Stock and/or Common Stock of the Corporation, in order to participate in the Plan, must deposit with Bankers Trust Company as Depositary, at its principal office at 16 Wall Street, in the City of New York, on or before March 15, 1931, or such later date as may be fixed by the Reorganization Committee, their Debentures and the certificates representing their shares of such Preferred Stock and Common Stock.

Stock certificates must be properly endorsed in blank for transfer or be accompanied by proper instruments of transfer in blank. Stock transfer stamps need not be attached, unless the Certificate of Deposit is to be issued in a name other than that of the registered owner of the deposited stock, in which case New York State and Federal stock transfer stamps, each at the rate of 2¢ per share (a total of 4¢ per share), must be furnished.

Debentures registered as to principal must be transferred to bearer before being deposited; and all Debentures must be accompanied by the appurtenant interest coupons maturing on and after February 1, 1931. All references in the Plan and the annexed Agreement to Debentures shall, unless the context otherwise indicates, [fol. 63] be deemed to include said coupons.

For the convenience of depositors in forwarding their securities, the Depositary will supply a form of transmittal letter.

Depositors will be entitled to receive transferable Certificates of Deposit issued by the Depositary under the Plan and the annexed Agreement, and by the acceptance of such Certificates of Deposit, the holders thereof shall be deemed to have assented to the Plan and said Agreement and to all the terms and provisions thereof.

VI

Provisions for Declaring the Plan Operative

The Reorganization Committee in its absolute discretion may determine whether and when a sufficient amount of securities of the various classes of the Corporation shall have been deposited under the Plan to render it advisable to declare the Plan operative. The Reorganization Committee may also declare the Plan abandoned at any time, notwithstanding it may previously have been declared operative, if in the judgment of the Reorganization Committee it is inadvisable or impracticable to carry out the Plan.

VII

Modification of Plan

The Reorganization Committee may modify the Plan or adopt a substitute plan, as in the annexed Agreement provided. In the event of any such modification or substitu- [fol. 64] tion, a copy of such modified or substituted plan shall thereupon be filed with the Depositary. In case of any modification of the Plan, which in the judgment of the Reorganization Committee shall adversely affect the holders of Certificates of Deposit for securities of any class or classes to any material degree, or in case of the adoption of any substitute plan, notice of such modification or substitution shall be given and the assent thereto of holders of Certificates of Deposit for the class or classes of securities so affected shall be obtained in the manner and with the effect provided in the annexed Agreement.

VIII

Reorganization Committee and Agreement

Messrs. Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters have consented to act as a Reorganization Committee to carry out the Plan. The Reorganization Committee shall act by a majority of its members, as provided in the annexed Agreement. The Reorganization Committee shall be entitled to compensation. The expenses of the Reorganization will include the compensation and expenses of the Reorganization Committee and of the Trustee of the 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, including the fees of their counsel, and the compensation of the Depositary. All compensation and expenses shall be determined by the Reorganization Committee, as provided in the annexed Agreement.

In furtherance of the Plan, the Reorganization Committee has executed the annexed Agreement, copies of which, [fol. 65] with the Plan, are lodged with the Depositary. The Plan and said Agreement shall be deemed and constitute one instrument and depositors under the Plan shall be bound by all the terms of said Agreement, as parties thereto. In the event, however, of any conflict between the provisions of the Plan and said Agreement, the provisions of said Agreement shall control.

IX

Miscellaneous

The form and terms of all charters, certificates of incorporation, by-laws, debentures, indentures, certificates of stock, warrants and other securities of any corporation or corporations and of any other documents used in the Reorganization shall, in all respects not expressly defined by the Plan, be determined by the Reorganization Committee.

No fractional shares of stock of the New Company of any class will be issued and no New Debentures will be issued for less than $100 principal amount. In lieu thereof, fractional scrip may be issued in such form and on such terms and conditions as may be approved by the Reorganization Committee, and, as it may determine, such scrip may be non-dividend bearing or non-interest bearing; or a cash adjustment may be made in respect of such fractions on a basis fixed by the Reorganization Committee in its absolute discretion.

The Reorganization Committee shall have power, to be exercised in its absolute discretion, to consent to or arrange for the adjustment, by payment, settlement or purchase, of [fol. 66] any and all claims and charges of every nature whatsoever, which, in the opinion of the Reorganization Committee, should be adjusted in connection with the consummation of the Plan. The Reorganization Committee may arrange that the expense of any such adjustment shall be borne by the Corporation or the New Company; or, in its discretion, the Reorganization Committee may arrange for the participation in the Plan of any such claims or charges, and for that purpose may use any of the securities presently issuable in the Reorganization and not required for delivery to depositors. All general creditors of the Corporation, if any, other than those dealt with herein, whose claims shall be duly established, unless such claims are otherwise adjusted, shall be entitled, upon the consummation of the Reorganization, to receive new securities upon the same basis as the holders of the existing 6½% Debentures of the Corporation, upon assignment of their claims in form satisfactory to the Reorganization Committee within such period or periods as the Reorganization Committee may prescribe. All estimates of capitalization in the Plan omit consideration of any additional securities which may be issued or used for this purpose.

No estimate, statement, explanation or suggestion contained in the Plan or the Annexed Agreement or in any notice, circular or communication issued, or which may hereafter be issued, by the Reorganization Committee or by the Depositary or by the Corporation or by any of its officers or directors, is intended to be, or is to be accepted as, a representation or warranty or as a condition of deposit or assent under the Plan and said Agreement, and [fol. 67] no error, defect or irregularity herein or therein, except by written consent of the Reorganization Committee, shall release any deposit under the Plan or said Agreement or affect or release any assent hereto or affect or release any payment made or action taken pursuant hereto.

Dated February 11, 1931.

Agreement, dated February 11, 1931, between Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters (hereinafter called the "Reorganization Committee"), parties of the first part, and such holders of the 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures (hereinafter called "Debentures") and of shares of the $7 Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock (hereinafter called "Preferred Stock") and of the Common Stock (hereinafter called "Common Stock") of National Radiator Corporation, a Delaware corporation (hereinafter called the "Corporation"), as shall conformably with the provisions of this Agreement become parties hereto in the manner hereinafter provided, and their successors in interest (hereinafter collectively called the "Depositors"), parties of the second part:

In consideration of the consent and undertaking of the Reorganization Committee to act as such in behalf of the Depositors, as hereinafter set forth, and of the mutual agreements herein contained and for other good and valuable considerations, the parties hereto agree, each of the Depositors agreeing with each of the other Depositors and with the Reorganization Committee, as follows:

[fol. 68] 1. The Depositors hereby constitute and appoint Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H.

Waters a committee with all the powers, rights and privileges by this Agreement conferred upon the Reorganization Committee.

2. The accompanying Plan (hereinafter called the "Plan") is and shall be taken to be a part of this Agreement, with the same effect as though each and every provision thereof had been embodied herein, and said Plan and this Agreement shall be deemed and constitute one instrument.

3. Holders of Debentures and/or shares of Preferred Stock and/or Common Stock of the Corporation may become parties hereto and participants in the Plan, by depositing under the Plan with the Depositary hereinafter in Section 4 designated, on or before March 15, 1931, or such later date as may be fixed by the Reorganization Committee, their Debentures and the certificates representing their shares of such Preferred Stock and Common Stock of the Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the "deposited securities"). Debentures registered as to principal must be transferred to bearer before being deposited. Each Debenture deposited must be accompanied by the February 1, 1931 interest coupon and all subsequently maturing interest coupons appertaining thereto. Each stock certificate deposited must be properly endorsed in blank for transfer or be accompanied by a proper instrument of transfer in blank, in form approved by the Reorganization Committee. Stock transfer stamps need not be attached, the cost of any such [fol. 69] stock transfer stamps which may be required to be affixed being a part of the expenses of the Reorganization Committee under the Plan and this Agreement, except that, if the Certificate of Deposit is to be issued in a name other than that of the registered owner of the deposited stock, stock transfer stamps must be furnished as provided in the Plan. Every Depositor under the Plan who shall receive a Certificate of Deposit as hereinafter mentioned, by the acceptance of such certificate of deposit shall be deemed to have assented to and shall be bound by the provisions of the Plan and this Agreement, in the same manner and with the same effect as if he had executed the same.

The Reorganization Committee shall have full power in its discretion from time to time, either in general or in particular instances and upon such general or special terms or conditions as it may prescribe, to extend the time for receiving deposits under the Plan and this Agreement or to accept deposits under the Plan and this Agreement after the period at any time limited for such deposits shall have elapsed or to admit as parties to this Agreement and as participants in the Plan the holders of any claims against the Corporation. Except as otherwise in the Plan provided, holders of securities of or claims against the Corporation, who do not become parties hereto in the manner hereinabove provided within the periods limited therefor, will not be entitled to become parties to the Plan and this Agreement, or to share in the benefits thereof and shall acquire no rights thereunder, except with the express consent of the Reorganization Committee, which hereby reserves the right to withhold or give such consent.

[fol. 70] The Reorganization Committee may in its absolute discretion permit the holder of any Debentures and/or shares of Preferred Stock and/or Common Stock of the Corporation and/or any creditor of the Corporation to become a party to the Plan and this Agreement, without the actual deposit of his securities or claim, and any such party to the Plan and this Agreement shall be embraced within the term "Depositors," whenever used in the Plan or in this Agreement.

4. Each Depositor will receive from the Depositary hereinafter mentioned a Certificate or Certificates of Deposit, registered in the name of the Depositor or in the name of his nominee, and specifying the securities deposited and the amount thereof and otherwise in such form as shall be approved by the Reorganization Committee.

The Reorganization Committee hereby appoints Bankers Trust Company as its Depositary, with authority to said Depositary to appoint one or more agents to act under this Agreement in its behalf. The Depositary shall keep at its office books (which shall be deemed books of the Reorganization Committee) and shall record in such books the names and addresses (as furnished) of all persons to whom Certificates of Deposit are issued by such Depositary and shall likewise record in such books all transfers of Certificates of Deposit made by such Depositary.

The interests represented by the respective Certificates of Deposit issued under the Plan and this Agreement shall be transferable, subject to the terms and conditions of the [fol. 71] Plan and this Agreement on the books of the Reorganization Committee by the holders thereof in person or by duly authorized attorney, upon surrender of such Certificates of Deposit properly endorsed, and accompanied by stock transfer stamps required by law. Thereupon a new Certificate or Certificates of Deposit, registered in the name of the transferee, shall be issued. Each transferee of any Certificate of Deposit shall be deemed to be a Depositor and shall be a party to this Agreement and as such be entitled to the same rights and privileges and in every way be as fully bound by and subject to the Plan and this Agreement as the original Depositor.

Title to Certificate of Deposit, when properly endorsed, shall be transferable, to the extent permitted by law, with the same effect as in the case of negotiable instruments. Each holder of a Certificate of Deposit by the acceptance thereof shall be deemed to consent and agree that the delivery by any bearer thereof of such Certificate of Deposit, properly endorsed in blank, shall vest the title thereto and all rights and interests represented thereby in the transferee, to the same extent for all purposes as would delivery under like circumstances of a negotiable instrument payable to bearer, provided, however, that the Depositary and the Reorganization Committee may treat the holder of record of any Certificate of Deposit (or, when presented properly endorsed in blank, the bearer thereof) as the absolute owner thereof for all purposes, and shall not be affected by any notice to the contrary.

The Reorganization Committee may make provision for the replacement of any Certificate of Deposit which shall be lost, stolen, mutilated, or destroyed.

[fol. 72] 5. The Reorganization Committee is hereby authorized and empowered to construe the Plan and this Agreement, and the construction placed upon the same by the Reorganization Committee, in good faith, shall be final and conclusive and binding. The Reorganization Committee may supply any defect or omission in the Plan and this Agreement and reconcile any inconsistencies therein and herein.

6. Each and every Depositor of Debentures does hereby and by such deposit, for himself and not for any other Depositor, sell, assign, transfer and set over to the Reorganization Committee, as joint tenants and not tenants in common, and to the survivors or survivor of them and to their successors and assigns, each and every Debenture and coupon deposited hereunder or subject hereto or represented by a Certificate of Deposit, the Depositor of which shall in any manner have assented to the Plan and this Agreement, as well as such Depositor's right, title, interest, property and claim, at law or in equity, by virtue of said Debenture or coupon or of the Indenture under which the same are issued, or otherwise, against the Corporation and in and to its property and assets, to the end that the Reorganization Committee as from time to time constituted is vested under the terms of the Plan and this Agreement, as trustees of an express trust, with the legal title to all said Debentures and the coupons appertaining thereto which shall be deposited hereunder, and shall have all the rights and powers of owners thereof, both before and after the Plan and this Agreement shall become or be declared operative. At any time, upon the request of the Reor- [fol. 73] ganization committee, each and every Depositor will promptly execute and deliver any and all further or additional assignments, powers of attorney or other instruments which the Reorganization Committee may in its discretion deem necessary or proper effectually to vest in it full and complete ownership of the deposited Debentures and coupons or to carry out any of the purposes of the Plan and this Agreement. All of the deposited Debentures and coupons shall be received and held by the Depositary subject to the written order of the Reorganization Committee. The Reorganization Committee in its discretion, as the owners and holders of the deposited Debentures, may cause the same or any of them to be registered in the name of the Reorganization Committee or in the name of its nominee or nominees.

7. The deposit of certificates for shares of Preferred Stock and Common Stock of the Corporation shall not constitute an assignment or transfer thereof, but the title to such shares shall remain in the respective Depositors thereof unless and until the Reorganization Committee shall elect to take title thereto and shall cause said shares to be transferred into its name or into the name of its nominee or nominees, whereupon title to said shares shall vest in the Reorganization Committee, as joint tenants and not tenants in common, and in the survivors and survivor of them and in their successors and assigns, or, at the election of the Reorganization Committee, in its nominee or nominees, as trustees of an express trust. The Depositors of certificates for shares of the Preferred Stock and Common Stock of the Corporation severally agree that, at any time when the [fol. 74] Reorganization Committee shall have elected to take title to said shares, they will execute and deliver any and all further transfers and assignments or other writings requested by the Reorganization Committee in order more effectively to vest the ownership of said shares in the Reorganization Committee or in its nominee or nominees. Unless and until the Reorganization Committee shall so take title thereto, any and all directions to the Depositary respecting any such shares of stock and the possession and/or any and all disposition by the Reorganization Committee of them or action in respect of any of them shall be as the irrevocable agent and attorney-in-fact of the Depositors. Without electing to take title to such shares of stock, the Reorganization Committee, as such agent and attorney-in fact of the Depositors, may cause said shares to be transferred into the name of one or more nominees.

8. Each and every Depositor hereby authorizes and requests the Reorganization Committee, as the Depositor's agent and attorney-in-fact, to endeavor to carry out the Plan and this Agreement, in the manner set forth in the Plan and this Agreement, and for this purpose the Reorganization Committee is empowered hereby to exercise all the rights of the Depositors with respect to the deposited securities. The methods to be employed, however, by the Reorganization Committee in carrying out the Plan and this Agreement shall be entirely discretionary with the Reorganization Committee and the Plan and this Agreement are in all respects to be liberally construed, so as to enable the Reorganization Committee to carry into effect the in- [fol. 75] tent and purposes of the Plan. Without prejudice to the general power and authority so granted, the Depositors hereby severally and irrevocably authorize and empower the Reorganization Committee, and at the election of the Reorganization Committee, either before or after the Plan and this Agreement shall become or be declared operative: To take or institute or cause to be taken or instituted such actions or proceedings, legal or otherwise, to give such directions, to execute such papers and to do or cause to be done such acts and things as the Reorganization Committee may consider necessary or advisable, in order to enforce or to procure the payment of any of the deposited securities, or to protect the rights and interests of the Depositors, or for any of the purposes of the Plan and this Agreement; to demand, receive and collect all moneys that may be due and owing in respect of any deposited Debentures, whether for principal or interest or otherwise; to give any notice or to make any demand upon or request of the Trustee under the Indenture under which the deposited Debentures are issued; to declare or cause to be declared due and payable the principal of any and every Debenture deposited hereunder or of the entire issue of Debentures of which they form a part and to revoke or annul any such declaration or to cause the same to be revoked and annulled; to request and direct or to give consent, assent and/or approval to any action by said Trustee in any manner in which the request, demand, consent, assent or approval of the owners or holders of the Debentures or any portion thereof may be required, permitted or appro- [fol. 76] priate under the provisions of the aforesaid Indenture; to indemnify said Trustee against any and all costs, expenses and outlays, counsel fees and other proper disbursements and any other liability growing out of the compliance by said Trustee with any request or demand upon said Trustee for the protection and enforcement of its rights and the rights of the holders of said Debentures, and to charge the deposited Debentures as Security for such indemnity; to call or waive notice of and to attend in person or by proxy or substitute proxy any and all meetings of creditors or stockholders (but as the holder and owner of the deposited shares, if the Reorganization Committee shall have taken title thereto, or otherwise, as the attorney-in-fact and proxy of the Depositors of said shares) and to vote or cause to be voted or to consent with respect to any or all of the deposited securities of any class or classes, in any manner and for any purpose deemed by the Reorganization Committee to be advisable for the purpose of carrying out the Plan and this Agreement; from time to time, and upon such terms as the Reorganization Committee may determine, to borrow or otherwise obtain money for any of the purposes of the Plan or of this Agreement and to charge or pledge any deposited securities, any property acquired by the Reorganization Committee pursuant to the provisions of the Plan or of this Agreement, or any new securities to be issued, for the payment of any moneys borrowed or indebtedness or liability incurred; to direct in writing the Depositary for any securities, to hold the securities deposited with it, and any other property as security for the repayment of any moneys borrowed or to be borrowed, in accordance with this Agreement, in which [fol. 77] case such securities and other property shall be, and shall be held by such Depositary as, security for such advance, with the same effect as if they were actually deposited with the person making such advance; to intervene in or to become a party to or to exercise control over any suits or proceedings in which the Depositors of securities of any class or classes are or may be interested or which in the judgment of the Reorganization Committee may affect the property of the Corporation or of any of its subsidiary companies or the rights or interests of the Depositors; to apply for or join with others in applying for or to consent to the appointment or removal of a receiver or receivers of the Corporation, or of any or all of the properties of the Corporation or of any of its subsidiary companies, to do whatever, in the judgment of the Reorganization Committee, may be necessary to promote or to procure a sale or sales of any property herein concerned wherever situated; to adjourn the sale of any property or any portion thereof at discretion; to bid for and to purchase either directly or through nominees or through a new corporation or corporations any or all of the properties of the Corporation or of any of its subsidiary companies; to hold any property purchased by the Reorganization Committee, either in its name or in the name of its nominee or nominees, and to apply any deposited securities or any property acquired by the Reorganization Committee under the provisions of the Plan or of this Agreement in satisfaction of any bid or towards obtaining funds for the satisfaction thereof. The amount to be bid or paid by the Reorganization Committee for any property, shall be absolutely discretionary [fol. 78] with it. The Reorganization Committee is authorized to procure the organization of such new corporation or corporations (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "New Company") or to adopt or use any existing or future corporation or corporations for such purpose; to make or cause to be made, in respect of the New Company or of the Corporation or of any of its subsidiary companies such consolidations, purchases, sales or other arrangements as in the judgment of the Reorganization Committee may be advisable; to form or to procure the formation of any syndicate or syndicates, of which the Reorganization Committee or any member or members thereof, acting alone or in association with others, may be a participant or participants and/or the manager or managers for the promotion or the financing of new securities of the New Company; to cause to be listed upon any stock exchange any of the Certificates of Deposit and any of the new securities contemplated by the Plan, and to pay any costs and expenses incident thereto; to execute and deliver such documents as shall be required for any of the purposes of the Plan and this Agreement, and in general to do such acts and take all and singular such proceedings as in the absolute discretion of the Reorganization Committee shall seem to it necessary or advisable for the protection of the rights and interests of the Depositors.

Any action contemplated in the Plan or authorized by this Agreement may be taken or performed whenever the Reorganization Committee in its uncontrolled discretion shall deem the same advisable. Any such action may be taken by the Reorganization Committee or at its instance, [fol. 79] at any time when the Reorganization Committee shall deem the Reorganization advanced sufficiently to justify such action, and the Reorganization Committee, as it may deem necessary or expedient, may defer or permit to be deferred the performance of any provision of the Plan or of this Agreement or may commit such performance to the New Company and may cause the New Company to pay or assume any indebtedness or liabilities authorized or incurred by the Reorganization Committee or otherwise in furtherance of the Plan, or to make or assume any obligation which, in the judgment of the Reorganization Committee, may be necessary or expedient to carry out the Plan and this Agreement.

9. The Reorganization Committee shall have power, to be exercised in its absolute discretion, to consent to or arrange for the adjustment by payment, settlement or purchase of any and all claims and charges of every nature whatsoever, which, in the opinion of the Reorganization Committee, should be adjusted in connection with the consummation of the Plan. The Reorganization Committee may arrange that the expense of any such adjustment shall be borne by the Corporation or by the New Company; or, in its discretion, the Reorganization Committee, as provided in the Plan, may arrange for the participation in the Plan and under this Agreement of any such claims or charges. The Reorganization Committee may employ counsel, depositaries, agents and all necessary assistants and may delegate any power or authority as well as discretion; and may incur and discharge any and all expenses which it deems reasonable for the purposes of the Plan or for [fol. 80] carrying out or attempting to carry out the same, as well as all expenses in connection with the preparation of the Plan and this agreement, the issue of Certificates of Deposit and the issue and transfer of securities, the listing on exchanges of Certificates of Deposit, legal expenses, expenses for advertising and printing, all organization and other expenses of the New Company, and all other expenses in any manner connected with the Plan and this Agreement or which, in its uncontrolled discretion, the Reorganization Committee may deem it expedient to incur in promoting the purposes of the Plan. The Reorganization Committee shall be the sole judge of the propriety or expediency of any and all expenses and the amounts thereof. The members of the Reorganization Committee shall be entitled to compensation for their services and such compensation, in the amount fixed as proper by the Reorganization Committee, shall be binding and conclusive on all parties. For their compensation, expenses, indebtedness, obligations and liabilities, the Reorganization Committee shall have a lien upon all the deposited securities and upon all property securities and cash acquired in the course of the Reorganization and until their delivery or distribution, upon the new securities contemplated by the Plan. The Reorganization Committee may provide that such compensation, expenses, indebtedness, obligations and liabilities or any portion thereof, shall be paid by the Corporation or be assumed and paid by the New Company.

10. The Reorganization Committee, in its absolute discretion, may determine whether and when a sufficient [fol. 81] amount of securities of the various classes shall have been deposited under the Plan and this Agreement to render it advisable to declare the Plan operative.

11. The Reorganization Committee shall have power, at any time either before or after the Plan shall have been declared operative, to modify the Plan and/or this Agreement or any part thereof or to adopt a substitute plan, and any such modification or substitute plan shall bind and conclude the Depositors; provided, however, that, if in the judgment of the Reorganization Committee the proposed modification shall adversely affect the holders of Certificates of Deposit of any class to a material degree, or if any substitute plan shall be adopted, the Reorganization Committee shall file with the Depositary a statement of the modification or of the substitute plan, as the case may be, and shall give, in the manner provided in Section 15 hereof, notice of the fact of such filing. In case the Reorganization Committee shall give notice of any modification which shall be so deemed adversely to affect to a material degree the holders of Certificates of Deposit of any class, or of any substitute plan, then, within 30 days after the date of the first publication of such notice, the holders of Certificates of Deposit of such class may, upon the terms and conditions set forth in Section 12 hereof, withdraw the securities represented by their Certificates of Deposit. Every such Depositor not so withdrawing within said 30 days' period, shall be irrevocably and conclusively deemed to have assented to the proposed modification or substitute plan and shall be bound and concluded thereby as effectively as if he had assented thereto [fol. 82] in writing. The modifications or substitute plan so adopted by the Reorganization Committee shall become a part of the Plan and of this Agreement, and all provisions and references concerning the Plan shall apply to the Plan so modified or to such substitute plan. Any modification of the Plan or this Agreement shall be deemed to affect adversely to a material degree the holders of all Certificates of Deposit, unless the Reorganization Committee, by the unanimous action of all its members, shall otherwise determine.

The Reorganization Committee may abandon the Plan, at any time either before or after the same shall have been declared operative (notwithstanding anything, that may have been done), if in its judgment the Reorganization Committee shall deem it inadvisable or impracticable to carry the same into execution. Such abandonment shall be effected by resolution of, or written instrument signed by, the Reorganization Committee, and notice shall be lodged with the Depositary, and given in accordance with the provisions of Section 15 hereof. Thereafter, any Depositor may, subject to the provisions of Section 12 hereof, withdraw the deposited securities or the avails thereof then under the control of the Reorganization Committee, represented by his Certificate of Deposit. In the absence of such notice of abandonment, no Depositor may withdraw the deposited securities (or the avails thereof) represented by his Certificate of Deposit or withdraw from this Agreement prior to January 1, 1932. If the Plan shall not have been declared operative by that date, the Plan shall [fol. 83] be deemed to have been abandoned and any Director may thereafter withdraw the deposited securities (or the vails thereof) represented by his Certificate of Deposit. The abandonment of the Plan shall not affect any previous acts or obligations done or undertaken by the Reorganization Committee.

12. Any Depositor, as a condition precedent to his exercise of a right of withdrawal of deposited securities (or the avails thereof) under any provision of the Plan or this Agreement, shall surrender to the Depositary his Certificate of Deposit, with a properly executed transfer thereof, and shall pay to such Depositary for the account of the Reorganization Committee (a) such taxes as may be imposed upon the transfer or delivery of the securities withdrawn; and (b) in the case of a holder of a Certificate of Deposit for deposited Debentures of the Corporation, the pro rata share of such Depositor, as determined in the sole and unrestricted discretion of the Reorganization Committee, of the compensation, expenses, indebtedness, obligations and liabilities of the Reorganization Committee incurred to the date of such withdrawal.

The Reorganization Committee, subject to the provisions of this Agreement, is authorized and empowered to make reasonable regulations as to the procedure to be followed by holders of Certificates of Deposit in withdrawing, in any of the events aforesaid, the securities of the class represented by their Certificates of Deposit, and for the purpose of facilitating delivery of such securities the Reorganization Committee may order the books for the transfer of Certificates of Deposit to be permanently closed [fol. 84] against the making of transfers upon a date not less than 10 days after giving notice of such closing of the books to the Depositors in accordance with the provisions of Section 15 hereof.

13. The Reorganization Committee, subject to the provisions of this Agreement, is authorized and empowered to prescribe terms and conditions as to the surrender of Certificates of Deposit, with which holders of Certificates of Deposit must comply in order to receive the securities deliverable to Depositors under the Plan, and for the purpose of facilitating the delivery thereof the Reorganization Committee may order the books of the Reorganization Committee for the transfer of Certificates of Deposit to be permanently closed against the making of transfers at a date not less than 10 days after giving notice of such closing of the books to the Depositors in accordance with the provisions of Section 15 hereof.

The accounts of the Reorganization Committee shall be filed with the Board of Directors of the New Company within one year after its organization shall have been completed, unless a longer time be granted by said Board. The accounts, when approved by such Board of Directors and until disapproved by said Board, shall be final, binding and conclusive upon all parties having any interest therein, and upon approval thereof by such Board of Directors the Reorganization Committee shall be discharged.

Every holder of a Certificate of Deposit, by the surrender thereof to the Reorganization Committee and the re- [fol. 85] ceipt of the securities represented by his surrendered Certificate of Deposit or securities deliverable to him hereunder, shall be deemed to have released and discharged the Reorganization Committee, the Depositary and all other persons from all liability and accountability of any and every kind hereunder.

After the books for the transfer of Certificates of Deposit shall have been closed against the making of transfers (whether upon the consummation of the Plan or upon its abandonment), the Reorganization Committee, whenever there shall be lodged with the Depositary,

(a) in case the Plan shall have been consummated—the securities of the New Company which Depositors shall be entitled to receive under the Plan and this Agreement, or may instruct the Depositary to hold the securities of the New Company or the securities of the Corporation (or the avails thereof then under the control of the Reorganization Committee), as the case may be, so lodged with it for the holders of outstanding Certificates of Deposit, and to distribute the same to such holders upon surrender to it of their Certificates of Deposit and the payment by them of such amounts, if any, as may be payable by reason of the provisions of Section 12 hereof; and, such securities having been so lodged with the Depositary and [fol. 86] such instructions having been so given, the Reorganization Committee shall be under no responsibility to the Depositors, and the rights of the Depositors shall be limited to receiving from the Depositary such securities so held by the Depositary.

(b) in case the entire Plan shall have been abandoned—the securities of the Corporation (or the avails thereof then under the control of the Reorganization Committee) represented by the outstanding Certificates of Deposit,

14. All securities and claims deposited under the Plan and this Agreement, or acquired by the Reorganization Committee under any of the provisions hereof, shall remain in full force and effect for all purposes and shall not be deemed to have been merged, satisfied, released or discharged by any delivery of new securities, and no right or lien shall be deemed to be released or waived, but said securities and claims, and any judgment upon any of such securities or claims, and all liens and equities shall remain unimpaired and may be enforced by the Reorganization Committee or by the New Company, or by any other assignee of the Reorganization Committee, until paid or satisfied in full or expressly released. Neither the Reorganization Committee nor any security holder or other creditor of the Corporation, by executing this Agreement, or by becoming parties hereto, release, surrender or waive any lien, right or claim whatsoever, and all such liens, rights or claims shall vest unimpaired in the Reorganization Committee and its assigns or successors in interest; and any purchase or purchases, by or on behalf of the Reorganization Committee or its nominees, under any decree for the enforcement of any such lien, right or claim, shall vest the property purchased in the Reorganization Committee or its nominees, free from all interest or claim on the part of any security holder or creditor of the Corporation, or any other parties.

[fol. 87] Neither the Reorganization Committee nor the Depositary is to be under any obligation, legal or equitable, express or implied, to any holder of securities of any class of or claims against the Corporation who shall not deposit the same hereunder, or to any person whomsoever, other than Depositors. With respect to the Depositors, the Reorganization Committee undertakes to endeavor in good faith to carry out the Plan and this Agreement, but neither the Reorganization Committee nor any member thereof nor the Depositary assumes any responsibility for the carrying out of the Plan and this Agreement or for the result of any steps taken or acts done for the purpose thereof. Neither the Reorganization Committee nor any member thereof nor the Depositary shall be liable for any act or omission of any attorney, agent or employee, or for anything except for his or its own willful misconduct.

No estimate, statement, explanation or suggestion, contained in the Plan or in the preliminary statement prefixed thereto or in this Agreement or in any document, circular letter, notice or communication now or hereafter issued or published by or on behalf of the Reorganization Committee, is intended or is to be taken as a representation or as an inducement or a condition of any deposit or assent or payment under the Plan or this Agreement; and no error or defect or irregularity herein or therein shall release any Depositor or affect or release any deposit under the Plan and this Agreement or assent thereto and hereto or payment made or anything done thereunder or hereunder, except with the written consent of the Reorganization Committee.

[fol. 88] Any member of the Reorganization Committee or any corporation, association or partnership of which any member of the Reorganization Committee may be an officer, director, member or partner, or the Depositary or any officer or director of the Depositary, may be or become pecuniarily interested in any Debentures, stock, Certificates of Deposit, subscription rights, contracts, securities, property or matters with which the Plan or this Agreement is concerned, and may participate in any underwriting syndicate as syndicate manager, syndicate subscriber, or otherwise, and may be an officer or director of the Corporation and/or of the New Company. The Depositary may be trustee under any indenture or agreement created or entered into in connection with the Plan, or otherwise act in any manner for the Corporation and/or the New Company.

15. Any notice required or permitted by the provisions hereof to be given to any Depositor shall be conclusively deemed to have been duly given if published in a newspaper of general circulation in the City of New York once in each of four successive calendar weeks, in each instance in any such newspaper and on any day of the week; and such publication shall be sufficient for all purposes whether or not actually brought to the notice of any Depositor. Any Depositor may furnish an address to the Secretary of the Reorganization Committee to which notices may be mailed and to each such Depositor the Reorganization Committee will mail, postpaid, a copy of any such notice within 5 days after the date of the first publication thereof, but failure so to mail such notice to any such Depositor shall not affect [fol. 89] any proceedings taken pursuant to notice given by publication as aforesaid.

16. The Reorganization Committee, as from time to time constituted and notwithstanding any vacancy, shall have all the powers, rights and interests of the Reorganization Committee as named in this Agreement. The Reorganization Committee shall appoint from its members a Chairman, and may appoint a Secretary (who may, but need not, be one of its members) who shall keep a record of its acts and proceedings.

The Reorganization Committee may from time to time add to its number by electing an additional member or additional members, and the additional member or members so elected shall have all the rights, powers and authorities of members of the Reorganization Committee, and together with those named therein, or their successor or successors, shall constitute the Reorganization Committee under this Agreement, with like force and effect as if they were specifically herein named.

Any member of the Reorganization Committee may resign by filing written notice of his resignation with its Chairman or Secretary. In case at any time a vacancy shall occur in the Reorganization Committee by death or resignation, or from any other cause, such vacancy may, but need not, be filled by a majority of the members remaining. Notices of changes in the membership of the Reorganization Committee signed by the Chairman or Secretary of the Reorganization Committee and filed with the Depositary shall bind all parties hereto.

[fol. 90] A majority of the members of the Reorganization Committee shall constitute a quorum for all purposes, and, except as herein otherwise expressly provided, all the powers of the Reorganization Committee may be exercised by a majority of its then members. The Reorganization Committee may act at a meeting, or in writing or by telegraph, wireless or cable without a meeting. A member of the Reorganization Committee by written proxy may authorize any person (who may, but need not, be another member of the Reorganization Committee) to act in his place for any and all purposes. The certificate of the Chairman or Secretary as to any action by the Reorganization Committee shall be conclusive upon and full protection to the Depositary and all other persons, and conclusive upon all Depositors, as to all acts and things so certified to have been done by the Reorganization Committee.

17. The deposited securities and all moneys paid to the Depositary under this Plan and Agreement shall be held and disposed of by the Depositary in accordance with the orders of the Reorganization Committee, and the Depositary shall incur no liability for anything done or permitted to be done at the request or direction of the Reorganization Committee. The Depositary shall be bound to exercise only reasonable care in the safekeeping of the deposited securities and of any other securities or cash which may be deposited with or held by it hereunder respectively, and to deal therewith in accordance with the directions of the Reorganization Committee.

The Depositary, by the delivery of any Certificate of Deposit hereunder, does not make any representation or [fol. 91] warranty of any sort whatsoever other than that it agrees to use its best judgment and good faith in the performance of its duties hereunder, and by the acceptance of any such Certificate of Deposit every holder expressly relieves the Depositary of any liability except as aforesaid.

The Depositary may resign by filing written notice of such resignation with the Chairman or Secretary of the Reorganization Committee, and the Reorganization Committee shall have power to appoint a new Depositary. In the event of the resignation of the Depositary, such Depositary shall deliver all cash, securities, property and records held by it hereunder as directed by the Reorganization Committee.

18. The enumeration of specific powers herein conferred upon the Reorganization Committee shall not be construed to limit or to restrict general powers herein conferred or intended so to be, and it is hereby declared that it is intended to confer upon the Reorganization Committee in respect of all deposited securities and in all other respects any and all powers which the Reorganization Committee may deem expedient for carrying out or promoting the purposes of the Plan and this Agreement in any respect, even though any such power be apparently of a character not now contemplated; and the Reorganization Committee may exercise any and every such power as fully and effectively as if the same were herein distinctly specified and as often as for any reason it may deem expedient.

19. The Plan and this Agreement shall bind and benefit the several parties hereto, and each and all the survivors, [fol. 92] heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns of said parties, and of each of them. The rights of the Depositors shall be such only as are conferred by the Plan and this Agreement and shall be subject to compliance by the Depositors with the terms and conditions set forth therein and herein. The term "Depositors" shall include every party to the Plan and this Agreement and the holder for the time being of any Certificate of Deposit issued hereunder and thereunder and shall include the singular as well as the plural number.

20. This Agreement may be executed in several counterparts and all such counterparts shall be taken together as forming one instrument. Upon the execution of this Agreement by the members of the Reorganization Committee or a majority of them, an executed counterpart shall be deposited with the Depositary.

In witness whereof the members of the Reorganization Committee have executed this Agreement, and the Depositors have become parties hereto by depositing their securities hereunder and under the Plan as above set forth, all as of the date first above written.

Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters, Reorganization Committee.

In United States District Court

Decree Appointing Receiver—Filed Oct. 9, 1931

And now, to wit, this 9th day of October, 1931, this matter came on to be heard on bill and answer, and upon consideration thereof, on motion of counsel for complainants, the defendant appearing and consenting thereto, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed as follows:

First. The defendant, National Radiator Corporation, being presently unable to meet and discharge its obligations [fol. 96] which have already matured, without seriously jeopardizing the ability of the defendant to continue in business, it is to the interest and advantage of the creditors and stockholders of the defendant that a Receiver be appointed for all its assets.

Second. That Robert S. Waters of Johnstown, Pa. and William G. Heiner of Pittsburgh be and hereby are appointed Receivers of all and singular, the lands, tenements and hereditaments of the defendant and all its real and personal property, business, rights, estates, and effects whatsoever, wheresoever the same may be situate, including its merchandise, stocks and bonds, choses in action, bills and accounts receivable, cash in hand and in bank, and all its easements, franchises, rights, privileges, and interests, and all of the tolls, earnings, rents, issues, profits, revenues and income thereof and every part thereof.

Third. The said Receivers are hereby authorized to take possession of all and singular the property, business, assets and effects above described or referred to, wheresoever situate, and until further order of this Court, said Receivers shall manage and control said property and shall preserve the property, assets and effects in proper condition and repair so that they may safely and advantageously be used and shall fully protect the same and employ such persons and make such payments and disbursements as may be necessary or proper for so doing, and shall report their actions to this Court from time to time.

Fourth. The said Receivers shall have full power to demand, sue for and collect, receive and take into their pos- [fol. 97] session, all the goods and chattels, rights and credits, moneys and effects, lands and tenements, books, papers, choses in action, bills, notes and property of every description of the defendant and to institute suits at law or in equity for the recovery of any assets, property damages or demands existing in favor of said corporation, and in their discretion to compound and settle with any debtors of said corporation, with persons having possession of its property or in any way responsible at law or in equity to said corporation at the time of this appointment or afterwards, upon such terms and in such manner as they may deem just and beneficial to said corporation. Said Receivers are hereby further authorized to intervene in and become a party to such suits, actions and proceedings, at law or in equity, including ancillary proceedings in state or federal courts, as may, in their judgment, be necessary or proper for the protection, maintenance or preservation of the receivership estate, or any part thereof, or in aid of the decrees or orders entered or made by this Court, and to apply to any such court for any such order or orders as may be deemed by them necessary or proper.

Fifth. It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that the defendant and each of its officers, agents, directors and employees be, and they are hereby required to transfer, convey and turn over to the Receivers, or their duly constituted agent, all of the real and personal property, business, assets and effects above described or referred to, and all of the property and assets of the defendant, and all [fol. 98] books, papers and other personal property belonging to the defendant in their or its hands or subject to their or its control.

Sixth. It is further ordered that the defendant, its agents, directors, officers, servants and employees and all other persons, be and they are hereby enjoined and restrained from in any way levying upon, attaching, selling, disposing, transferring or in any manner interfering with any of the property of the defendant or from taking possession of or in any way interfering with any parts thereof or from in any manner disturbing or interfering with the possession or management of any part of said property over which the said Receivers are hereby appointed, and doing any act or thing to prevent the discharge by said Receivers of their duties under this decree.

Seventh. Until the further order of this Court, said Receivers shall continue to carry on the business of the National Radiator Corporation, the defendant, to continue the manufacture and sale of its products, to dispose of its stock on hand, make such purchases as may be necessary to enable it to carry on its business, complete such contracts and orders of the defendant as in the judgment of the Receivers may be advantageous and for the best interests of the defendant and its creditors, and make, accept, and carry out such new contracts and orders as in their judgment may be advisable; and said Receivers are further vested with full discretion in the matter of handling the present business of the defendant and any new business which may be [fol. 99] taken and accepted by them and to handle the same in accordance with the customs of the business and the trade in which the defendant is engaged. Said Receivers shall have full power and authority to sell and discount negotiable instruments of customers or customers' invoices and to endorse the same.

Eighth. Said Receivers are hereby authorized, in their discretion, from time to time to pay out of the funds coming into their hands all expenses of operating the plants and carrying on the business of the defendant, and to pay the current and unpaid payrolls and all taxes and assessments upon the properties of the defendant, or any part thereof.

Ninth. Said Receivers shall be, and hereby they are, allowed four months from the date of this decree (unless the time be extended by further order of this Court) within which to elect to adopt or continue in force, or to refuse to adopt or continue in force, any lease or other contract of whatsoever character not fully performed which may be included in the property or assets of the defendant or which shall have been entered into by the defendant. Said election may be made from time to time and shall be made by an instrument in writing subscribed by said Receivers and filed in the office of the Clerk of this Court, and no conduct or uses of the rights by said Receivers or payments made or received by them, as rent or otherwise, or any other acts or omissions of said Receivers within said period of four months unaccompanied by the filing of such written instrument shall be deemed to conclude said Receivers in respect [fol. 100] of such election or be deemed to constitute an election to adopt or to continue in force any such contract, lease or agreement.

Tenth. Said Receivers shall open books of account and shall keep, or cause to be kept, therein due and proper accounts of all earnings, expenses, receipts and disbursements of and with respect to the properties and assets in their possession or under their control, the conduct of said business and the conduct or carrying on of any other business or undertaking which said Receivers hereby are or hereafter shall be authorized to conduct or carry on; shall preserve proper vouchers for all payments made by them on account thereof; and shall deposit all funds coming into their hands in such banks as shall be selected by them and approved by this Court.

Eleventh. The right is reserved to the parties hereto or to any and all other parties in interest, to apply to this Court for any other instructions to said Receivers, and the Court reserves the full right and jurisdiction to make from time to time such further orders, amplifying, extending, limiting or otherwise modifying this decree, as to it may at any time seem proper, and in all respects and at all times to regulate and control the conduct of said Receivers.

Twelfth. In case of the death, resignation or inability of the Receivers hereby appointed, or either of them, and the appointment of a successor or successors, the provisions of this decree shall be applicable to such successor or successors from and after his or their said appointment without further order of this Court and with like effect as if [fol. 101] such successor or successors were herein specifically named as said Receiver or Receivers.

Thirteenth. Said Receivers shall, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, file a bond, with a surety to be approved by this Court, in the sum of Fifty Thousand ($50,000.00) Dollars, conditioned for the faithful discharge of their duties as such Receivers.

IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

PETITION OF BANKERS TRUST CO. FOR LEAVE TO FILE SUIT, ETC.—Filed Oct. 13, 1931

To the Honorable the Judges of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania, sitting in equity:

The petition of Bankers Trust Company respectfully show to the Court as follows:

1. Your petitioner is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal office and place of business in the City, County and State of New York, and is a citizen of said State and a resident of the Southern District of New York.

2. The defendant, National Radiator Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, and is a resident and citizen of said State of Delaware.

[fol. 102] 3. Shortly before August 30, 1927, the defendant, National Radiator Corporation, duly authorized an issue of its 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, and, for the purpose of setting forth the terms and provisions governing the issue of said Debentures and to define the nature and extent of the rights of the holders and owners thereof, on or about August 30, 1927, said defendant duly made and executed, under its corporate seal, and delivered to your petitioner its Indenture, dated August 1, 1927; and said defendant thereafter made and executed Debentures of the issue hereinabove described in the aggregate principal amount of Twelve Million Dollars ($12,000,000). All of said Debentures were duly authenticated by your petitioner, as Trustee under said Indenture, in all respects as therein provided, and all of said Debentures were duly issued by said defendant for a valuable consideration, and Ten Million Six Hundred and Seventy-three Thousand Dollars ($10,673,000) principal amount of said Debentures are now outstanding in the hands of divers persons who are owners and holders thereof for value.

4. Your petitioner is now Trustee under said Indenture.

5. On October 9, 1931, an order was entered by this Honorable Court in the above entitled cause, appointing Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner, Receivers of the defendant, National Radiator Corporation, and of all and singular its property and assets of every kind and description and wheresoever situated; and the defendant, National Radiator Corporation, consented to such appointment of Receivers.

[fol. 103] 6. The defendant, National Radiator Corporation, has made default in the payment of the interest due on February 1, 1931, and August 1, 1931, on all of its said

Debentures outstanding as aforesaid. Said default constitutes an event of default under said Indenture, and said default has not been remedied but still continues.

7. Said Indenture provides, among other things, that, in case default shall be made in the payment of any instalment of interest on any of said Debentures when the same shall become payable as therein or in said Indenture expressed, then, upon demand of the Trustee, the defendant Corporation will pay to the Trustee, for the benefit of the holders and registered owners of said Debentures and coupons then outstanding, the whole amount which then shall have become due and payable on all such Debentures and coupons then outstanding, for interest or principal or both, with interest in each instance at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum upon the overdue amounts; and, in case the defendant Corporation shall fail to pay the same forthwith upon such demand, the said Trustee, in its own name and as Trustee of an express trust, shall be entitled to recover judgment for the whole amount so due and unpaid and to enforce such judgment in accordance with law.

8. On October 9, 1931, your petitioner, pursuant to the provisions of said Indenture, duly made due demand upon the defendant, National Radiator Corporation, that it pay forthwith to your petitioner, as Trustee under said Indenture, for the benefit of the holders of the coupons rep- [fol. 104] resenting the interest due and payable on February 1 and August 1, 1931, on each and all of said defendant's 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, now outstanding, the entire amount which had so become due and payable on said Debentures for said interest represented by said coupons due February 1 and August 1, 1931, with interest on the overdue instalments of such interest at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum from the date on which the same became due, but said defendant has failed to pay to your petitioner the amount so demanded or any part thereof.

9. Your petitioner is entitled, by reason of the events hereinbefore set forth, and desires in its own name and as Trustee of an express trust, to institute a suit in this Court to recover judgment for the whole amount due and unpaid as aforesaid, representing interest on said Debentures so outstanding.

Wherefore your petitioner prays leave of this Honorable Court to file suit and institute proceedings against the defendant in receivership, to recover judgment for the whole amount due and payable as aforesaid, and that an order granting such leave may be made by this Honorable Court and entered in the above entitled cause, and that your petitioner may have such other and further relief as may be just and proper.

In United States District Court

Petition of Bankers Trust Company for Leave to Bring Suit—Filed Dec. 30, 1931

To the Honorable Judges of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania:

The petition of Bankers Trust Company (hereinafter called "Petitioner"), respectfully shows to the Court:

[fol. 113] 1. Petitioner is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal place of business at No. 16 Wall Street, City, County and State of New York, and is a citizen of said State and a resident of the Southern District of New York.

2. The defendant, National Radiator Corporation (hereinafter called the "Company") is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware and is a resident and citizen of said State.

3. Shortly before August 30, 1927, the Company, being thereunto duly authorized and empowered by law, duly authorized an issue of its 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures and for the purpose of setting forth the terms and provisions governing the issue of said debentures and to define the nature and extent of the rights of the holders and owners thereof, the Company, on or about August 30, 1927, duly made and executed under its corporate seal and delivered to your Petitioner as Trustee, its Indenture dated August 1, 1927. Your Petitioner duly joined in the execution thereof to evidence its acceptance of the trust thereby created and has continuously, since the date thereof, acted as Trustee under said Indenture and is still so acting.

4. The Company thereafter duly made and executed debentures of the issue hereinabove described, in the aggregate principal amount of Twelve Million dollars ($12,000,000). All of said debentures were duly authenticated [fol. 114] by Petitioner as Trustee, in all respects as provided in said Indenture, and all of said debentures were duly issued for a valuable consideration.

5. Ten Million Six hundred seventy-three thousand dollars ($10,673,000) principal amount of said debentures are now outstanding in the hands of divers persons who are bona fide owners and holders thereof for value.

6. The Company has made default under the terms and provisions of Article V, Sections 2 and 3 of the Indenture as follows:

(a) It wholly failed to pay the installment of interest due February 1, 1931 and said interest installment remains unpaid although duly demanded.

(b) It wholly failed to pay the installment of interest due August 1, 1931 and said interest installment remains unpaid although duly demanded.

(c) On or about the 9th day of October, 1931, an order was entered by this Court, in this cause, appointing Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner, Receivers of the defendant, National Radiator Corporation, and of all and singular its property and assets of every kind and description and wheresoever situated. Such order was entered upon the consent of the Company and the Receivers appointed thereby have not been dismissed within thirty days after their appointment. Said defaults constitute events of default under the Indenture and said defaults have not been remedied and still continue.

[fol. 115] 7. By leave of this Court first duly had and obtained, your Petitioner, as Trustee, as aforesaid, instituted its action at law in this Court for and in behalf of all and singular the holders of debentures and coupons for the amount of the February 1, 1931 and August 1, 1931 coupons and on October 13, 1931, judgment was duly entered in said action (No. 6776-Law) in favor of your Petitioner and against the Company in the sum of Seven hundred thirteen thousand nine hundred forty-four and 38/00 dollars ($713,944.38). Said judgment has not been satisfied, nor has any part thereof been paid, although duly demanded.

8. Section 2 of Article V of said Indenture provides, among other things, that in case default shall be made in the payment of any installment of interest on any of said debentures when the same shall become payable, as therein, or in said Indenture expressed, then the Trustee may, in its discretion and upon request in writing by holders of at least one-fourth in principal amount of the debentures then outstanding, shall declare the principal and interest on all the debentures, if not already due, to be forthwith due and payable and upon such declaration, the same shall become due and payable immediately. Pursuant to said Article, your Petitioner did, on the 24th day of December, 1931, upon the written request of more than one-fourth in principal amount of the outstanding debentures, duly declare the principal of and interest on all the debentures to be immediately due and payable and upon such declaration, the same did become forthwith due and payable.

[fol. 116] 9. Section 3 of Article V of said Indenture provides, among other things, that in case default shall be made in the payment of any installment of interest on any of the debentures or in the payment of principal of any of the debentures when the same shall become due and payable, either at maturity or by declaration, or otherwise, then upon demand of the Trustee, the Company will pay to the Trustee for the benefit of the holders and registered owners of said debentures and coupons then outstanding, the whole amount which shall then have become due and payable upon the debentures and coupons and under the Indenture, for interest or principal, or both, with interest in each instance at the rate of 6½% per annum upon the overdue amounts and in case the Company shall fail to pay the same forthwith upon such demand, Petitioner, in its own name and as Trustee of an express trust, shall be entitled to recover judgment for the whole amount so due and unpaid and to enforce such judgment in accordance with law.

10. On December 28th, 1931, your Petitioner, pursuant to the provisions of the Indenture, duly made demand upon the Company that it pay forthwith to your Petitioner, as Trustee, for the benefit of the holders and registered owners of the debentures and coupons then outstanding, the principal and interest then due and payable on each and all of said debentures and coupons, with interest on the overdue amounts, at the rate of 6½% per annum from the dates on which the same became due, but the Company has wholly failed to pay to your Petitioner the amount so de-reasonable compensation and expenses, including counsel fees in administration of its trust, with interest thereon at 6½% per annum. Your Petitioner does not, at this time, seek judgment for the amount of such compensation and expenses since, upon information and belief, further amounts will become due and payable at a later date.
[fol. 117] manded, or any part thereof and the same remains wholly due and unpaid. There is also due to your Petitioner, pursuant to the terms of said Indenture, its

11. By reason of the premises, your Petitioner is entitled and desires in its own name and as Trustee of an express trust, to institute a suit in this Court to recover judgment for the additional amounts which have become due and payable since October 13, 1931 and are now due and unpaid as aforesaid, representing the principal amount of the outstanding debentures with interest thereon from August 1, 1931.

12. By reason of the order of this Court dated October 9, 1931 hereinabove alleged, Petitioner is unable, save as herein sought, to enforce the remedies provided in said Indenture.

Wherefore your Petitioner respectfully prays of this Honorable Court:

(a) leave to file suit and institute proceedings against the defendant, National Radiator Corporation in receivership, to recover judgment for the whole amount due and payable as aforesaid and for that purpose to file in this Court its statement of claim in substantially the form submitted herewith;

[fol. 118] (b) that an order granting such leave may be made by this Honorable Court and entered in this cause without prejudice to the right of Petitioner later to apply for leave to institute another suit or suits for amounts hereafter becoming due under the Indenture and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just; and

(c) that the judgment duly entered October 13, 1931 in this Court, in favor of Petitioner against the Company in the sum of Seven Hundred Thirteen Thousand Nine Hundred forty-four and 38/100 dollars ($713,944.38), for interest due and payable on coupons appertaining to said Company's outstanding debentures, and such judgment as Petitioner may obtain against the Company, pursuant to the leave herein sought, be declared to stand as a claim duly filed and allowed by the Receivers now appointed and acting in this cause.

Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, by J. Garfield Houston, Its Solicitor. White & Case, of Counsel.

Duly sworn to by H. F. Wilson, Jr. Jurat omitted in printing.

[fol. 119] Consent

The undersigned hereby admit due and timely notice of the filing and presentation of the annexed petition of Bankers Trust Company and hereby waive all further notice of the hearing or application thereon, and admit the truth of all the allegations of said petition and consent to [fol. 120] the entry of the foregoing order.

Dated December 30th, 1931.

IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

FIRST REPORT OF ROBERT S. WATERS AND WILLIAM G. HEINER, RECEIVERS OF NATIONAL RADIATOR CORPORATION—Filed Jan. 2, 1932

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court:

Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner, appointed on October 9, 1931, as receivers of the above named National Radiator Corporation, submit the following first report of their activities as such receivers:

1. On October 9, 1931, pursuant to decree of this Court entered on said date at the above number, said Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner duly qualified as receivers of National Radiator Corporation and took possession of all the assets and property (except as hereinafter stated) of said National Radiator Corporation as said assets and property were on the date of said decree. An inventory, [fol. 123] and appraisement at book value, of said assets and property is hereto annexed and made part hereof.

The property of said corporation of which said receivers did not take possession is an item of $10,000.00 in cash on deposit at First National Bank, Cincinnati, Ohio. Said item appears on sheet 229 of 235 of said inventory. On demand of the receivers that said deposit be paid or credited to them, said First National Bank refused to comply, on the ground that it was the holder of $68,000.00 par value of said National Radiator Corporation's 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, due 1947, and of due and unpaid interest coupons appertaining thereto in the sum of $2,210.00 due February 1, 1931, and the further sum of $2,210.00 due August 1, 1931, which overdue and unpaid coupons, in the aggregate sum of $4,420.00, were an offset to said deposit. On the 8th day of December, 1931, the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division, in Flershem et al., as the Reorganization Committee, etc., v. National Radiator Corporation, In Equity No. 779, adjudicated that the amount of said interest coupons was an offset as claimed, and said court thereupon ordered said bank to deliver to the receivers said overdue and previously unpaid interest coupons and, in cash, $5,580.00. Said coupons have been delivered to said receivers and the sum of $5,580.00 paid to them by said bank pursuant to said adjudication and order; but $4,420.00 of said deposit has never come into the possession of said receivers.

[fol. 124] 2. Said Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner have been appointed, and have duly qualified, as ancillary receivers of said National Radiator Corporation in the following jurisdictions in ancillary causes pending in the below mentioned courts between the parties to this cause:

Appointing court	Date of appointment
United States District Court for the District of New Jersey	October 9, 1931
United States District Court, District of Massachusetts	October 20, 1931
United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division	October 22, 1931
United States District Court for the Western District of New York	October 23, 1931
United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division	October 23, 1931
United States District Court for the District of Maryland	November 5, 1931
United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia	November 13, 1931
Supreme Court of the District of Columbia	November 30, 1931
United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York	December 24, 1931

[fol. 125] Robert S. Waters and Robert H. Richards, Jr., were appointed receivers of said National Radiator Corporation by the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware on October 12, 1931, in an action instituted in said Court of Chancery by the complainants in this cause, and said Robert S. Waters and Robert H. Richards, Jr., have duly qualified as such receivers.

J. M. Feigenbaum was appointed ancillary receiver of said National Radiator Corporation by the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis, Missouri, on the 18th day of November, 1931, in an action instituted against said National Radiator Corporation by one Abraham Ring as the owner of 50 shares of the common stock of said corporation. Said appointment was without previous notice to either said corporation or your receivers. Your receivers are informed and believe that the territorial jurisdiction of said Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis does not extend beyond the limits of said City of St. Louis. Immediately following said appointment, said Feigenbaum ordered your receivers' agent, who was at the time in possession of the premises and property of National Radiator Corporation in the City of St. Louis, to vacate said premises and to turn over said property to said Feigenbaum, and since that time said Feigenbaum has been in possession of said premises and property.

Upon notice of said appointment, said receivers caused the action instituted by said Ring to be removed from said [fol. 126] Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis to the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri and caused motion to be made in said United States District Court for the discharge of said J. M. Feigenbaum as ancillary receiver, upon the ground that the petition of said Ring, which constitutes the basis of his prayer for the appointment of an ancillary receiver, does not state a good cause of action in equity. Said proceeding and said motion are still pending before said United States District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri.

3. Pursuant to said decree of this Court entered October 9, 1931, and pursuant also to corresponding orders and decrees entered in the various ancillary causes hereinabove referred to, said receivers have carried on, and are continuing to carry on, the business of said National Radiator Corporation, in accordance with the customs of the business and the trade in which said corporation is engaged. The properties of said corporation have been and are being operated as a unit or entirety.

The manufacturing plants at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, and New Castle, Pennsylvania, have been and are in operation. The manufacturing plants at Framingham, Massachusetts, Trenton, New Jersey, Dunkirk, New York, and Chicago, Illinois, were not in operation at the date of said decree, and said receivers have not caused them, as yet, to resume production.

It has been the practice of said corporation and of other concerns in the same business to increase manufacturing [fol. 127] operations during the winter months, the winter being the season of greater production, and it is under advisement by said receivers, unless otherwise directed by this Court and if business prospects commend such course, to re-open the manufacturing plant of said corporation at Trenton, New Jersey, early in the year 1932.

The latest date as of which final and definite figures on operations are available is November 30, 1931.

During the period October 9, 1931 to November 30, 1931, the cash receipts of said receivers were $949,493.21 and their cash expenditures were $536,984.33

On the accrual basis of accounting, without deduction for depreciation and without payment of interest on the funded indebtedness of said corporation, the operations of said receivers for the period October 9, 1931 to November 30, 1931, resulted in a loss of $14,630.44, but during said period your receivers carried an expense of $46,548.21 for maintenance of the above mentioned non-operating plants, which expense has been charged in computing said figure $14,630.44; and, on the same basis of accounting, with depreciation deductions taken at the rates heretofore used by said corporation but with no deduction for interest on said funded indebtedness, the operation of said business for said period resulted in a loss of $20,362,88 for the last twenty-three days of October and $65,895.07 for the calendar month of November. On the same basis, the loss of the company [fol. 128] for September, 1931, was $38,547.12 and for August, 1931, $65,376.05.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

Robert S. Waters, William G. Heiner, Receivers.

INTERVENING PETITION OF BANKERS TRUST COMPANY—Filed Jan. 9, 1931

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court, sitting in equity:

Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, files this its Intervening Petition in this cause against the defendant, Na-

[fol. 129] tional Radiator Corporation, and respectfully shows to this Honorable Court and alleges:

1. At all times hereinafter mentioned your petitioner was and still is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York with a principal office in the City and State of New York.

2. Heretofore and on or about October 9, 1931, an order was entered in this cause appointing Robert S. Waters, of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, and William G. Heiner, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, receivers in this cause of said defendant and of all and singular its properties, business and assets described in said order, to which order reference is hereby made with like effect as if herein set forth in full.

The following is a list of the various courts in which orders have been entered appointing said Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner as receivers of the defendant in the primary cause or ancillary causes pending in said courts between the parties hereto, and of the respective dates of such appointment:

	Date of appointment
United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania (Primary Cause)	October 9, 1931
District of New Jersey	October 9, 1931
District of Massachusetts	October 20, 1931
Southern District of Ohio, Western Division	October 22, 1931
Western District of New York	October 23, 1931
Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division	October 23, 1931
[fol. 130] District of Maryland	November 5, 1931
Eastern District of Virginia	November 13, 1931
Eastern District of New York	December 24, 1931
and Supreme Court of the District of Columbia	November 30, 1931

Your petitioner is informed and believes and therefore alleges that said Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner, subsequent to their appointment as primary receivers and ancillary receivers, have qualified as such by filing bonds in accordance with the terms of the orders above mentioned, and as such receivers are now in possession of substantially all of the properties, business and assets of the defendant and have been and now are carrying on the business of the defendant.

3. Your petitioner is advised of the contents of the original Bill of Complaint filed in this cause and is informed and believes that all of the allegations set forth in said Bill of Complaint are true, and they are hereby adopted and re-alleged by your petitioner, with like effect as if the same were again set forth at length herein, except that, with respect to the allegations contained in Paragraph Seventh of the Bill of Complaint, your petitioner is informed and believes and therefore alleges that, of the $12,000,000 aggregate principal amount of 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures (hereinafter called the "Debentures") of the defendant heretofore issued as alleged in the Bill of Complaint, $158,000 principal amount thereof have been purchased and acquired by the defendant and have been cancelled and delivered to your petitioner by the defendant or [fol. 131] the receivers, so that, at the date hereof, $10,673,000 principal amount of Debentures are outstanding in the hands of divers persons who are the owners and holders thereof for value, and said Debentures are now in all respects valid and outstanding obligations of the defendant.

Upon information and belief, that, of the $10,673,000 principal amount of Debentures outstanding as aforesaid, $10,106,000 principal amount, at or prior to the date hereof, have been deposited with Bankers Trust Company, as Depositary under the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization referred to in the Bill of Complaint in this cause, together with the appurtenant coupons for interest due on February 1, 1931 and all subsequent interest dates, and the complainants in this cause are now the holders and owners of said Debentures and coupons; and the remaining $567,000 principal amount, together with the coupons for said interest, are, at the date hereof, in the hands of divers persons other than the complainants in this cause, except that certain coupons representing interest in the amount of $2,210 due on February 1, 1931, and interest in the amount of $2,210 due on August 1, 1931, a total of $4,420, have been paid, through the application, by way of set-off, of moneys of the defendant which were on deposit with the holder of said coupons.

4. Section 3 of Article V of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927 (hereinafter called the "Indenture") under which the Debentures were issued, provides as follows:

[fol. 132] "Section 3. In case

(a) default shall be made in the payment of any instalment of interest on any of the debentures when the same shall become payable, as therein or herein expressed; or

then, upon demand of the Trustee, the Company will pay to the Trustee, for the benefit of the holders and registered owners of the debentures and coupons then outstanding, the whole amount that then shall have become due and payable on all such debentures and coupons then outstanding, for interest or principal, or both, or will pay to the Trustee all payments then due in respect of the sinking fund, as the case may be, with interest in each instance at the rate of six and one-half per centum (6½%) per annum, upon the overdue principal, instalments of interest or sinking fund payments; and, in addition thereto, such further amount as shall be sufficient to cover the costs and expenses of collection, including reasonable compensation to the Trustee, its agents, attorneys and counsel, and any expense or liabilities incurred by the Trustee hereunder; and, in case the Company shall fail to pay the same forthwith upon such demand, the Trustee, in its own name and as trustee of an express trust, shall be entitled to recover judg-[fol. 133] ment for the whole amount so due and unpaid and to enforce such judgment in accordance with law."

5. In Section 5 of Article V of the Indenture, it is further provided that, upon written request of the holders or registered owners of at least one-fourth in principal amount of the Debentures at the time outstanding, and upon being indemnified to its satisfaction, if the Trustee shall so require, it shall be the duty of the Trustee to take all steps needful for the protection and enforcement of its rights and the rights of the holders or registered owners of the Debentures, whether by judicial proceedings or otherwise, as the Trustee, being advised by counsel, shall deem most expedient in the interest of the holders or registered owners of the Debentures.

6. The defendant did not make payment of any part of the sum of $346,872.50 required to be paid on February 1, 1931 or any part of the same sum required to be paid on August 1, 1931, as interest on the $10,673,000 principal amount of the Debentures then and now outstanding and due as provided in said Debentures, although the coupons belonging to said Debentures representing the interest due on said respective dates, or some thereof, were duly presented for payment and payment duly demanded, and such failure constitued an event of default under the terms of said Indenture.

7. Said event of default having occurred as aforesaid, the holders of more than one-fourth in principal amount of the Debentures then and now outstanding requested your petitioner to take all steps needful for the protection and en- [fol. 134] forcement of the rights of the holders or registered owners of the Debentures, whether by judicial proceedings or otherwise, and your petitioner, pursuant to said request, did thereafter demand payment of said instalments of interest, and no part thereof being paid, did, with the leave of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania first obtained, in its own name and as trustee of an express trust, commence an action in assumpsit in said Court against the defendant entitled "Bankers Trust Company, Trustee, Plaintiff, vs. National Radiator Corporation, Defendant, No. 6776 Law" and in said action obtained judgment on October 13, 1931 against said defendant in the amount of $713,944.38 for the instalments of interest due February 1, 1931 and August 1, 1931, respectively, on all of the Debentures then and now outstanding, with interest.

8. Section 2 of Article V of the Indenture contains, among other things, the provision that, in case default shall be made in the payment of any instalment of interest on any of the Debentures when the same shall become payable as in the Debentures or in the Indenture expressed, then, the Trustee may, in its discretion, and, upon request in writing by the holders of at least one-fourth in principal amount of the Debentures then outstanding, shall, declare the principal of and interest on all the Debentures, if not already due, to be forthwith due and payable, and upon such declaration the same shall become due and payable immediately. Pursuant to this provision, your petitioner did, on December 24, 1931, pursuant to written request of [fol. 135] the holders of more than one-fourth in principal amount of the oustanding Debentures, duly declare the principal of and interest on all the Debentures outstanding to be immediately due and payable and upon such declaration the same did become forthwith due and payable.

9. The principal of and interest upon the outstanding Debentures having become immediately due and payable as aforesaid, and the defendant having defaulted in the payment of the same on due presentation for payment of certain of the Debentures, your petitioner did, pursuant to the request of the holders of more than one-fourth in principal amount of the Debentures then and now outstanding, demand payment of said principal and interest, and no part there being paid, did in its own name and as trustee of an express trust, with the leave of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania first obtained, commence an action in assumpsit in said Court against the defendant, entitled "Bankers Trust Company, Trustee, Plaintiff, vs. National Radiator Corporation, Defendant, No. 6851 Law," and in said action obtained judgment on December 30, 1931, against said defendant in the sum of $10,948,597.33, for the $10,673,000 principal amount of Debentures outstanding, with interest on said Debentures from August 1, 1931, to December 24, 1931, in the sum of $275,597.33, plus $11,698.50 representing interest on said total sum of $10,948,597.33 from December 24, 1931, to the date of said judgment, making the total amount of said judgment $10,960,295.83.

[fol. 136] 10. Upon information and belief, that the cash and other immediately realizable assets of the defendant are wholly insufficient for the payment of the indebtedness of the defendant now due, and the defendant is presently unable to pay or obtain an amount sufficient for the payment of the indebtedness now due and owing by the defendant.

11. Your petitioner has no adequate remedy at law and has relief only in a court of equity.

Wherefore your petitioner prays:

1. That said judgments obtained by your petitioner, as hereinbefore alleged, be enforced in this cause, and that this Court ascertain and decree the rights of your petitioner, as Trustee and judgment creditor, and the rights of the holders of the 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of National Radiator Corporation and the coupons thereto appertaining.

2. That, at such time as your petitioner shall hereafter apply therefor, a decree or judgment be rendered in this cause in favor of your petitioner, as Trustee as aforesaid, for the use and benefit of the holders of the 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of National Radiator Corporation, in an amount equivalent to the aggregate of said judgments, with interest, together with all moneys due and to become due and payable under and by virtue of said Indenture dated August 1, 1927, and a sum sufficient to pay the costs and expenses of this action, and the compensation, costs and expenses of your petitioner, as a party plaintiff herein, and of its agents, attorneys and counsel, and any and all [fol. 137] expenses and liabilities incurred by your petitioner as Trustee under the Indenture; and that, in default of the payment of the sum so decreed or adjudged to be payable, the properties and assets and business of the defendant National Radiator Corporation may be ordered to be sold as an entirety, with such exceptions and in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as this Court shall deem just and equitable and as your petitioner shall request, and that any such order shall make proper and suitable provision for the protection of all equities, rights, priorities, claims and liens of the creditors of the defendant and shall provide for the sale of the properties, assets and business of the defendant, subject to or free and clear from any and all liens or encumbrances, and that the proceeds of any such sale may be distributed, by and under the direction of this Court, among the creditors of the defendant and such others, if any, as this Court may adjudicate.

3. And your petitioner joins in each and every prayer for relief contained in the original Bill of Complaint in this cause, and further prays that your petitioner may have such other and further relief in the premises as the nature and circumstances of this case may require and as to this Honorable Court may seem meet.

IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

PETITION OF FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF CINCINNATI FOR LEAVE TO INTERVENE AS PARTY DEFENDANT—Filed Feb. 17, 1932

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court:

The petition of the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, respectfully represents:

(1) Your petitioner is the owner and holder of Sixty-eight Thousand ($68,000.00) Dollars par value 6½% sinking fund gold debentures of the National Radiator Corporation, the defendant in the above entitled cause, and that it has been the owner and holder of such debentures since approximately the date of original issuance in 1927.

(2) Your petitioner is acquainted with the contents and substance of the Bill of Complaint in the above entitled case, and is further acquainted with the decree of this Court, dated October 9, 1931, appointing receivers of all the property and assets of said corporation, in accordance with the relief prayed for in said Bill of Complaint.

(3) On or about February 11, 1931, the corporation hav- [fol. 144] ing defaulted in the payment of its February 1, 1931, interest coupons on said bonds, a so-called Reorganization Committee (composed of Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters) sponsored by the company's management, formulated and issued a Plan and Agreement of Reorganization, and urged bondholders to deposit their bonds in acceptance of this plan. A copy of this plan and agreement is attached to the original Bill of Complaint. As appears by the Ninth paragraph of said Bill of Complaint Frank B. Cahn was later elected a member of the Reorganization Committee.

(4) The original complainants herein, Flershem, Cornell, Waters and Cahn, as the so-called Reorganization Committee and proponents of the plan of reorganization attached to their Bill of Complaint, filed their said Bill of Complaint for the purpose of bringing about the receivership herein as a step in effectuating said plan, notwithstanding the opposition to such plan of your petitioner and of the other dissenting bondholders who have not seen fit to subscribe to such plan. There is no party to the suit whose interests are similar to the interests of your petitioner and the other dissenting bondholders. The interests of the complainants, who brought about as aforesaid the receivership for the purposes above stated, are directly opposed to the interests of your petitioner. The interests of your petitioner as a bondholder, in the proper liquidation of the assets of the corporation, will not be adequately or properly protected unless your petitioner is permitted to intervene as a party defendant for the purpose of the protection of its own interests.

[fol. 145] Wherefore your petitioner, First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, for the purpose of protecting its rights and the rights of bondholders similarly situated who may join in this intervention and contribute to the expense thereof, asks this Court to make and cause to be entered an order permitting your petitioner to intervene herein as a party defendant.

Order to Show Cause

And now, to-wit, this 17th day of February, 1932, the foregoing petition being presented in open court, upon consideration thereof it is ordered that said petition be filed and that a rule is hereby granted upon National Radiator Corporation, defendant, Bankers Trust Company, intervenor and upon Rudolph B. Flersheim, Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters and Frank B. Cahn, Reorganization Committee, complainants to show cause why the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, should not be permitted to intervene in these proceedings to No. 2558, In Equity, as an additional party defendant, returnable Feb. 29, 1932.

Answer of Bankers Trust Company, Intervening Complainant, to Petition of First National Bank of Cincinnati—Filed March 1, 1932

Bankers Trust Company, Trustee, intervening complainant in the above proceedings, herein referred to as the [fol. 147] respondent, makes answer to the petition of the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, and the rule granted thereon for leave to intervene in these proceedings as an additional party defendant, as follows:

1. Paragraph 1 of said petition is admitted.

2. Paragraph 2 of said petition is admitted.

3. Paragraph 3 of said petition is admitted, except respondent has no knowledge as to whether the said Reorganization Committee was sponsored by the company's management.

4. Answering Paragraph 4 of said petition, respondent avers that, as trustee under the Indenture under which said 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of National Radiator Corporation were issued, it obtained a judgment against said corporation on October 13, 1931 in behalf of the holders of all of the outstanding debentures, for interest on said debentures due February 1, 1931 and August 1, 1931, in the amount of $713,944.38 including interest to date of judgment, at No. 6776 Law in this Court.

Respondent avers that on December 30, 1931 respondent also obtained a judgment against said corporation in behalf of the holders of all the outstanding debentures for the principal sum thereof, and accrued interest to date of judgment, in the amount of $10,960,295.83 at No. 6851 Law in this Court.

Respondent avers that subsequent to the entry of the [fol. 148] said judgments, to-wit on January 9, 1932, respondent as trustee of an express trust under the said Indenture, after leave of court duly obtained, intervened in these equity proceedings as an additional complainant, in behalf of the holders of all of the outstanding debentures; and respondent filed of record an intervening petition, the prayer whereof was (inter alia) for the enforcement of the said judgments obtained by the respondent in behalf of the holders of all of the said debentures.

Respondent avers that since such intervention in these proceedings, it has endeavored by the exercise of the best judgment of its officers and solicitors to protect the interests of the holders of all of the said debentures and that it will continue to do so.

Further answering said petition:

5. On advice of counsel, respondent denies the right of petitioner to intervene in these proceedings as a party defendant on the grounds that the said petition contains no averments showing petitioner to be a proper or necessary party defendant, and that said petition fails to aver petitioner's intention to contest the allegations of the Bill of Complaint and those of the Intervening Petition of the Bankers Trust Company.

6. Respondent makes no objection to the petitioner appearing and being heard in these proceedings from time to time, if petitioner deems itself to have interests not common to other holders of debentures and deems it necessary to have such interests specially protected, but such [fol. 149] appearance and hearing to be only in subordination to and in recognition of the propriety of the main proceedings as provided in Equity Rule 37.

[fol. 150] IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

ANSWER OF THE COMPLAINANTS TO THE PETITION OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF CINCINNATI FOR LEAVE TO INTERVENE AS A PARTY DEFENDANT—Filed March 2, 1932

The complainants in this cause, answering the petition of First National Bank of Cincinnati verified December 26, 1931, for leave to intervene herein as a party defendant, say:

1. The complainants admit the allegations contained in paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of said petition.

2. Answering the allegations contained in paragraph 4 of said petition, the complainants admit that they filed the Bill of Complaint in this cause as a step in effectuating the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization dated February 11, 1931, but the complainants deny the intimation contained in said paragraph 4 that said Plan and Agreement is opposed by "the other dissenting bondholders who have not seen fit to subscribe to such plan" but on the contrary the complainants are informed and believe and therefore allege that the great majority of the holders of Debentures of National Radiator Corporation who have not seen fit to subscribe to said Plan have omitted to do so for reasons other than any positive opposition to said Plan, and so far as complainants are aware, expressed opposition to said Plan has emanated only from said First National Bank of Cincinnati and a few other holders of a limited amount of said Debentures.

[fol. 151] Further answering the allegation of said paragraph 4 of said Petition, the complainants allege that Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee under the Indenture dated August 1, 1927 under which said Debentures were issued, and as the holder of judgments for the entire amount due and owing on all said Debentures now outstanding, for both principal and interest, has filed its Intervening Petition in this cause as a party plaintiff for the purpose of enforcing said judgments and ascertaining and decreeing the rights of all holders of said outstanding Debentures; and for further relief for the use and benefit of all holders of said Debentures, as prayed for in said Intervening Petition. Under the terms of said Indenture under which said Debentures were issued, Bankers Trust Company is constituted the trustee for all holders of said Debentures, and said Petition of First National Bank of Cincinnati contains no allegations whatsoever showing why the interest of said Bank will not be adequately or properly protected by said Bankers Trust Company as trustee as aforesaid, and consequently said Petition shows no reason why said First National Bank of Cincinnati should be permitted to intervene as a party defendant in this cause as it is well settled that when a trustee for bondholders is a party to a suit to enforce the bonds, the trustee represents all the bondholders and the latter will not be permitted to intervene unless a showing is made that the trustee has an interest hostile to the bondholders or is otherwise guilty of fraud or collusion, or of bad faith.

[fol. 152] Furthermore, the complainants allege that said First National Bank of Cincinnati should not be permitted to intervene as a defendant in this cause because its said Petition shows no reason why it should appear in this cause in the capacity of a defendant. Said Petition does not show said First National Bank of Cincinnati has or intends to file any answer or defense in these proceedings, and it is a well settled rule of practice in federal courts of equity that a petition to be permitted to intervene as a defendant must be accompanied by the answer which the petitioner proposes to file in the interests of an orderly administration of the suit and to the end that the court may judge of the merits of the defense. As said Petition for intervention was verified on December 26, 1931, said First National Bank of Cincinnati has had more than two months to formulate an answer or defense or other pleading which it may desire to file in this cause. In view of the matters hereinbefore alleged and in view of the fact that an intervention of this character rests entirely within the discretion of the court, the complainants submit that said Petition should be denied.

Wherefore complainants pray that said Petition of First National Bank of Cincinnati for leave to intervene in this cause as a party defendant be denied.

[fol. 160] Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence this original counterpart of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927 between National Radiator Corporation and Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee.

(Copy of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, between National Radiator Corporation and Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 1, hereinafter in this Deposition referred to as the "Indenture.")

Q. Do you know under the laws of what State National Radiator Corporation is organized?

A. I produce from the files of Bankers Trust Company a certified copy of the Certificate of Incorporation of National Radiator Corporation, showing it to have been organized in 1927 under the laws of the State of Delaware.

Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence this certified copy of the Certificate of Incorporation of National Radiator Corporation.

(Copy of the Certificate of Incorporation of National Radiator Corporation received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 3.)

Q. What do the records of Bankers Trust Company show as to the due authorization by National Radiator Corporation of the Indenture?

A. I produce from the files of Bankers Trust Company a certified copy of the By-laws of National Radiator Corporation and certified excerpts from minutes of meetings of its Board of Directors held and taking action as follows:

First. August 1, 1927, to authorize the creation of an issue of its 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures in the principal sum of $16,000,000.

Second. August 27, 1927, to approve the form of temporary Debentures of this issue.

Third. August 29, 1927, to approve the form of the Indenture.

[fol. 162] Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence this copy of By-laws and these certified excerpts of minutes.

(Copies of the By-laws of National Radiator Corporation and of the certificates of Vincent Westrup, Secretary of National Radiator Corporation, to excerpts from the minutes of meetings of the Board of Directors of National Radiator Corporation, held August 1, August 27 and August 29, 1927, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibits 4, 5, 6 and 7—a copy of the Indenture constituting a part of said Exhibit 7 being in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 1.)

Q. Will you state when and under what circumstances Debentures were issued under the Indenture?

A. Contemporaneously with the execution of the Indenture, that is, on August 30, 1927, there was duly executed by National Radiator Corporation and authenticated and delivered by Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, an interim temporary Debenture in the sum of $1,935,000. On the same date, this temporary Debenture was surrounded and cancelled and $12,000,000 principal amount of temporary Debentures were duly executed by National Radiator Corporation and authenticated and delivered by Bankers Trust Company, upon the written order of National Radiator Corporation and against the written receipt of Bankers Trust Company as Escrow Depositary for National Radiator Corporation, which written order and receipt I herewith produce from the files of Bankers Trust Company.

[fol. 163] Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence this written order and receipt.

(Copy of the order dated August 30, 1927, for the issuance of Debentures and of the receipt for the delivery of said Debentures received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibits 8 and 9.)

Q. Can you produce from the files of Bankers Trust Company a specimen of the temporary Debentures of National Radiator Corporation of the form issued?

A. I have here such a specimen.

Mr. Israels: I offer the same in evidence.

(Specimen of temporary Debentures of National Radiator Corporation received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 10.)

Q. What disposition was made of these temporary Debentures?

A. In due course these temporary Debentures were all surrendered and cancelled and in their stead a total of $12,000,000 principal amount of definitive Debentures were issued. I have here a specimen of these definitive Debentures.

Mr. Israels: I offer the same in evidence.

(Specimen of definitive Debentures of National Radiator Corporation received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 11, said Debentures hereinafter in this Deposition being referred to as the "Debentures.")

[fol. 164] Q. Were any additional Debentures issued?

A. No.

Q. Have any supplemental Indentures been executed and delivered between National Radiator Corporation and Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee?

A. No.

Q. Do the records of Bankers Trust Company show what disposition has been made of the $12,000,000 principal amount of Debentures which were issued?

A. Yes. Through the operation of the sinking fund provided for in the Indenture, by semi-annual sinking fund payments made by National Radiator Corporation up to February 1, 1931, a total of $1,169,000 principal amount of the Debentures were retired and cancelled. National Radiator Corporation is, however, in default under the terms of Section 1 of Article III of the Indenture in that it has failed to make the semi-annual sinking fund payment of $201,918.50 required to be paid by it prior to August 1, 1931, and the semi-annual sinking fund payment of $207,996.00, required to be paid by it prior to February 1, 1932. Bankers Trust Company received, however, from National Radiator Corporation some months ago $158,000 principal amount of Debentures which had been held in its treasury. These Debentures were first marked cancelled by National Radiator Corporation and have since been duly cancelled by Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee.

Q. How many Debentures, therefore, now remain outstanding?

A. $10,673,000 principal amount.

Q. Where are the principal and interest of the Debentures payable?

[fol. 165] A. At the paying agency of National Radiator Corporation in Chicago and at its paying agencies in New York City.

Q. What are its paying agencies in New York City?

A. Bankers Trust Company and J. & W. Seligman & Co.

Q. Will you please state when payment of interest was last made by National Radiator Corporation on its outstanding Debentures?

A. August 1, 1930.

Q. Will you please state the circumstances surrounding the subsequent default of National Radiator Corporation in the payment of interest on the Debentures?

A. Yes. National Radiator Corporation customarily deposited with Bankers Trust Company funds for the payment of interest several days before the required interest payment dates, which are February 1 and August 1 in each year. These funds were not forthcoming prior to February 1, 1931, and on that date there were no funds with Bankers Trust Company nor, I am reliably informed, with the paying agency in Chicago, for the payment of interest due on that date. As a matter of fact, Bankers Trust Company received on February 1, 1931, a certified copy of resolutions of the Board of Directors of National Radiator Corporation adopted at its meeting held January 31, 1931, evidencing its determination not to pay interest on its outstanding Debentures February 1, 1931, which I have here. The records of Bankers Trust Company show that no funds for the pay- [fol. 166] ment of interest on the Debentures have at any time since February 1 been deposited with it, either for the payment of interest due Febuary 1, 1931, or for the payment of interest which has subsequently become due August 1, 1931.

Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence a certified copy of the resolutions referred to.

(Certified copy of the resolutions of the Board of Directors of National Radiator Corporation, adopted at its meeting held January 31, 1931, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 12.)

Q. Were any coupons appertaining to the Debentures presented for payment?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you state the circumstances under which such coupons were presented?

A. A certain number of coupons, having been deposited by the holders thereof in their respective banks for collection, were presented in the usual course and some coupons were presented directly to Bankers Trust Company for payment on as well as after February 1, 1931. On February 13, 1931, however, Bankers Trust Company was appointed Depositary under a Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation, which Plan and Agreement permitted the deposit under it of Debentures only if accompanied by the February 1, 1931, and subsequent coupons. I produce from the files of Bankers Trust Company an original counterpart of this Plan and Agreement which has been signed and delivered to Bankers Trust Company by the members of the Reorganization Committee named in it.

[fol. 167] Mr. Israels: I offer this original counterpart in evidence.

(Copy of the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 13, hereinafter in this Deposition referred to as the "Reorganization Plan and Agreement.")

By minute dated September 17, 1931, an original counterpart of which is on file with Bankers Trust Company, Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters, as the Reorganization Committee constituted and appointed by the Reorganization Plan and Agreement, added Frank B. Cahn as an additional member.

Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence an original counterpart of the minute dated September 17, 1931, just referred to.

(Original counterpart of the Reorganization Committee's minute dated September 17, 1931, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 14,)

At the close of business October 2, 1931, there was on deposit with Bankers Trust Company, as Depositary under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement, $8,750,000 principal amount of the Debentures. At the close of business October 7, 1931, there was on deposit with Bankers Trust Company, as Depositary under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement, $8,783,000 principal amount of the Debentures. At the close of business December 23, 1931, there [fol. 168] was on deposit with Bankers Trust Company, as Depositary under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement, $10,104,000 principal amount of the Debentures. Upon instructions received by letter dated October 1, 1931, from Messrs. Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell; John H. Waters and Frank B. Cahn, as the Reorganization Committee constituted and acting under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement, Bankers Trust Company, as Depositary, on behalf of this Reorganization Committee, by letter dated October 2, 1931, presented for payment coupons due February 1, 1931, aggregating $264,082.50 and like coupons due August 1, 1931, aggregating $284,310.00, appertaining to the Debentures and made demand of National Radiator Corporation for the payment of the same. That same day payment was declined by Bankers Trust Company, as paying agent for National Radiator Corporation, for the reason that there were no funds on deposit with it with which to make such payment. I produce from the files of Bankers Trust Company copies of the Reorganization Committee's letter dated October 1, 1931, addressed to Bankers Trust Company, and of Bankers Trust Company's letters dated October 2, 1931, addressed to that institution as paying agent for National Radiator Corporation and addressed to National Radiator Corporation.

Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence these letters.

(Copies of the Reorganization Committee's letter dated October 1, 1931, addressed to Bankers Trust Company, and of Bankers Trust Company's letters dated October 2, 1931, [fol. 169] addressed to said institution as paying agent for National Radiator Corporation and addressed to said Corporation, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibits 15, 16 and 17.)

Q. Has Bankers Trust Company itself taken any steps to enforce the provisions of the Indenture?

A. Yes. Upon instructions received by letter dated October 8, 1931, from Messrs. Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters and Frank B. Cahn, as the Reorganization Committee constituted and acting under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement on behalf of the holders of $8,783,000 principal amount of the Debentures then on deposit with Bankers Trust Company, as Depositary, Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, by written demand dated October 8, 1931, receipt of which by National Radiator Corporation was acknowledged October 9, 1931, demanded of National Radiator Corporation the payment of the two instalments of interest due February 1 and August 1, 1931, on its outstanding Debentures, with interest on such overdue instalments of interest at the rate of 6½% per annum up to the date of payment. Bankers Trust Company also, pursuant to such instructions, as Trustee directed its solicitors to institute suit against National Radiator Corporation and has recovered judgment of the whole amount of interest on the Debentures which at the date of such judgment was unpaid. The records of Bankers Trust Company show that none of this interest has yet been paid, even though the judgment for it was obtained. I have here copies of the Reorganization Committee's letter dated October 8, 1931, addressed to Bankers [fol. 170] Trust Company and Bankers Trust Company's letter of the same date addressed to National Radiator Corporation and by it acknowledged by endorsement dated October 9, 1931, to which letters I have made reference.

Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence the copies of these letters as well as a certified copy of transcript of judgment obtained by Bankers Trust Company for interest on the Debentures.

(Copies of the Reorganization Committee's letter dated October 8, 1931, addressed to Bankers Trust Company, and Bankers Trust Company's letter of the same date, addressed to National Radiator Corporation and by it acknowledged by endorsement dated October 9, 1931, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibits 18 and 19. A copy of the certified transcript of judgment obtained by Bankers Trust Company October 13, 1931, for $713,944.38 in the action entitled "Bankers Trust Company, Trustee, Plaintiff vs. National Radiator Corporation, Defendant, No. 6776 Law," received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 20.)

Q. Has the maturity of the Debentures been accelerated —I mean, has their principal been declared due?

A. Yes. Messrs. Rudolph B. Flersham, Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters and Frank B. Cahn, as the Reorganization Committee constituted and acting under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement, on behalf of the holders of $10,092,000 aggregate principal amount of the Deben- [fol. 171] tures then on deposit with Bankers Trust Company, as Depositary, made demand upon Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, to declare the principal of the entire issue of the Debentures to be immediately due and payable; to demand of National Radiator Corporation the immediate payment of such principal; and, in the event of default in its payment, to institute an action and obtain judgment against National Radiator Corporation for the full amount of such principal, plus such interest on principal as was not represented by the judgment already obtained. I have here a copy of the Reorganization Committee's letter dated December 24, 1931, addressed to Bankers Trust Company, making such demand. By letter dated December 24, 1931, Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, acting at the request of these holders of more than one-fourth in principal amount of the Debentures then outstanding, declared the principal of and interest on all of the Debentures to be forthwith due and payable. I have here a copy of that declaration. It was duly delivered to National Radiator Corporation December 26, 1931. On December 26, 1931, the principal of the Debentures having become due by declaration, as I have just said, there was presented to Bankers Trust Company, as paying agent for National Radiator Corporation, for payment, $10,000 principal amount of the Debentures and on that date payment of these Debentures was declined by Bankers Trust Company, as such paying agent for National Radiator Corporation, for the reason that there were no funds on deposit with it with which to make such payment. I produce from the files of Bankers Trust Company copies of the letters dated December 26, 1931, addressed by the Depositary under the [fol. 172] Reorganization Plan and Agreement to Bankers Trust Company, as paying agent for National Radiator Corporation and on the same date addressed by Bankers Trust Company to National Radiator Corporation. The principal and interest of the Debentures being due, and default having been made in the payment of such principal upon presentation of certain of the Debentures for payment, Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, by letter dated December 28, 1931, receipt of which was acknowledged by National Radiator Corporation on the same date, demanded the payment by National Radiator Corporation of the principal of all the outstanding Debentures, with interest thereon to the date of payment, plus a sum to cover the costs and expenses of collection, including reasonable compensation to the Trustee, its agents, attorneys and counsel, as provided in the Indenture. No part of such sums has, however, been paid. I produce from the files of Bankers Trust Company a copy of the letter dated December 28, 1931, making this demand.

Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence this letter as well as the others referred to by Mr. Meyers.

(Copies of the Reorganization Committee's letter dated December 24, 1931, addressed to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, and of the letter of Bankers Trust Company dated December 24, 1931, addressed to National Radiator Corporation, and of the letters of Bankers Trust Company dated December 26, 1931, addressed to said institution as paying agent for National Radiator Corporation, [fol. 173] and addressed to said Corporation, and dated December 28, 1931, addressed to said Corporation and by it acknowledged by endorsement dated December 28, 1931, received in evidence as Complainant's Exhibits 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25.)

Q. Has Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, taken any further steps by reason of the instructions given it in the Reorganization Committee's letter dated December 24, 1931?

A. Yes. Bankers Trust Company, pursuant to the instructions of the Reorganization Committee, as Trustee directed its solicitors to institute suit against National Radiator Corporation for the full amount of the principal of the Debentures which had become due by declaration. In this suit Bankers Trust Company recovered judgment on December 30, 1931, against National Radiator Corporation for the $10,673,000 principal amount of the Debentures outstanding, with interest on such principal amount from August 1, 1931, to December 24, 1931, plus interest on both such principal and interest from December 24, 1931, to the date of the judgment.

Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence a certified copy of the transcript of judgment obtained by Bankers Trust Company for the principal of the Debentures.

(Certified copy of the transcript of judgment obtained by Bankers Trust Company December 30, 1931, for $10,960,295.83, in the action entitled, "Bankers Trust Company, Trustee, Plaintiff vs. National Radiator Corporation, [fol. 174] Defendant, No. 6851 Law," received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 26.)

Q. Have any other proceedings been had, at law or in equity, by Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, to enforce the payment of the Debentures or to enforce the judgments which it has obtained?

A. I am advised by our counsel that Bankers Trust Company has intervened in the proceedings instituted in the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania by Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters and Frank B. Cahn, as the Reorganization Committee constituted and acting under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement, as Complainants, against National Radiator Corporation, Defendant, and in the various proceedings ancillary to this cause.

Mr. Ludington: I offer in evidence certificates of the Clerks of Court, showing the due appointment and qualification of Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner as ancillary receivers of the property and business of National Radiator Corporation within the respective territorial jurisdictions of the Courts and on the dates which I will mention, namely:

Mr. Israels: I offer in evidence certified copies of the Intervening Petitions of Bankers Trust Company and of the Answers of National Radiator Corporation to said In[fol. 176] tervening Petitions in the various ancillary causes mentioned by Mr. Ludington, other than in the Eastern District of Missouri.

(Copies of the Intervening Petitions of Bankers Trust Company in the various ancillary causes, other than the Eastern District of Missouri, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibits 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44 and 45, and copies of the Answers of National Radiator Corporation to said Intervening Petitions received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibits 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53 and 54.)

CARL E. RESLEY, being first duly sworn, in response to oral interrogatories of counsel for complainants, deposes and says:

Direct examination.

By Mr. Ludington:

Q. Will you please state your name and residence?

A. Carl E. Resley, Johnstown, Pennsylvania.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. I am Secretary and Treasurer of National Radiator Corporation.

Q. How long have you held those offices?

A. Since August 30, 1927, except for an interval of time between January 1, 1929, and August 4, 1930. Prior to the present receivership of National Radiator Corporation I held those offices at the appointment of its Board of Directors and upon the appointment of receivers October 9, 1931, I entered into their employ and have performed the duties customarily performed by the Secretary and Treasurer.

[fol. 186] Q. In how far are you acquainted with the affairs of National Radiator Corporation?

A. As Treasurer, I have had general supervision of all records and accounts, and am conversant with the financial affairs of National Radiator Corporation, as well as with the financial transactions carried out by its receivers, since their appointment. As Secretary, I have had charge of the minute books and corporate records of National Radiator Corporation, including its property records and property accounts.

Q. At what date and where was National Radiator Corporation organized?

A. It was organized in 1927 under the laws of the State of Delaware.

Q. Will you please produce from the files of the National Radiator Company a certified copy of its Certificate of Incorporation?

Mr. Ludington: I offer in evidence this certified copy of the Certificate of Incorporation of National Radiator Corporation.

(Copy of Certificate of Incorporation of National Radiator Corporation received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 3, being the same copy attached to the Deposition of William C. Meyers, taken in this cause February 29, 1932.)

Q. In what business is National Radiator Corporation engaged?

[fol. 187] A. National Radiator Corporation is engaged principally in the business of manufacturing and selling heating appliances, round and sectional boilers, and hot water and steam radiators.

Q. Will you please state where the principal office of National Radiator Corporation is located and what properties its owns?

A. The principal office of National Radiator Corporation, other than its statutory office in the State of Delaware, is in the City of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, and a substantial part of its properties are in this State, including two manufacturing plants in the City of Johnstown and a manufacturing plant in the City of New Castle. National Radiator Corporation also owns manufacturing plants in the City of Trenton, New Jersey; in the City of Framingham, Massachusetts; in the Cities of Dunkirk and North Tonawanda, New York; and in the City of Chicago, Illinois. C.; Richmond, Virginia; and Garden City, New York; wherein are stored finished products and other property.

Q. Can you offer a detailed description of the real properties which you have mentioned?

A. I have here a document entitled "Schedule of Property Owned by National Radiator Corporation and/or its [fol. 188] Receivers," which is Schedule A to the proposed "Final Decree of Sale" which counsel have prepared and is intended to show "Property owned by National Radiators and/or the Receivers which is to be sold under the foregoing Decree."

Q. How do you know this to be an accurate description in detail of the real estate of National Radiator Corporation?

A. Because I have custody of the property records of National Radiator Corporation and of all of its deeds and leases, and I have myself checked the description of all such real estate as shown by this Schedule with those deeds and with our property records.

Mr. Ludington: I offer in evidence this Schedule of Property owned by National Radiator Corporation and/or its Receivers.

(Copy of said Schedule of Property owned by National Radiator Corporation and/or its Receivers received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 56.)

Q. Where is the greater part of the real properties of National Radiator Corporation located within the State of Pennsylvania?

A. I am acquainted with the signatures of Mr. Lawrence M. Bament and Mr. Vincent W. Westrup, whose names appear upon this counterpart as President and Secretary, respectively, of National Radiator Corporation, and I know [fol. 191] Mr. Bament to have been President and Mr. Westrup to have been Secretary of National Radiator Corporation at the time this Indenture was executed, and I know the signatures appearing on this counterpart of this Indenture to be their true respective signatures.

Q. Is the corporate seal of National Radiator Corporation affixed to this counterpart its true and proper corporate seal?

A. It is.

Mr. Ludington: I offer in evidence this original counterpart of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, between National Radiator Corporation and Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee.

(Copy of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, between National Radiator Corporation and Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 1, being the same copy attached to the Deposition of William C. Meyers, taken in this cause February 29, 1932, and in said Deposition and hereinafter in this Deposition referred to as the "Indenture.")

Q. Will you please state the principal amount of Debentures originally issued under the Indenture?

A. $12,000,000.

Q. Will you state what amount of those Debentures are now outstanding?

A. Yes. There are outstanding at the present time $10,673,000 principal amount of Debentures of National Radiator Corporation, which were issued on or about August 30, 1927, under its Indenture dated August 1, 1927, [fol. 192] made to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee. Of the $12,000,000 principal amount of Debentures originally issued $1,169,000 principal amount were delivered by National Radiator Corporation from time to time to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, for cancellation in lieu of the semi-annual sinking fund payments provided for in the Indenture. $158,000 additional principal amount of the Debentures were also purchased by National Radiator Corporation and were for a time held in its treasury. These have, however, recently, been cancelled and delivered to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, for cancellation.

Q. Will you please state under what circumstances the original issue of $12,000,000 principal amount of Debentures was made?

A. Yes, On August 30, 1927, National Radiator Corporation by its proper officers and pursuant to due authorization of its Board of Directors, executed and delivered to Bankers Trust Company for authentication, Debentures in temporary form for an aggregate principal amount of $12,000,000. These Debentures were authenticated by Bankers Trust Company as Trustee, and were then delivered to the various corporations, which at that time became constituent parts of National Radiator Corporation, in part consideration for deeds and bills of sale and assignments conveying their properties and assets to National Radiator Corporation.

Q. Are the properties which were so conveyed by those constituent corporations substantially the same as the present properties of National Radiator Corporation?

[fol. 193] A. They are, except that the fixed properties of the Utica Heater Corporation have since been sold and are no longer owned by National Radiator Corporation.

Q. Are these Debentures which you mention those which are now outstanding?

A. Yes, except that the temporary Debentures originally issued were surrendered and in their stead National Radiator Corporation duly executed and delivered to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, for authentication and delivery by it definitive Debentures of the form now outstanding, having affixed to them the coupons for interest payable February 1 and August 1 in each year, and such definitive Debentures were delivered in exchange for the temporary Debentures of the same issue.

Q. Are you acquainted with the default which has now occurred in payment of interest on the Debentures as well as their principal which has now become due by declaration?

A. I am.

Q. Has anything been paid on these Debenture since August 1, 1930?

A. No; except for a setoff claimed by The First National Bank of Cincinnati in respect of coupons due February 1 and August 1, 1931, appertaining to $68,000 principal amount of Debentures held by that institution.

Q. To what extent were these coupons paid?

A. They were paid to the extent of $4,420, by setoff against a deposit of $10,000 which National Radiator Corporation had with The First National Bank of Cincinnati.

[fol. 194] Q. Why was this setoff permitted?

A. It was ordered by the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, by an order made and entered in that Court December 8, 1931. I have here a copy of that order.

Mr. Ludington: I offer the same in evidence.

(A copy of the order made and entered December 8, 1931, in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, received in evidence as Complainants' Exhibit 57.)

Q. Do you know Mr. John H. Waters?

A. I do.

Q. How do you come to know him?

A. He has for many years been the chief executive officer of National Radiator Corporation with which I also have been connected.

Q. Do you know where he lives and whether or not he is a citizen of the State of Pennsylvania?

A. Mr. Waters is a resident of the City of Johnstown and a citizen of the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Ludington: That is all.

[fol. 195] ceedings pending in the District Court of Missouri, Eastern Division, and certified copy of the intervening petition of Bankers Trust Company filed in the same ancillary cause, and a certified copy of the answer of National Radiator Corporation to said intervening petition.

IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

PETITION OF INTERNATIONAL HEATER COMPANY FOR LEAVE TO INTERVENE—Filed March 31, 1932

The petition of International Heater Company, praying for leave to intervene in the above entitled suit, respectfully represents:

1. That your petitioner is and at all the times hereinafter mentioned was a corporation organized and existing under [fol. 196] the laws of the State of New York and having its principal business office in the City of Utica, N. Y., and that it is a citizen of the State of New York.

2. That your petitioner is the owner and holder of three promissory notes made by National Radiator Corporation, the defendant above named, for $20,000.00 each, copies of which notes are hereto annexed, marked "Exhibit A" and made a part hereof; and that your petitioner has filed a proof of claim upon said notes with the receivers in this suit, and said claim has been allowed by them in the amount of $60,000.00.

3. That your petitioner did not see the bill of complaint herein or a copy thereof until on or about March 18, 1932; that said bill of complaint contains many allegations which your petitioner is informed and believes to be untrue but which the defendant above named has not denied in its answer but has admitted; and your petitioner is informed and verily believes that such admissions are collusive and for the purpose of inducing this court to direct the receivers to follow such a procedure as will enable the complainants and defendant to carry out their so-called Reorganization Plan without regard to the defendant's creditors who are not parties to said plan.

4. That your petitioner has also learned on or about March 18, 1932, that the complainants have presented to this court a proposed decree and requested the court to direct a sale of the assets of said National Radiator Corporation practically as an entirety and in such a manner [fol. 197] as would practically destroy the rights of all creditors not parties to said so-called Reorganization Plan.

5. Upon information and belief, that the receivers herein have done nothing to protect the rights of the creditors not parties to the said Reorganization Plan; that they have had no appraisals made nor made any investigation to ascertain what the properties of the said National Radiator Corporation would sell for if sold separately; that they have had no disinterested advice, legal or otherwise; that one of the receivers is so much interested in said Reorganization Plan that he is not in a position properly to protect the rights of the creditors not parties to said plan and has made no effort to provide such protection, and that the other receiver is a lawyer and inexperienced in the business conducted by said corporation; and that the rights of your petitioner and other creditors similarly situated are therefore left entirely unrepresented and unprotected except so far as they are protected by the court; and that the court could protect the rights of your petitioner much more fairly and adequately if your petitioner were a party to this litigation and thus in a position properly to present its evidence.

6. That if the property of said National Radiator Corporation is sold practically as an entirety as now proposed by the receivers without any adequate investigation as to its value or any effort to see how they could dispose of i so as to receive the greatest amount possible, your petitioner and all creditors similarly situated will suffer a great [fol. 198] and irreparable loss, for which they have no adequate remedy at law or otherwise, and your petitioner will be deprived of its interest in the assets of said National Radiator Corporation without a hearing, without opportunity to present its evidence and without due process of law.

Wherefore your petitioner prays that it may be made a party defendant to this suit and allowed to intervene and defend the same; or that it be permitted to file a bill of intervention and have such other and further relief as may be just and equitable.

TRANSCRIPT OF OFFICIAL NOTES OF TESTIMONY—Filed June 1, 1932

And now, to-wit, Thursday, March 3, 1932, at 10:45 o'clock A. M., the above entitled matter came on to be heard, before Hon. Robert M. Gibson, Judge, at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

[fol. 201] Counsel present:

For Complainants: Messrs. Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay (by Maynard Teall, Esq.), Lawrence Bennett, Esq., and G. Franklin Ludington, Esq., of counsel.

For Defendant: H. S. Endsley, Esq.

For Bankers Trust Company, Intervenor: J. Garfield Houston, Esq.

For First National Bank of Cincinnati, Petitioner to Intervene: Messrs. Ehrich, Royall, Wheeler & Walter (by Ralph Royall, Esq.), Messrs. Baker & Watts (by Horace F. Baker, Esq., and Sidney J. Watts, Esq.).

Harriet Cole Thomas, Official Reporter.

(Mr. Teall outlines complainants' position on the issue involved herein, to the Court.)

Mr. Teall: If the Court please, we first offer the testimony taken before the Examiner, Mr. J. King Evans, appointed by your Honor to hear witnesses outside of Court.

Mr. Royall: My position is a bit anomalous, your Honor. I don't want to make it inconvenient for the other side, except I want to be protected. Now, this may or may not be objectionable. I do not understand your Honor has ruled yet upon our petition to intervene. If it is objectionable, have I, even with a status as a party here, the right to make objection? How are we going to overcome this anomalous position?

[fol. 202] (Above matter discussed informally, pro and con, by counsel and the Court.)

(Recess taken until 1:30 o'clock p. m.)

Afternoon Session

(Informal discussion on pending matter continued.)

Whereupon the following order was made by the Court:

"Order Making First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, Party Defendant

And now, to-wit, this 3rd day of March, 1932, the petition of First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, verified December 26, 1931, and filed herein on February 17, 1932, having come on to be heard, and the Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, and the complainants and the defendant having consented in open Court to the granting of the prayer of said petition and to the making of this order, now, therefore, upon consideration thereof, on motion of counsel for petitioner.

It is ordered that the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, be and it is hereby made a party defendant to this cause, but in subordination to and in recognition of the propriety of the main proceeding.

Per Curiam.

G."

[fol. 203] Testimony of E. F. Wainwright

E. F. Wainwright, a witness produced on behalf of complainants, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Mr. Wainwright, what is your occupation?

A. Bond salesman with H. M. Bilsbee & Company.

Q. How long have you been in that business?

A. About three and a half years.

Q. Do you keep in touch with the market value of bonds and stocks and other securities that are bought and sold on the Exchange and on the open market?

A. I do.

Q. Are you familiar with the debentures of the National Radiator Corporation?

A. Fairly familiar, yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not, if you know, those debentures are listed on the New York Stock Exchange?

A. They are.

Q. And have been for how long, or approximately how long?

A. Approximately since their issue in 1927.

Q. Have you examined into the records and informed yourself of the prices at which those debentures had sold on the New York Stock Exchange over a period of time?

A. I have.

Q. What period of time?

[fol. 204] A. Checked back through to around the middle of 1930, that is, in specific months; and prior to that, I have the general approximate price of them.

Q. Down to the present time?

A. Correct.

Q. Well, will you give us the information and knowledge you had as to the selling price of these debentures on the Exchange from, say, the middle of 1930, when you began your examination, down to the present time?

Mr. Royall: I object to that, if your Honor please. It is too well known for argument that when once a receivership has been had, market value of securities ceases to be a value of the property; it is immediately disparaged by the receivership. Courts in receivership proceedings in protecting the stockholders do not take market values as affected by a receivership. They are not a normal value. I object to the question.

The Court: The market value is under the disparagement of the receivership now, isn't it? Our main inquiry now, as I take it, is as to what they are worth.

Mr. Royall: Quite true, what they are worth. But the question of what securities may sell for on the stock exchange after receivership is not a criterion of the value of properties in receivership.

[fol. 205] The Court: That is true. I will receive it over the objection, and note an exception.

A. Approximately the middle of 1930, these bonds sold around 20. They dropped in the latter part of 1930 to a low of 14, and had a high in 1930, in the latter part of the year, up to 25. In 1931 they reached a low of 11 and a high of 25⅞. And up to the present time in 1932 they have had a high of 14, and a low of 8. That, of course you understand, means $80 per $1,000 bond.

Cross-examination.

Mr. Royall:

Q. Have you investigated to see what the prices were earlier than in December of 1930?

A. Yes, sir; I can give you an approximate market value of that.

Q. Can you go back to the issue price in 1927?

A. The issue price was originally par.

Q. They were marketed at the issue at that price?

A. I presume so.

Q. Well, don't your investigations lead you to believe so? The same kind of investigation that you testified to on your direct examination—you could base a reply upon that, could you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your reply is that they did sell in August, 1927, at par. Is that right?

A. That is correct.

[fol. 206] TESTIMONY OF ROBERT S. WATERS

ROBERT S. WATERS, a witness produced on behalf of complainants, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Mr. Waters, you are one of the two receivers of the National Radiator Corporation?

A. I am.

Q. And what was the date of your appointment?

A. October 9, 1931.

Q. Mr. William G. Heiner is the other receiver?

A. He is.

Q. State whether or not you and Mr. Heiner are receivers in various ancillary jurisdictions also?

A. We are.

Q. Prior to your appointment as a receiver, were you connected with the company?

A. I was, yes.

Q. For how long?

A. Since its organization in 1927.

Q. What was the nature of your connection with it prior to receivership?

A. I was vice-president and general manager of manufacture.

Q. You said the company was organized in 1927?

A. It was.

Q. Will you give us in a general way the component elements of the new company that was organized at that time? [fol. 207] A. You mean by that what the plants consisted of that were put in the organization?

Q. I mean the companies that were combined into this company?

A. The old National Radiator Company, Guerney Heater Company, the Niagara Boiler & Radiator Company, Utica Heater Company, Continental Heater Company, Union Radiator Company.

Q. Now, what, in a general way, is the business of this concern?

A. Manufacturing and selling of boilers and radiators for heating purposes.

Q. The manufactured goods that you may have on hand at any time, do they have distinctive characteristics, or are all radiation and all boilers of all manufacturers alike in a general way?

A. No; each manufacturer's product is distinctive in type and design, usually to produce the same result, that is, from the standpoint of heating.

Q. If you know, state whether or not your radiation would be interchangeable with radiation of other concerns in the same business?

A. No, it would not.

Q. Now, where does most of your radiation go—into buildings?

A. The majority of it is sold for residential house heating purposes.

Q. What percentage, if you can tell us, of your product goes into residential buildings?

A. I should say approximately sixty-five or seventy per cent.

Q. And the balance goes into what kind of buildings?

[fol. 208] A. Office buildings, hotels, hospitals, factories.

Q. Do you keep yourself informed as to activity in the building and construction business?

A. We do.

Q. And do you personally keep yourself in touch with that?

A. I do.

Q. In what way?

A. Through studying the building statistics that are issued by the Department of Commerce and the building permits published by the Department of Labor.

Q. And I suppose you converse with people in the trade and with your own salesmen and employees?

A. We do.

Q. At the present time is the building business good or bad?

A. Very bad.

Q. When did it become bad? Was there any definite time there was a change?

A. Beginning in 1928, the aggregate square feet of floor space for residential buildings started to decline. The decline mounted to about thirty per cent between 1928 and 1929; between 1928 and 1930 it was approximately sixty per cent; and last year the reduction below the peak of '28 was about sixty-six per cent; and that is the business that we depend upon largely for our business.

Q. Is the curve at the present time upward or downward, or is the line horizontal?

A. The forecasts of the F. W. Dodge Corporation are usually studied by the people in this industry to obtain an [fol. 209] idea of the trends. The curves—or the forecast for this year indicates that there will be about $180,000,000 in residential building, which is about ten per cent below the amount a year ago for the same quarter, that is, the first quarter of 1932.

Q. From which you would infer that the line is still horizontal, or the curve still downward or turning up—which?

A. Still downward.

Q. I believe you testified this company was organized in August of 1927? Am I right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what has been the history of the concern since that time, from the standpoint of profits or losses, if you know?

A. The last four months of 1927, the corporation showed a profit of around $993,000. Beginning with 1928, and continuing up to and including 1931, the losses were around $1,250,000 or $1,300,000 per year.

Q. Have you ever had the full period of one year which showed a profit since the organization of the company?

A. We have not.

Q. It has been a loss every year, and you have just given some figures for losses. Do those figures include deduction for depreciation?

A. They do.

Q. Mr. Waters, I suppose that you have visited all the plants of this company, and are generally familiar with them?

A. I have, yes.

Q. Now, you may follow, if you like, in answering these [fol. 210] questions, Schedule "A" in the proposed decree, if that will refresh your recollection any. I should like to ask you what plants and properties the Corporation has in Western Pennsylvania? (Page 47 of proposed decree.)

A. We have two plants in Johnstown, each occupying about three acres of area, consisting of a radiator plant, plant for manufacturing radiation, having a core room, foundry, cleaning room, testing room, boring or machining, assembling, shipping, and the usual machine shop. One plant known as the National plant, having a capacity of nine million feet of radiation, melting capacity of eighteen tons an hour. The Union plant has a radiator capacity of about three million feet—this is cast iron radiation—can melt around twenty-one tons an hour. The general office of the Corporation is located in Johnstown, occupying about a quarter of an acre in area, two-story brick building—that is, the lot. These plants are equipped with machinery for manufacturing radiation.

Q. That is what you have at Johnstown. Now, what do you have at New Castle?

A. There are two plants there, one for the manufacture of radiation and the other for the manufacture of boilers, both occupying a plot of ground about nineteen acres. The boiler plant can produce 31,000,0000 pounds of boilers a year, and the radiator plant is large enough to produce around 11,000,000 feet radiation. The tonnage in the radiator plant is around eighteen tons an hour, 91-inch cupola, and in the boiler plant we can melt thirty-four tons an [fol. 211] hour—there are two cupolas there. The boiler plant is equipped with machinery, and patterns and flasks, and boiler equipment for producing cast iron boilers. The radiator plant does not have equipment for producing radiation with the exception of the cupola, core ovens and some small pattern equipment and a few flasks.

Q. What do you have in Trenton, New Jersey?

A. Plant in Hamilton Township, right outside of Trenton, occupies around 11½ acres; that is the ground area, the plant itself does not occupy the entire amount. It is capable of producing twelve million feet of radiation. That would be the capacity per year. The tonnage that could be melted in the plant is about fifty tons an hour. There are fourteen dwelling houses near the plant, occupied by the employees at the plant. Equipment in the plant consists of the usual machinery and equipment, patterns and flasks for the manufacture of cast iron radiation.

Q. What do you have at Framingham, Massachusetts?

A. Plot of ground approximately twenty-three acres, plant which is capable of producing around five million feet of radiation a year, approximately ten million pounds of boilers. We can melt thirty-six tons of iron an hour in the cupolas at that plant. We have in there a limited amount of equipment for producing radiation. The product produced at Framingham was discontinued after consolidation, and the equipment, such as flasks and some molding machines were utilized in producing a standard product adopted at that time. There were no boilers produced by [fol. 212] the Guerney Manufacturing at this time or since the consolidation.

Q. What do you have in western New York?

A. In western New York there are two properties, one at North Tonawanda, about ten acres of ground, with a plant which is capable of producing around three to four million feet of radiation and about—no, about eight million feet of radiation and about ten million pounds of boilers. At Dunkirk, New York, there are two plants, one for producing radiation and the other boilers. The radiator plant has a capacity of around six million feet per year, and the boiler plant around twenty million pounds. The usual equipment is there, with the exception of that equipment that was moved to New Castle, the boiler equipment moved to New Castle in 1929, when we suspended operations at Dunkirk.

Q. What do you have at Chicago?

A. In Chicago we have a plant capable of producing around five million feet of radiation, melting twenty-one tons of iron per hour, on a ten-acre plot of ground.

Q. When you say five million feet of radiation, you mean five million feet of radiation per what?

A. Per year. That is our yearly capacities I am giving you.

Q. Do you have a warehouse?

A. Warehouse in Chicago also, containing about 28,000 square feet, the square area, frame for stacking radiation, boilers, and some small assembling equipment, such as assembling drill presses.

Q. What do you have at Baltimore?

[fol. 213] A. We have a warehouse at Baltimore, containing around 13,000 square feet of floor area, and the usual standardized frame for stacking radiation and boilers.

Q. Is that all?

A. That is all in Baltimore.

Q. At Cincinnati?

A. A small warehouse, containing around 10,000 square feet of floor area and the usual equipment.

Q. Richmond, Virginia, do you have some property there?

A. We have a warehouse there containing around 11,600 square feet of floor area and usual warehouse equipment.

Q. In Garden City, New York, what properties have you?

A. In Garden City, New York, we have two warehouse buildings, with a floor area aggregating about 21,000 square feet, wooden frame construction.

Q. At Washington, D. C.?

A. At Washington, D. C., we have a warehouse containing around 14,000 feet of floor space and the usual stocking equipment.

Q. I believe you did not mention an apartment house, or some piece of property of that nature, in Chicago.

A. Edgewater Beach Apartment House—Apartment Hotel, that is; it was taken over by the Corporation for debt. Five-story building, brick construction.

Q. Does that apartment house produce any income?

[fol. 214] A. Some, yes, but hardly enough to take care of the taxes and back interest on the bonds.

Q. Now, I supopse you also have unfinished material and goods in process, and finished goods, on hand and in your inventory?

A. We do.

Q. And some accounts receivable?

A. Yes.

Q. And cash?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And some investments that the Court has permitted to be made by its order?

A. Right.

Q. Now, have we been over in a general way, then, all the property of the company?

A. We have.

Q. And you can particularize as much as you like as to their plants—state whether or not your machinery is adaptable to other uses than the manufacture of your product?

A. The plants, both radiator and boiler plants, are essentially laid out and equipped for the production of cast iron boilers and radiators. The cupolas, for instance, melt iron; they can be used for melting iron in any plant, and for any purpose, up to the capacities of these cupolas, but the nature of the foundry in which the iron is melted is such that you are limited to the size casting that you can produce, by reason of the fact that you don't have crane equipment which could handle heavy castings. By "heavy castings" I mean castings weighing several tons.

Q. In a general way, answer this question: Is the ma[fol. 215] chinery of this company of such nature that it could be devoted readily to uses other than that to which it is now devoted?

A. No, it could not.

Q. What about the plants themselves, the buildings?

A. The buildings could be utilized for jobbing foundry work. You would then be confined to small castings, lighter castings, than the usual job foundry will handle.

Q. Of course, you would have to put in appropriate machinery for that business?

A. Yes: your patterns and flasks that are used for producing boilers and radiators could not be utilized for any other purpose, except a rare exception, I would say.

Q. Which of the plants are now in operation and which are not in operation?

A. There are only two plants operating. By "operating" I mean pouring iron. The New Castle plant and the National plant at Johnstown.

Q. That is, one of your two Johnstown plants is in operation and your New Castle plant is in operation?

A. Yes. The other Johnstown plant is used as a warehouse and as an equipment plant for producing equipment used in our business.

Q. Which of your plants are shut down?

A. The plant at Framingham; the Trenton plant; the North Tonawanda plant is leased to the Lincoln Niagara Company; the two plants at Dunkirk are down, and the Chi[fol. 216] cago plant is down. By "down" I mean we are not pouring iron at those points, we are utilizing them as a warehouse only.

Q. Did the receivers close down the plants that are now closed?

A. No, sir; they were closed before we were appointed receivers.

Q. And you have simply left them down?

A. We have, because there has not been sufficient demand to justify opening them up.

Q. You have been able, with the two plants in operation, to produce all that you could sell?

A. All that we could sell, yes, sir.

Q. Can you tell us how long those plants have been closed?

Q. North Tonawanda was closed in September, 1927; Chicago was closed in July, 1929; pouring of metal was suspended at Union in June, 1929; operations were suspended at Dunkirk in the spring of 1930; at Trenton operations were suspended in June of last year, '31.

Q. Can you give the Court any idea, Mr. Waters, of the cost and expense the receivers have been put to in maintaining these closed plants?

A. All of the plants——

Q. You don't need to take time for an exact figure, just an approximate figure.

A. The cost of our idle plants and the unabsorbed burden on the operating plants amounts to approximately a half million dollars a year.

Q. Prior to the receivership, did you make any effort to dispose of any of these plants that are now idle?

[fol. 217] A. Yes, we did.

Q. What did you do?

A. We tried several different methods of selling the plants. I will briefly comment on each plant and what we did. The Framingham plant was listed with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company at Boston for sale in 1930——

Mr. Royall:

Q. You mean listed for sale with them?

A. As available for sale, if they had any inquiries, as they frequently do—utility companies. We had some correspondence with a realtor by the name of W. W. Willson, of Wallaceton, Massachusetts, who had an inquiry regarding a plant; nothing came of it. In April, 1931, I arranged with a Mr. C. H. Lewis, of Cleveland, to try to organize a company to take over the Framingham plant and the North Tonawanda plant. He had a ninety-day option, and it was extended four months from May 1st. Mr. Lewis had considerable experience in disposing of properties and disposed of some rather large industrial plants from time to time, including one radiator plant back in 1923, I think—'22 or '23. We also arranged with Joseph Holfelder, formerly in charge of our foundry at Trenton, superintendent of the foundry at Trenton, to try and organize capital in Framingham to take over the plant. Mr. Holfelder had previously been in charge of the Framingham plant during the days it was operated by the Guerney Company. He was unsuccessful—in fact, he died just a few months ago.

At Johnstown we endeavored to sell the residence properties there, consisting of a double house and two single [fol. 218] houses; in 1930 had the matter up with the Cambria Realty & Mortgage Company; the property is still in their hands for sale. At Trenton we endeavored to sell, or rather, listed the residence properties there for sale with W. M. Dickinson Company, in January, 1930.

Q. Residence properties or general properties?

A. Residence properties; the plant was then operated. In Chicago the plant was listed with the Central Bank, in 1930. We had some discussion with a metallurgist, Dr. F. W. Myer, about leasing the foundry in April, 1931. The plan he had in mind did not materialize, so he did not, of course, lease the plant. Dunkirk plant was listed with the Industrial Department of the New York Central Railroad in May, 1930; also, of course, with the Chamber of Commerce at Dunkirk. And during 1930, and extending, I believe, into '31, we had some discussion with representatives of the Dunkirk Radiator Company, who were interested in leasing the plant for a concern that was going to make an electric alloy steel; nothing resulted from it. All of the idle plants were listed with the Appel Company, Cleveland—well, I won't say "listed"; we discussed, I should say, with the Appel Company, of Cleveland, realtors, ways and means of disposing of all of the idle plants, in April, 1931. We were not able to get together with them, because they insisted we put up a considerable sum of money in helping promote the sale of the properties. In 1931, the latter part of the year, we discussed the question again with the representative of the company, by the name of V. Dudas. That briefly will give you an idea of [fol. 219] what we have done to try and dispose of the property.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Is it correct to say, then, that over the period of perhaps a year and a half you have made an effort to dispose of all these various idle plants, and that you have not been able to do so?

Mr. Royall: I object to that, if your Honor please, as a mere summarization of testimony; the opposite deduction may be drawn.

The Court: He has already testified as to the specific matter in connection with it. I will sustain the objection.

Q. Can you give us any idea of the number of different articles that your inventory consists of?

A. In the case of radiators, we produce and manufacture seven distinct types of radiation, which would be assembled into forty some different sizes, the constituent parts of which exceed some four hundred items. In the case of boilers, there are sixty types of boilers, which can be produced in around six hundred sizes, and the parts amount to around thirty-two hundred different parts. Then we produce cast iron condensing and cooling coils used in oil refinery work and by-product coke plant work, and matters of that kind, sixty some parts there. We produce a cast boiler in one size, one series consisting of ten sizes, probably two hundred different parts in that. We market a steel boiler, manufactured for us at Lebanon, made in [fol. 220] twenty-two sizes and great widths, varying from thirty-seven inches to eighty-five inches. Those boilers are electric welded, steel boilers, and produced as smokeless boilers, straight fire boilers, and boilers suitable for oil burning and stoker fire burning.

Mr. Royall:

Q. May I ask where those steel boilers are produced?

A. They are produced in Lebanon, Pennsylvania.

Q. By the National Radiator Company?

A. By another company. We are selling them, the National Radiator Corporation is selling them.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Now state whether or not it is necessary to have all these parts on hand for the purpose of supplying them if people's radiation purchased from you gets out of order or broken, or anything of that sort?

A. In other words, it is necessary, to succesfully market radiators, that you have a balanced stock. By "balanced stock" we mean these radiators of various balanced widths and heights in stock, in the proper proportion to the sales of those various sizes. If you don't, you get an order that calls for 36 inch, 5 tube radiation, and on the same order you will get an inquiry for 20 inch 5, some 16½-7, and some 30 inch 4—Now, if you can't furnish all of those parts for radiators, in those sizes, they just simply won't take the order from you, they will go elsewhere, where they can get a complete and finished order. The same thing applies to boilers. If you can't furnish a complete boiler with an [fol. 221] order calling for radiation boiler, the customer will go elsewhere.

Q. Now, I may have asked this question before—I don't recall: Will these parts that you have on hand go into the radiation of other manufacturers, or are the parts only usable for radiation that you have installed?

A. They can only be used in radiation of our own manufacture; and the same holds true with boilers.

Q. Is that characteristic of the industry as a whole?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. That the goods made by one are not usable in connection with the goods made by another manufacturer?

A. That is correct.

Q. How many salesmen do you have in your employ?

A. As of the first of this year we had 141.

Q. Is that more or less than you had prior to the receivership?

A. In 1929 we had 246 in the sales organization, and in 1930, 181.

Q. Can you give the Court any idea of your expense of sales?

A. The selling expense, including advertising, last year, '31, amounted to $726,000. In 1930 it was $1,038,000; in 1929, it was $1,320,000.

Q. Your sales expense then is still over a million dollars a year?

A. It has been, yes.

[fol. 222] Q. Now, suppose that the National Radiator should go out of business, and not manufacture any more parts of any more radiation, what effect, if any, would that have on your inventory, as to whether it was obsolete or not obsolete, or salable or otherwise, in your opinion?

Mr. Royall: I object to this hypothetical question, as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and not qualified as a proper expert to answer it.

The Court: I will overrule the objection, and note an exception.

Q. Proceed, Mr. Waters.

A. The effect would be demoralizing from the standpoint of realizing to the best advantage, the greatest possible advantage, on the material we now have in stock.

Q. Why would that be so?

A. Because the trade—I refer to the people who use our material as the trade—would not buy what would be then obsolete material, simply because they would realize that they could not secure repair parts. They would have difficulty in selling orphan product. Even though the product would be all right, there would be no assurance that repairs could later be secured, if the occasion arose. I might read a letter from our general manager of sales written in December, December 5th. It has a great deal of bearing on this subject——

[fol. 223] Mr Royall: Just a minute. I object to this testimony. They are not sworn witnesses.

Mr. Teall: If that is objected to, it is not competent.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. Now, as you went ahead, we will suppose, in liquidating the inventory, and you sold ten or fifteen, or twenty, or twenty-five per cent of it, what would be the effect on the rest of it, as to whether you had full lines or not?

Mr. Royall: I object to this same course of hypothetical questioning.

The Court: I will overrule the objection, and note an exception.

Q. Proceed, Mr. Waters.

A. It would mean this, Mr. Teall: The product that you have could not be sold to the best advantage, because you couldn't furnish complete units; and it would mean that the stock that you would have would be reverted to scrap; the only thing you could get for it would be scrap value.

Q. Have you had any personal experience with the liquidation and sale of obsolete radiator equipment?

A. Yes, we have had experience in that direction.

[fol. 224] Q. And you personally know about that, and it came within your personal observation?

A. I do, yes.

Q. In what way did you obtain that experience, and what was the nature of it?

A. After the consolidation in 1927, the Corporation had on hand large quantities of radiation and boilers produced by the predecessor companies. That was all different; each company produced different material. It was necessary that we standardize on one type of radiation. By "one" I mean a type of tube radiation, a type of wall radiation, a type of indirect, and so on. And the same thing on boilers, it was necessary we standardize. In doing that, it was necessary to obsolete the stocks that had been made by these other companies. For instance, at that time we offered—In 1928, we offered the tube radiation produced by Guerney, Continental and Niagara at 22 cents a foot. The average sheet price at that time was 30 cents a foot. While that radiation was standard design, it was obsolete radiation by reason of the fact that the Corporation standardized on the Aero radiator. It took us two and a half years to dispose of the obsolete radiation.

Mr. Royall:

Q. What do you say you standarized on?

A. Aero—A-e-r-o. That is a trade name; that is the kind that the Corporation is making now.

Q. That is your trade name, is it not—for your stuff?

A. Yes. It took us two and a half years to dispose of the [fol. 225] radiation, and we were not liquidating the company; it was just simply getting rid of it, and the purchaser knew they could get—had reason to believe they could get repairs when necessary. But to do that it took us two and a half years, and it finally sold at 12½ cents a foot.

Mr. Teall:

Q. As against a normal price of what?

A. 30 cents a foot.

Q. Did you have any expense in connection with getting that 12½ cents a foot?

A. Yes, we had. It was handled by our regular selling organization; and in 1928, selling expense, or cost of selling, including advertising, was $1,038,000.

Q. Now, you have some accounts receivable on your books. I suppose you are familiar with the customers, Mr.

Waters, who they are and what kind of business they are in?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. To whom do you generally sell?

A. We sell the majority of our product—the majority of our product goes to "the trade," as we call it, the steam fitter. We have probably 1,500 accounts of that type. The jobbers—there are about 500 jobber accounts, and perhaps 100 consumer accounts.

Q. In your opinion, Mr. Waters, from your experience as a receiver and an officer of this company, and connected with the radiator business for some time—in your opinion, if your company should cease operation and liquidate, would that have any effect upon the collectibility of your [fol. 226] accounts receivable?—Wait just a minute. I think Mr. Royall wants to object.

Mr. Royall: I object, on the ground that this is hypothetical and calls for a conclusion, and speculative; and he is not qualified as an expert to answer; and it is speculative, even if he were an expert.

The Court: Well, probably the Court knows as much about that as he does.

Mr. Teall: Of course, this sort of examination—I understood my friend to suggest the advisability of complete liquidation and going out of business, and turning everything into money, and I am just trying to show what the prospects would be.

The Court: I will overrule the objection and note an exception.

Q. (Question read.)

A. I should think it would cost——

Q. Now, just a minute. Have you had any experience with that kind of thing?

A. No.

Q. Well, what about the situation up at Canada, since you have been receiver?

A. Well there the Canadian situation is this: We are going to liquidate the Canadian branch. It has not as yet been completed, but we have reason to believe that there will be a substantial loss incurred. As I say, I have not [fol. 227] had any actual experience, because it is merely in the process of being liquidated now.

Q. Well, you have been trying for some period of time to collect back accounts receivable, have you not?

A. Yes, we have.

Q. And with what success?

A. Well, it has not been very successful.

Q. You have not collected? And how long have you been at it?

A. Since November, the latter part of November, or the first of November.

Q. Mr. Waters, I am going to put a question to you presently on upset price, and so that you will have in mind what I mean by "upset price" when I put that question to you, I am reading from the opinion of the Court in Guaranty Trust Company against Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, 15 Federal (2d), 434, at page 442. Here is what the Court says on upset price: "What the Court is doing in naming an upset price is merely to draw a line below which it will refuse to consider bids. It is discretionary with the Court, but quite common, to fix an upset price." Taking the phrase "upset price" in that sense, it fixes a line below which the Court will refuse to consider bids. Do you have in mind a figure that you would consider proper for the upset price of the property of this corporation? Just state whether or not you have the figure in mind?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. What is it?

[fol. 228] Mr. Royall: Object. Now, your Honor, this is objectionable for so many reasons that I want to put them on the record. In the first place, what Judge Wilkerson said in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul receivership has no relationship, no possible relationship, to the situation that we have here——

The Court: May I interrupt you about that? There is no question about that phase of it. That interpretation, it would seem to me, would not be any real part of the objection here. But the objectionable part, it seems to me, is largely that that has been made up by the Court from all the four corners of the testimony.

Mr. Teall: I appreciate that. I have various witnesses to express figures for your Honor's consideration. Of course they are not binding on the Court, they are just to give your Honor such assistance as is possible.

The Court: Well, it is, rather, to get the whole situation before the Court, and then it is an argument of counsel, perhaps, and then it is for the Court to make the decision. I don't know whether it would be of value to have a witness state that, because the Court will see whether his mind and the witness's will jump in common at all.

[fol. 229] Mr. Teall: It is my purpose to follow this with the further question, asking the witness to explain how he arrives at the figures he is expressing, what is the basis of his opinion. This matter of upset price, as I understand it, is largely informal; I don't know that the rules of evidence apply to it. It is simply an effort to give the Court such light as can be given, and this witness is the Court's own receiver, to whom the Court would naturally turn for light. Now, of course, it is not a valuation proceeding, it is simply to give the Court such light as we can, that is all.

Mr. Royall: I press my objection, your Honor.

The Court: Stepping aside for the minute—There are a good many elements would have to come in, and it would be for the Court to determine largely what those elements would be. Frankly, I don't think the opinion of a witness, particularly of a lay witness, not specially acquainted with the administration of estates in receivership, and the various questions that would be considered by the Court, would be of very much value to us.

Mr. Teall: Now, I appreciate that the Court is going to ask counsel—probably the counsel for all parties concerned, what their views are on this, and I assure your Honor——

[fol. 230] The Court: Well, of course, incidentally, I want to know what the amount of the general indebtedness is, as opposed to the secured——

Mr. Royall: There is no secured, your Honor.

The Court: I want to know whether the expenses will be sufficient to take care of the expenses of the administration, and I of course would like to know the amount all the disgruntled bondholders hold, among other things. And from those elements, and some others, I would have to make up my mind as to the upset price.

Mr. Teall: Of course, it isn't expected your Honor is bound by these witnesses' opinion.

The Court: Well, I would be bound to this extent—that is, we have testimony as to an amount which would fairly cover the expenses of administration, which would have to be paid; we will have to take care of those out of an upset price in cash, of course.

Mr. Teall: The decree as now drawn—and of course that is just drawn for your Honor's consideration—is drawn on the theory that the purchaser will assume all the obligations incurred as to the receivership; in other words, that the [fol. 231] property would be sold subject to all the receivership obligations, which the purchaser would have to take care of. I understand from my associate, Mr. Bennett, who has been through a great many of these receiverships, relating to industrial concerns and a great variety of others, that that is, if not the usual form of decree, at least a very common one.

The Court: I would be rather afraid of an indefinite decree of that kind, where the purchaser was to some extent buying "a pig in a poke." Of course, if he had a prior arrangement as to what the obligations would be, all right, if the purchaser assumes them.

Mr. Teall: Your Honor might suggest the decree to be in some different form from that. That is a matter for further discussion, no doubt. What I want to do with this witness is simply to give your Honor his idea—and he is the Court's receiver—what he thinks the upset price ought to be here. Now, we can have just as many and different opinions——

The Court: Go ahead for what it is worth.

Mr. Royall: My objection is noted, your Honor, and I press it very seriously.

The Court: I note you an exception.

[fol. 232] Mr. Royall: I think this is very highly objectionable, your Honor.

The Court: I don't see any other way of getting at it.

Q. What is your figure, Mr. Waters?

A. If I am permitted to do so, I will build up the figure so as to arrive at the total, by starting in with the detail.

Q. Well, suppose you give us your total first, and then give us the detail.

A. I arrive at the total of $2,195,695, arrived at in this manner: Cash, United States certificates of deposit, bank certificates of deposit, accrued interest thereon, cash surrender value of life insurance, amount to around $1,830,000; the inventory—these figures are as of the first of the year, or as of December 31—amounts to $1,634,905. Based on our knowledge of the depreciation in value of product previously obsoleted, and taking into consideration depreciated value of radiation obsoleted by the Kewanee Radiator Company in 1931, I don't believe that our inventories would net us more than around $327,000.

Mr. Royall:

Q. $327,000 as against what?

A. $1,674,000—using the experience of the company in 1928, that is, the National Radiator Company, which closely follows the experience of the Kewanee Radiator Company, which was obsoleted in '31.

Mr. Teall:

Q. I believe you said your sales expense was—how much?

[fol. 233] A. The sales expense last year was seven hundred and some odd thousand dollars. And assuming that there would be a reduction in notes and accounts receivable, based on what we anticipate may result in Canada, the $858,000 of notes and accounts receivable would be depreciated to around $172,000. As far as the plants are concerned, the real estate, they would undoubtedly have to go at what you might call panic prices, because the industry is vastly overplanted today. It is inconceivable to me, as an operating man, and having been in the industry for some time, that our competitors, or anyone with capital to invest, is going to go out and buy radiator plants at this time. I think we would be fortunate if we got a half million dollars for the plant. We have sold some equipment since the receivership, a small amount. We endeavored to sell equipment prior to the receivership, surplus equipment, that, although used by other companies, like motor generators, turbine compressors, and things of that kind, are almost a drug on the market. So that is my opinion regarding the probable realization on the plants at this time. Those items total $2,195,000.

Mr. Royall:

Q. Did you reduce your cash? Did you take some deduction off that—did you say that?

A. Yes, I have taken out of that the cost of selling.

Q. Did you allow us a hundred per cent for cash?

A. It amounted to $625,000 for the first year—yes.

Q. I didn't hear that.

[fol. 234] A. I say your cost of selling the properties will absorb—will take up the cash.

Q. Oh, I see. Well, I want to see how you got this total. Against the $1,800,000 in cash, you write down in the right hand column how much to make up your total?

A. $171,000 in notes and accounts receivable, around $327,000 in inventory.

Q. Yes, and $500,000 in the plants?

A. And then——

Q. What did you say about the cash? That is what I want to know?

A. That is included in there.

Q. At what figure?

A. $1,831,000.

Q. $1,831,000 added to that makes it, doesn't it? It doesn't jibe with the $2,100,000?

A. Then I deducted from that $2,605,000 as the cost of selling.

Q. Oh, I see. Before you deducted that, did you total the four other items?

A. Pardon me?

Q. Did you total on your memorandum the four other items?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the total of the four items?

A. I have got a total of cash, notes and accounts receivable, and inventories of $2,330,000.

Q. Well, that $500,000 added to that?

A. And less the cost of selling the inventories, $635,000, plus $500,000.

[fol. 235] Q. I see you have done it that way, $500,000 on the end. Well, we will work that out later on.

A. Those are merely approximate figures.

Mr. Teall:

Q. You have answered my question, I take it, on the theory of what you think could be done in the event of turning everything into cash. Is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in your opinion, could that turning everything into cash be effectuated in a short time or a long time, or how long would it take?

A. I think it would take probably two years, or two and a half years.

Mr. Royall: I object to this whole course of hypothetical questioning.

The Court: We will admit it. Note an exception.

Q. Mr. Waters, how does your present production compare as to quantity with your production in '31 and in '30 and in '29?

A. In '31 we produced 7,610,000 feet of radiation; in 1930 we produced 9,536,000 feet; in 1929, 15,824,000 feet. On boilers——

Mr. Royall: Will you go back to 1928. Would you mind having him go back to 1928?

Q. All right. Have you got the figure for '28?

A. In '28 we produced 22,809,000 feet of radiation; in '27 the predecessor companies, that came into the consolidation, produced 37,037,947 feet of radiation.

[fol. 236] Q. I think that is far enough back.

A. In boilers, in '31 we produced 30,108,000 pounds; in 1930, 22,974,000 pounds; in '29, 30,540,000; in '28, 28,541,000, and in '27, 56,565,000. And I have here the relation to the industry's production, and the relation of the two, if desired.

Cross-examination.

Mr. Royall:

Q. Now, which was the first plant that you shut down after the merger—Before I get into that, just some formal questions for the purpose of the record, before we get into this valuation. You have testified that you are the vice president of the defendant corporation?

A. I did.

Q. Will you please state on the record who the other officers are?

A. At which time?

Q. At the time of the receivership and at the present time?

A. At the time of the receivership the officers of the corporation were: president and chairman of the board, John W. Waters; chairman of the executive committee, Rudolph B. Flershem; vice president in charge of sales, Charles L. Krause; secretary and treasurer, Carl E. Resley; and vice president, Samuel B. Waters.

Q. Are you Samuel B. Waters?

A. Robert S. Waters.

Q. And you are also vice president?

A. I am, yes.

[fol. 237] Q. Now, you mentioned Mr. John H. Waters, and you mentioned yourself, and you mentioned Mr. Samuel——

A. Samuel B. Waters.

Q. Are you related, all three of you?

A. I am a son of John H. Waters and a nephew of Samuel B. Waters.

Q. Are all of these gentlemen directors whom you have just mentioned as officers?

A. All but Samuel B. Waters.

Q. Are there any other directors than those officers?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who are they?

A. The other directors are George O. Suppes, John W. Watson, Harry S. Endsley, Herman E. Baumer, Andrew B. Crichton; John Price Jones is a director also.

Q. Will you please indicate who these gentlemen are, what relationship they have to the company or to other interests?

A. Herman E. Baumer was formerly president of the Union Radiator Company—formerly treasurer of the Union Radiator Company—Andrew B. Crichton is a coal operator and engineer in Johnstown; Harry S. Endsley, Esq., was the counsel for the corporation——

Q. Is the counsel in this proceeding for the corporation?

A. Yes. I am speaking of the time of the Corporation. John Price Jones, publicity man in New York City; George O. Suppes, a banker.

[fol. 238] Q. Where?

A. Johnstown; and John W. Watson, formerly president of the Continental Heater Company.

Q. Now, the Guerney Heater Company, what did it own before it merged with you?

A. It owned a plant in Framingham, Massachusetts.

Q. When did that plant get closed after the merger?

A. That plant was closed in 1929.

Q. Now, you testified to some—what you characterize as efforts to sell that plant, didn't you?

A. I did, yes, sir.

Q. And I think you made some mention of granting an option, a ninety-day option to somebody. Was it on that plant?

A. Yes.

Q. How was the option figured?

A. It was an option on this basis: That Mr. Lewis would have the—we would not endeavor to sell the property during the time that he had it for the purpose of trying to organize a company, or a group of men to take that plant over with the North Tonawanda plant; the terms and the basis of sale to be considered if he received, or was able to interest anybody—if he were able to get anybody interested in taking over those properties.

Q. Was there no indication of the prices that were to be discussed or considered?

A. I don't recall the details of the option.

Q. Well, try to recall them as best you can. Don't you know that?

[fol. 239] A. As I recall, I think the properties were—the two properties were—I think we were trying to get around $400,000 for those properties.

Q. You mean two properties—what two properties?

A. Framingham and North Tonawanda, they were both given to Mr. Lewis.

Q. And what do you include in "properties"—merely plants?

A. Plants.

Q. And nothing else?

A. Equipment.

Q. "Equipment" means what, in your mind?

A. Machinery, patterns, flasks, core equipment, fixed things like cupola——

Q. Well, would it be included in the all-inclusive word of "plant"?

A. Yes.

Q. And are you sure it wasn't more than $400,000 you were negotiating for?

A. I don't think so. I don't think it was.

Q. Now, you say that was in what year you were negotiating for that?

A. That was in 1931, the first part of the year, April.

Q. Did you ever make any effort before 1931 to do anything with it?

A. In 1930 we listed that plant with the Edison Electrical Illuminating Company, as a plant that would be available for sale, without any price.

Q. Did you ever list the property with any real estate agency, giving a price and authorizing them to negotiate on a price basis?

[fol. 240] A. We had an inquiry from Willison, which I mentioned before.

Q. Well, tell us about the inquiry?

A. He wanted to know if we had a plant that was available, that he had some people who were looking for a plant.

Q. What did you tell him?

A. Told him that we did, and he replied——

Q. Did you give him a figure when you told him you did?

A. No, I didn't, as I recall. He just wanted to know if the plant would be available for sale, and I said it would.

Q. That is all there was to that?

A. The people that were interested would talk to me about some kind of stock proposition, or something, a thing which didn't concern us or didn't interest us much at the time.

Q. Well, did you ever visit this plant during all these years it has been idle? When did you say it became idle?

A. It became idle in 1929.

Q. Early in 1929 or late in '29?

A. I think I can give you the exact date. June, 1929.

Q. Since June, 1929, have you ever authorized any real estate agents or realtors—if you care to choose that word—to act for the corporation in selling this Framingham plant?

A. Nothing more than it was turned over to this—our discussions with Mr. Willison.

Q. Well, Mr. Willison asked you if you had a plant and [fol. 241] you said yes, and that is all there was to that?

A. That is all.

Q. Have you ever made any advertisement of the fact that the property was for sale?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever make any efforts whatsoever, excepting the efforts you have just testified to, to bring about a sale of the property?

A. Only those I have testified to.

Q. Now then, what is that property carried for on the books of the corporation?

A. I don't have the detail figures here. I can get them for you.

Mr. Teall: That is all in the receivers' report that is filed.

Q. Is it not a fact that this property was carried upon the books of the corporation, as of the date of the receivership, at $592,452.64?

A. I can't state definitely that it is. I don't have the records here. (Report handed to witness.) $592,452.64.

Q. Is it not a fact that that figure represents the figure that the plant was set up, charged on the books of the corporation in 1927, discounted down by depreciations charged against the property from 1927 to the date of the receivership?

A. Less whatever equipment was removed from there. We removed some of the equipment to other plants.

Q. With that exception, your answer is yes?

[fol. 242] A. I would say so, yes.

Q. Now then, the valuation that got set up on your books in 1927 for that plant, what was that based on?

A. That was based on an appraisal made by a company that was engaged by the Bankers Trust Company, to form the consolidation.

Q. And the name of that appraisal company was Sanderson & Porter, wasn't it?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Do you know anythinng about them?

A. I don't know.

Q. Never heard of them before?

A. I heard of them at that time, yes.

Q. But you don't know whether they are competent or incompetent engineers?

A. I presume they are competent because of the fact that they were engaged by a firm as reputable as the Bankers Trust Company.

Q. At any rate, the figure of $592,452.64 represents Sanderson & Porter's appraisal of 1927, less discounts and less property that may have been removed. Is that right?

A. If you say so, yes.

Q. Now, tell us how much has been removed?

A. The equipment for producing boilers and radiation, part of it was scrapped; some of the obsolete boring machines were sold, were scrapped also; some of the small equipment was dispensed with, being of no further use——

Q. How much, without going into detail? I don't care for the detail, unless you wish to give it. Tell me how much in dollars and cents.

[fol. 243] A. I don't have those detail records with me.

Q. Well, make a rough guess then.

A. I would rather not guess.

Q. You have been doing some guessing today——

A. Only on opinions.

Q. Well, I ask you to give an opinion.

A. This is fact, and can be substantiated.

Q. Well, we won't call it guess. Will you please give me your opinion?

A. I said that I couldn't give you an opinion, because I don't know.

Q. You are the manager of the company, aren't you?

A. Well, I don't pretend to keep all figures in my head, no.

Q. Well, was it the bulk of their equipment that was removed or was it less than the bulk of their equipment.

A. Well, I would say it was about a third of their equipment.

Q. A third of their equipment. Have you any reason to disparage or to doubt the accuracy of the appraisal that was made of this plant in 1927, at which you set it up on the books?

A. I didn't set it up on the books.

Q. At which your company set it up on the books?

A. I have no reason to doubt it, no. It was values that existed at that time.

Q. You feel that the values that existed at that time were a fair appraisal?

A. It was amply fair, yes.

Q. You mean by "amply fair" that it did not exaggerate or overstate?

[fol. 244] A. I think it was a liberal appraisement for the selling company—put it that way.

Q. You suggest that in establishing values for the sale of the bonds, that a different appraisal ought to be—that a different appraisal ought to be—that a different viewpoint of appraisal has been taken here than you would take, for this purpose?

A. At that time, you mean?

Q. Yes, at that time, as of that time.

A. I think this: that the values that existed then and exist now are entirely different.

Q. I am not questioning that; times have changed.

A. Very materially.

Q. And you misunderstood my question. (Question read.) I am confining that to a fair appraisal in 1927, on 1927 values.

A. 1927 values, in the condition of business at that time, it looked reasonably certain that the company, the Guerney plant, could make good on the price of the bonds.

Q. Well, you agree with the appraisal, with this 1927 appraisal?

A. As of that time?

Q. As of that time. I think you can say yes or no to that, whether you agree or disagree with it?

A. Well, I don't agree with it wholly, no.

Q. Well, do you disagree with it?

A. Yes.

Q. Now then, what do you think that should have been valued at in 1927?

A. From what standpoint—an earning standpoint?

[fol. 245] Q. As a business man, familiar with this property, I ask you what you think the property should have been valued at.

Mr. Teall: May I ask you to clarify your question, as to whether you mean market value or replacement value, or what basis of valuation you refer to—whether you mean what a buyer would give for it or what it would cost to build it, or what?

Mr. Royall: I mean fair market value. If we own a house, we all have a fair idea of what its fair market value is—if we own an office building, or own a plant. And I assume that this appraisal, to have been justified, must have been based upon the idea of its fair market value.

Q. Now then, do you agree or disagree with that appraisal? You said you disagreed with it, I believe?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now then, what do you think the amount of the appraisal should have been?

A. Well, that is what I would like to know, from what standpoint you are considering it—replacement value or——

Q. Fair market value?

A. I would say at that time, knowing the plant as I do, about twenty per cent less.

Q. Now then, you mentioned another business that you bought out. What was that—the Niagara Boiler Company?

A. The Niagara Radiator and Boiler Company.

Q. Where was their plant?

[fol. 246] A. Their plant was in North Tonawanda.

Q. When, if ever, did you cease operating that?

A. Ceased operating that in October, 1927.

Q. Hardly before you got into the saddle you ceased with that—Is that the fact—two months after the organization of the company?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. What did you do, if anything, in 1927 to sell it?

A. Nothing.

Q. What did you do in 1928 to sell it?

A. Nothing in '28.

Q. What did you do in 1929, if anything, to sell it?

A. We didn't do anything until 1931.

Q. Nothing at all until 1931? And then what did you do to sell it?

A. That was one of the plants that was——

Q. The subject of your testimony in connection with the Framingham deal?

A. Considered by Mr. Lewis.

Q. Optioned to Mr. Lewis, with the Framingham property?

A. Yes.

Q. Anything else done on this Tonawanda property?

A. No. In 1928 we released the property to the Lincoln Niagara Company.

Q. What do they do for a living?

A. Manufacture boilers and radiators—only radiators; they job boilers.

Q. Now, is it not a fact that at the time of the receiver-

[fol. 247] ship this North Tonawanda property, North

Tonawanda plant, was carried on your books at $626,383.95?

A. If that is the figure that is in here (indicating report), yes.

Q. Well, I am not asking you if that is the figure that is in there. I am asking you if that is what it was carried on the books at.

A. $626,383.95.

Q. Now then, is it true of this plant, that that valuation of $626,383.95 reflects an appraisal made in 1927, also by Sanderson & Porter, less depreciation charged against it from 1927 to date of receivership?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you agree in this instance, or disagree, with the valuation of Sanderson & Porter?

A. My opinion is that it was high by about the same percentage as Framingham.

Q. Mr. Sanderson and Mr. Porter would like to hear you disparage their appraisals.

A. That is merely my opinion, which you asked for.

Q. What was the method of depreciating the property? What depreciation rates did you use during the year 1927, in the receivership, in working out the depreciations? I will confine this question for the moment to the North Tonawanda property.

A. Buildings were depreciated at 2½ per cent a year; flasks and patterns and molding machinery 15 per cent; and machinery and other equipment, as I recall it, 8 per cent.

Q. Per year?

[fol. 248] A. Yes.

Q. So that against your buildings you had written down 12½ per cent from the Sanderson & Porter appraisal to the receivership. Is that not a fact?

A. That is right.

Q. And as to your equipment you had written down—in respect to some of the equipment as much as 75 per cent, and in respect of some of the other equipment—What did you say you depreciated the rest?

A. About 30 per cent—8 per cent on one class and 15 on the other.

Q. About 30 per cent for that. Is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. So that the appraisals of Sanderson & Porter were as to land unchanged?

A. Unchanged.

Q. As to buildings a net writedown of 12 or 13 per cent; as to certain kinds of equipment a writedown of 75 per cent approximately, and as to certain other equipment a write-down of 30 per cent. Is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I ask you if what we have just said applies equally to the Framingham property, as to depreciation?

A. Yes, it does. The same rate was used at all plants.

Q. Perhaps we will save time in dealing with the other ones that I am going to ask you about, if you will make the same statement now, if you care to do so, that that method of depreciation was applied to all plants during the period in question?

A. It was, yes.

[fol. 249] Q. Now then, you have testified something here about—Was that Continental Heater Company?

A. Yes, at Dunkirk.

Q. That was another one of the constituents you took in?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And their plant, you say, was at Dunkirk?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, did the time ever come when that got closed down?

A. Yes, operations were suspended there in the boiler plant in February, 1930, and radiation in March, 1930.

Q. Since early 1930. After February or March, 1930, did you do anything to sell it, during 1930?

A. Merely listed it with the Industrial Department of the New York Central.

Q. Did you put a figure on it?

A. No.

Q. Did you advertise it?

A. No.

Q. Did you list it with any agent?

A. No.

Q. You did nothing whatsoever except to write a letter to the Industrial Department of the New York Central, and say the property was available for purchase, if somebody wanted to buy it?

A. Yes. It was, however, included in our discussions with the Appel Company in Cleveland in 1930.

Q. Now then, what was that carried at on your books at the time of the receivership?—We are at Dunkirk now, aren't we?

[fol. 250] A. Yes.

Q. $691,989.55?

A. That is correct.

Q. And was that figure arrived at in the same way?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is, was it the subject of the appraisal of Sanderson & Porter at a considerably higher figure in 1927, depreciated down to that figure in the manner you have testified in respect to the others?

A. Yes.

Q. Now then, you have testified to another one—Utica Heater?

A. Yes.

Q. That was one of the constituents that the merger took in. Is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Where is their plant?

A. Utica, New York.

Q. What did you do with it?

A. We sold that plant.

Q. Oh. When did you sell that?

A. In December, 1927, I believe.

Q. Sold it almost as soon as you got it?

A. Yes.

Q. And what were the circumstances of that sale?

A. That plant was sold to the Richardson & Boynton Company; it was a boiler plant and heater plant. They manufacture boilers and heaters.

Q. How much did you get for it?

A. Around $700,000.

Q. Cash?

[fol. 251] A. Cash and notes.

Q. That was included in Sanderson & Porter's appraisal, was it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Tell me what Sanderson & Porter appraised it for?

A. May I have a copy of the appraisal?—The fixed assets of Utica Heater Company as of December 31, 1926, amounted to $690,000.

Q. And that is the same property that you sold for $700,000?

A. $733,000, I think. The furnace business went with that. The equipment for producing boilers was held out, that equipment being moved to New Castle.

Q. So that you sold less than all?

A. Less the equipment for producing sectional boilers

Q. Anyway, you sold that plant less some of it?

A. Yes.

Q. To Richardson & Boynton, for $733,000?

A. I think it was $733,000—over $700,000.

Q. And Sanderson & Porter appraised it, the whole of it, for $690,000. Is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, does that lead you at all to revise your thoughts expressed on the stand here as to the soundness of Sanderson & Porter's appraisal?

A. I think it was all right in this case, and I think their appraisal was all right in the case of the Continental.

Morning Session

ROBERT S. WATERS RESUMED

ROBERT S. WATERS resumes the stand.

Cross-examination (continued).

Mr. Royall:

Q. Mr. Waters, the property the acquisition of which you next mentioned upon your direct examination was that of the Union Radiator Company. Will you please tell us what properties there came in with it—in 1927?

A. The plant at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, consisting of foundry core room, cleaning room, testing room, assembling, loading, storage, as well as machine shop for manufacturing equipment.

Q. Equipped for manufacturing boilers and radiators?
A. No, merely radiators.
Q. That concern was engaged in the business of manufacturing merely radiators, was it?
A. Yes.
Q. Then may I ask you as to these previously testified to acquisitions? The first was—What was that, Guerney Heater?
A. Guerney, yes.
Q. Were they equipped merely for radiators, or for boilers, or for both?
A. Both.
Q. The next one, the Niagara, did it have radiators or boilers, or both?
[fol. 253] A. At the North Tonawanda plant, yes; at Chicago, equipped for the manufacture of radiation.
Q. Now, I think, when you were speaking of that, perhaps we had in mind only North Tonawanda. Am I wrong? Did you testify on your direct examination as to the valuation of the Chicago plant?
A. Yes.
Q. Then I think we had better go back to that. Now, the Chicago plant and the Tonawanda plant came in through the acquisition of this Niagara property?
A. That is right.
Q. And you have testified as to the valuations upon this Tonawanda plant?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, please tell us about this Chicago plant? Was that also the subject of a separate appraisal of Sanderson & Porter in 1927?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And will you tell me how much they appraised it for?
A. The Sanderson & Porter appraisal for the Niagara Radiator & Boiler Company shows the Chicago plant appraised at $564,284.
Q. What did that include?
A. It included land and buildings, machinery and equipment, less the depreciation on buildings and machinery, and also included flasks, patterns——
Q. Well, that wasn't less depreciation, was it? That was a new appraisal, a new appraisal made as of that date? Depreciation has been applied to that appraisal since that date? Isn't that the way it has been done?

[fol. 254] A. No; the appraisal was as of December 31, 1926, and then brought up to 1927.

Q. Oh, I see. Tell us what the appraisal was as of December 1, 1926—All of these appraisals you have testified to were the original Sanderson-Porter appraisals, weren't they?

A. They were—as of that date, December 31.

Q. Yes—you say that was the date as to which it was?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, what was the amount as of that date?

A. Of the Chicago plant?

Q. Quite so.

A. $564,284.

Q. Now, isn't there also a property in Chicago which you speak of in your inventory here as a warehouse?

A. Yes, but not under Niagara Radiator and Boiler Company.

Q. Oh, I see. That came in in some other way. So that, as to that Chicago warehouse, this appraisal was not inclusive of that?

A. No, not under the Niagara, no.

Q. Well, the appraisal we are talking about did not include that? The figure you have given did not include that?

A. It did not include that, no.

Q. Now, as of the date of the receivership, the Chicago plant was carried at $605,000. Is that right? $605,149.43?

A. I will have to verify that—$605,149.43.

Q. So that there have been additional acquisitions, and [fol. 255] expenditures, improvements, developments of that Chicago plant since 1927?

A. Yes, there have been additions made there in the nature of equipment.

Q. The figure of $605,149.43, which you carried it at at the date of the receivership, was arrived at in the following manner, was it not: By depreciating the buildings and equipment, starting with the basis of the Sanderson & Porter appraisal, in the manner you have testified, 2½ as to buildings—2½ annually as to buildings, 6 per cent annually as to certain of the equipment, and 15 per cent annually as to certain other equipment, and by adding onto it the cost of the improvements and additions, and depreciating those in turn from the time of those additional investments in the plant. Is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. And depreciating those in turn by the same method of depreciation generally used?

A. Yes, sir. Included in this figure of $605,000, however, is the Chicago warehouse, which is not included in the $564,284.

Q. I see. Now, how did the Chicago warehouse get into the defendant corporation?

A. That was part of the National Radiator Company's property at the time of the consolidation.

Q. And that also was appraised—that Chicago warehouse—by Sanderson & Porter?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As of this basic 1927 date, at $66,149.11?

A. The National Radiator Company's Chicago warehouse is shown in the Sanderson-Porter appraisal at $73,646.

[fol. 256] Q. Well, the inventory which you have filed contains this: "Chicago Warehouse, Chicago, Ill. (Warehouse one-story brick construction) $66,149.11, less depreciation to October 8, 1931, $4,117.59"—line, subtraction shown $2,031.52?

A. Correct.

Q. I thought you said your method was to set the property up when the corporation was set up, in conformity with the Sanderson-Porter appraisals, and then depreciate it down by this depreciation method to the date of the receivership. Can you explain why this figure $66,149.11 is used in this instance rather than the figure of seventy thousand odd, which you testified to as the figure on the Sanderson & Porter appraisal?

A. The difference is undoubtedly accounted for by depreciation between the date of the Sanderson-Porter appraisal and the date of the receivers' inventory.

Q. But if you will look again you will see that the basic figure before the depreciation is $66,149.11, and not the figure—What is the Sanderson-Porter?

A. Sanderson-Porter is $73,646.

Q. —and not the figure of $73,646, which was the appraisal figure of Sanderson & Porter?

A. No; this $66,149.11 shown in our report here, that is, the receivers' report, is the building and the Chicago warehouse land, as shown by the receivers' appraisal at $30,060.59.

Q. Oh—so the Sanderson-Porter appraisal of seventy odd thousand dollars was just for the building?

[fol. 257] A. We carried it, as shown in here, under warehouse, as $73,646. That is the total figure.

Q. For land and buildings?

A. There is nothing on here showing buildings at all.

Q. You think that is for land, then?

A. It is so indicated, yes.

Q. Let me call this to your attention, then: I do find, as you have pointed out, on your inventory here this additional item, "Chicago warehouse (containing approximately 35,000 square feet, situated at North Keeler avenue in the City of Chicago) $30,060.59," in addition to the item on the appraisal of the building, which item I read into the record a moment ago. So that the sum total at which you carried the land and the building of this warehouse property was the sum of $30,060.59 plus $62,031.52, as of the date of the receivership. Is that right?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Well, now, what do you say the appraisal of Sanderson & Porter of the whole thing, land and building, was?

A. It is merely shown on that report which I have before me, as Chicago, Ill., $73,646.

Q. Can you explain that discrepancy?

A. No, I cannot; I cannot explain it.

Q. Now then, nothing else came into the merger through this Niagara, except the Tonawanda plant and the Chicago plant?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you carried the Chicago plant, including the Chicago warehouse, as at the date of the receivership, at a [fol. 258] total of $605,149.43 after depreciation, just testified?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now then, the next of the merged companies that you testified to was, I think, the Union Radiator Company—No, we were on the Union Radiator Company when you had to go back, weren't we? Let us go back to the Union Radiator Company now. Will you tell us at what figure that is carried in your inventory filed herein?

A. We show here in the receivers' appraisal for the Union plant at Johnstown, less depreciation, as of October 8th, $204,378.01 for the buildings; the machinery and equipment at the Union plant at Johnstown as of October 8th is shown in our appraisal as $291,171.02. Then we show patterns and flasks at the Union plant at Johnstown less depreciation, on October 8, 1931, as $89,092.94.

Q. Have you got the aggregate of those three items before you, so that we could put it on the record? If you have to stop to compute the aggregate, I won't take the time of the Court. If you have it, I would like to have it, but I won't ask you to figure it now. Those figures were arrived at in the same method with respect to depreciation as the other plants?

A. Yes.

Q. Starting with the basis of the 1927 Sanderson-Porter appraisal?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, did the Union Company bring anything else into the merger excepting this Johnstown plant which you have described?

[fol. 259] A. The plant and equipment.

Q. Plant and equipment—I used "plant" in that general, broad sense. No other pieces of real estate or other properties?

A. No.

Q. Now, we come to the National Radiator Company. That was the name of a corporation which was conducted at Johnstown prior to 1927?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And its property also came into the present defendant corporation, which is known as the National Radiator Corporation?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, what did it, the National Radiator Company, bring into the picture in 1927, what properties?

A. It brought in the following plants: At Johnstown, Pennsylvania; Trenton, New Jersey; New Castle, Pennsylvania; and the warehouse at Chicago; one in Baltimore, Maryland; one in Cincinnati, Ohio; one in Washington, D. C.; and one in Richmond, Virginia.

Q. Is that all the warehouses?

A. That is the warehouses that the company owned.

Q. I mean, does that list of warehouses just given include all the warehouses now belonging to the defendant corporation?

A. Will you repeat that, please?

Q. (Question repeated.)

A. Oh, no; we also had one other property in Garden City, Long Island.

Q. How did that come into it?

[fol. 260] A. The National Radiator Company.

Q. Then all the warehouses that the National Radiator Corporation now has came into it with the National Radiator Company property at the time of the merger. Is that right?

A. That is correct, except those that are leased.

Q. All that you own?

A. All that we own.

Q. You got in that manner?

A. That is right.

Q. And in no other manner?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, then, did you get anything else with the National Radiator Company, excepting the Johnstown plant, the several warehouses—Did you get anything else besides that?

A. We got an office building and property in Johnstown, and residence properties in Johnstown, and residence properties in Trenton, New Jersey.

Q. Before we go into the details of the property acquired with the acquisition of the National Radiator Company, I wish to go back and call your attention to the Dunkirk plant, which I understand was acquired through the acquisition of the Continental Heater Company property?

A. That is correct.

Q. Was anything else acquired through the acquisition of the Continental Heater than the Dunkirk plant?

A. Not any plants.

Q. I am speaking of plants, in the way of plants.

A. No.

[fol. 261] Q. Now, will you describe the Dunkirk property?

A. The Dunkirk property consisted of two plants, one a boiler plant and the other a radiator plant, with a common raw material yard between spanned by overhead cranes.

The boiler plant was capable of producing cast iron boilers, the radiator plant was used for producing cast iron radiation; the equipment and machinery being very similar to that found in the other plants which were described in greater detail.

Q. Now, will you please state on the record at what value this Dunkirk property was carried as at the date of receivership?

A. The Dunkirk plant was carried at the time of the receivership, $691,989.65.

Q. And that figure was arrived at by starting with the base in 1927 of the Sanderson-Porter appraisal and depreciating it down in the manner testified in respect to the other properties?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, when was this Dunkirk plant closed?

A. The Dunkirk plant was closed in 1930—spring of 1930.

Q. Did you make any attempt in 1930 to sell it?

A. Only as described yesterday, through listing it with the New York Central Railroad Industrial Department.

Q. You said that yesterday in respect to the Tonawanda property, perhaps?

A. No, Dunkirk.

Q. I thought you and I agreed you hadn't testified about Dunkirk——

[fol. 262] A. I said that on direct examination.

Q. Well, excepting for that, you have done nothing?

A. Not from the standpoint of selling, no. We have endeavored to lease it.

Q. Didn't you tell us on direct examination, with respect to some one of these plants, that there was a proposition at one time to sell it to some electrical company, or some such company?

A. No; that was the Framingham plant. It was listed with the company as an available plant.

Q. No, but wasn't there something aside from that, about negotiations to sell either this Tonawanda or this Dunkirk plant, for the purpose of some other business, to be used for some other business?

A. That was leasing it for the production of alloy steel, electrical alloy steel.

Q. The proposal was to lease it for that purpose?

A. Or sell it, if we could. The inquiry came about by way of a lease, suggested.

Q. Well, considering agreeable price arrangements, was that at all a feasible thing to do, have it used for such an industrial enterprise?

A. A very small part of the plant would have been, yes. They could not have utilized the entire plant.

Q. In what sense could they use the plant? You mean for the purpose of a foundry?

A. No, it would have been for this purpose: for the manufacture of electric steel in electrical furnaces, which would require a very small part of the foundry building.

[fol. 263] Q. Well, that would depend on how extensive the operations were? If it was an extensive operation, they would use all of it, wouldn't they? And if it was a small thing, they would use part? Wouldn't that be it?

A. Yes.

Q. But it is feasible, is it not, to adapt the Dunkirk plant to uses other than for the manufacture of cast iron radiators or cast iron boilers?

A. It apparently was not felt to be suitable in the eyes of the party who had inquired, after examining the plant. That was the original inquiry.

Q. You told me a moment ago that, the price arrangement being agreeable, the plant was adaptable for these other purposes, but you qualify that by saying that would be for a small operation?

A. Yes—just the same as this room. You could make electric steel in this room.

Q. Well, you don't suggest to the Court that the Dunkirk plant is available for that purpose only in the sense that this room would be available?

A. No, but I mean it could be done in a very small part of it.

Q. Now, will you go back again to National Radiator Company, the old company? That company was an enterprise of the Waters family—I suppose you can describe it as that?

A. Control was in the Waters family, yes.

Q. And the chief officers were members of the Waters family?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was an old family enterprise?

[fol. 264] A. Yes.

Q. Was it a successful enterprise before 1927?

A. We thought so.

Q. Did it make money?

A. Yes.

Q. Did it make a lot of money? Tell us about what the average profits of that concern were up to 1927?

A. I would say for three or four years prior to 1927 the net earnings were around a million and a quarter dollars.

Q. Were there any occasions that you remember, anywhere near 1927, when any stockholders died, and their stock was made the subject matter of inheritance tax appraisals?

A. Stockholders of the old company?

Q. Of the National Radiator Company—who may have died on or before 1927, or within a few years?

A. Not that I recollect.

Q. Well, will you think that over and see whether you can answer whether there were or were not?

Mr. Teall: He says he doesn't recall.

Q. Well, will you think it over, and consult some of your associates here, so that you can refresh your recollection, so that we can ask you about that again?

The Court: If you know any, you can suggest it to him.

Mr. Royall: I don't know any. I want to find out if there were any.

[fol. 265] The Court: Oh.

Mr. Royall: I feel, your Honor, that this witness is an officer of the Court, he is a receiver here, and that he is here in the performance of his duties to protect the interest of the creditors, one of whom I represent, and that he should be of assistance to the creditors——

The Court: Certainly. Don't misunderstand me. I am not attempting to throw anything in your path. That was a mere suggestion in the interest of time.

Mr. Royall: I don't know, your Honor. I just wanted to find out.

Q. Now, will you tell us what these properties were carried at at the date of the receivership—not as a whole, but item by item? First, the plant, then the office building, then each of the dwellings, then each of the warehouses? To save time, your Honor—that is rather an elaborate thing. I think, if the other side agrees to do so, the receiver may prepare a memorandum to be filed with the reporter, and consider that with his answer.

The Court: I think it would be much more desirable if it could be done and blocked out in some way, so that we could have it, rather than to have to go over it.

[fol. 266] Mr. Royall: I should like it in the record.

Mr. Teall: It is in the record now. He is just called upon to read off some figures that are in the inventory and in the record now.

The Court: That is true, but it would be rather difficult for the Court to get it in that form. I think, if it were separated in this way as counsel desires it, it would be much better, in going over it.

Mr. Royall: My idea was to facilitate it.

Mr. Teall: Now, if you tell me just what it is you want.

Q. Will you prepare for me, Mr. Waters, a list of the properties which came into the merger through National Radiator Company, and separately state the plant, the office building, each separate dwelling, each separate warehouse, with the values set opposite, shown as at the date of the receivership? You will do that?

A. Yes.

Q. And hand it to the reporter?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you say, in respect to that, that such figures were arrived at in the same manner, in respect of depreciation, as was the case with these other properties that you have testified to?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, the Johnstown plant is still operating?

[fol. 267] A. Yes, the Johnstown National plant is.

Q. Yes, the old Johnstown National plant. But the Johnstown Union plant is not operating?

A. When I refer to "operating," I refer to pouring metal. The Union plant is not pouring metal, but the National plant is.

Q. Now, let us go back to the Union plant. The Union plant is not operating in what sense?

A. We are not casting radiators, or any kind of castings, at the Union plant.

Q. Well, the Union plant is primarily for the purpose of casting radiators?

A. Yes.

Q. And not boilers?

A. That is correct.

Q. For what purposes is the plant being used for, if it is not being used for its purpose of casting radiators?

A. It is being used for an assembly plant, or assembling, testing and shipping some radiation. It is also used as an equipment plant, for manufacturing equipment used to produce radiators and boilers and other products produced by the Corporation.

Q. Is that merely a temporary use, or has the plant been converted into a different kind of affair than it was intended originally to be?

A. We are doing this: We are carrying on all our equipment work at one point instead of each of the other plants.

Q. Well, have you converted this thing into a permanent affair for that purpose?

A. Part of it, yes.

[fol. 268] Q. Have you ever made any effort to sell it since the receivership?

A. No.

Q. Is it proposed to put it into operation again, as a plant, for the purposes of casting radiators?

A. If the demand should increase to the point where the capacity of the plant were required, yes; but not until that time.

Q. Now, the plant of the old corporation, the old National corporation, is a plant for the manufacture of both radiators and boilers?

A. No, radiators alone.

Q. Do I understand you, then, that the business of the National Radiator Company prior to 1927, was the business merely of manufacturing radiators?

A. No; radiators and boilers.

Q. Just where were the boilers made?

A. New Castle, Pennsylvania.

Q. What was done at the Trenton plant?

A. Radiation was manufactured there.

Q. And not boilers?

A. No boilers manufactured there.

Q. Now, those were the only three plants that came in through your old company?

A. No, there were three plants, one at Johnstown, one at Trenton, and one at New Castle.

Q. Well, you have testified to all three. Two of them were used only for radiation, and one of them used only for boilers. Is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, some of these competing companies of yours, on the other hand, which you bought out, had plants for nothing but the manufacture of radiators?

[fol. 269] A. I would like to correct that statement. We didn't buy them out.

Q. Well, with which you merged—we will put it that way—or which came into the corporation—we will not characterize it at all—which came into the defendant corporation in 1927. Some of those corporations were merely engaged in the manufacture of radiators. Isn't that true?

A. Union Radiator Company, yes.

Q. Some of them were engaged merely in the manufacture of boilers. Is that a fact?

A. Utica Heater Company.

Q. Utica Heater Company's business was manufacturing boilers. That was their only business?

A. That is correct.

Q. And Framingham made what?

A. They made both.

Q. Union Company's sole business was making radiators?

A. Correct.

Q. Are there any other businesses other than the National Radiator Company, that you know of—or Radiator Corporation—which you know of, operating in the United States, that engage in the business either of solely making boilers or solely making radiators?

A. The International Heater Company makes only boilers and heaters; the Lincoln Niagara Corporation manufactures only radiation; the Utica Radiator Company, at Utica, New York, manufactures radiation; the H. B. Smith Company manufactures boilers alone, they are jobbing radiation now, having it made for them——

[fol. 270] Q. You don't need to give the list of all the radiator companies in the country. Suffice it to say, does it not, that the boiler business is something to be conducted apart from the radiator business, and the radiator business something to be conducted separate from the boiler business?

A. It is by some companies.

Q. I am not trying to get you to say it is a universal practice, but it is a practice that is common, it is done?

A. Oh, yes, it is done, yes.

Q. Now then, you put these plants on the basis of the Sanderson-Porter appraisals at an aggregate of over $8,000,000 in 1927, for the purpose of setting up the books for your corporation, and for the purpose of representations then made by the corporation and by the banking syndicate also, which acted for it in the issue of the bonds, their value was in excess of $8,000,000. Is that not a fact?

A. I didn't do it, no.

Q. I am asking you if the corporation did not do it?

A. Yes.

Q. You were a director of the corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were vice-president of the corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. You were familiar with the circular—prospectus or circular—for the sale of the bonds, the debentures, at that time?

A. Yes, I saw it.

[fol. 271] Q. You know it was based upon a letter dated August 6, 1927, signed by John H. Waters, as chairman of the board of directors, setting forth that to be a fact?

A. Yes.

Q. That this value was in excess of $8,000,000 for the plants?

Mr. Teall: May I see the letter you refer to?

Mr. Royall: It is the circular, bankers' circular.

Mr. Teall: Where is that?

Mr. Royall: Well, we will get at it this way:

Q. I show you the bankers' circular, just produced here by the attorney for the reorganization committee, dated August 1, 1927, emanating from the Bankers Trust Company and others, as bankers, and I read to you this statement on the page of the circular summarizing the situation of the company as at that date: "Tangible assets after deducting all liabilities except these debentures were approximately $18,000,000."

Mr. Teall: Well, he has explained there that that is on the basis of this Sanderson-Porter appraisal.

Mr. Royall: Quite so. But you can come to your part of the case when I have finished my part of the case.

[fol. 272] Q. Now, will you tell me how that $18,000,000 item was built up—that $18,000,000 tangible assets therein stated was made up?

A. I don't have a copy of the prospectus in my file.

Q. Well, was it not made up in this way: $8,217,359, real estate, machinery, patterns and other equipment, as appraised on December 31, 1926, by Messrs. Sanderson & Porter?

A. That is their appraisal figure, yes.

Q. Plus current assets of $10,742,000?

A. That is correct, as shown here.

Q. And less current liabilities. Is that right?

A. Yes, that is correct here.

Q. Do you regard current assets other than inventory to be tangible assets?

A. Do I regard them to be other than tangible assets?

Q. No; you misunderstood my question. Do you regard assets—Do you regard current assets other than inventory to be tangible assets?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was upon that theory of procedure that you say the statement that the tangible assets were $18,000,000 is justified?

A. As of that date.

Q. Now, you were an officer and director of the corporation at this time?

A. That is dated in 1926.

Q. It is 1927, at that time.

A. Well, that statement is dated as of 1926.

Q. No, that is dated August 1, 1927—was the date of the issue of the circular?

[fol. 273] A. That was the date of the issue of the securities.

Mr. Teall: This figure is as of December 31, 1926.

Mr. Royall: The appraisal was of that date. The circular bears date August 1, 1927.

Q. Were you on August 1, 1927, an officer and director of the National Radiator Corporation?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Were you of the National Radiator Company?

A. I was secretary of the National Radiator Company at that date.

Q. But not a director?

A. Correct.

Q. Did the matter of the issue of these debentures and the acquisition of these properties, and the issuance of this circular, get submitted to the board of directors for approval?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Is it your best recollection that those transactions were carried on by the officers without the approval of the directors?

Mr. Teall: He says he was not a director.

Mr. Royall: He says he was secretary.

The Witness: Of the National Radiator Company, on August 1, 1927. The Corporation didn't come into existence until later.

[fol. 274] Q. Well, this circular was issued, emanated from the National Radiator Corporation, this defendant?

A. I think that was put out by the Bankers Trust Company, not the National Radiator Corporation.

Mr. Teall: It is signed by various banking firms, not by the corporation.

Mr. Royall: Well, if your Honor please, this is done in the customary manner: they always take a letter from the president, as your Honor knows, setting forth the facts, and then they put a letter on the front with a summary, and they say, "This is a letter or summary from the president of the corporation which is attached," and then they go on and say they are not responsible for any of the representations. And here we have as part of the circular signature of John H. Waters as chairman of the board of directors.

Q. Now, you say this defendant corporation was not in existence on August 1, 1927?

A. The consolidation was effected August 30, 1927.

Mr. Teall: This is not the Mr. Waters that signed the letter.

Mr. Royall: This is Mr. Waters that was the secretary of the National Radiator Company, he has testified.

The Witness: As of that date, yes.

[fol. 275] Q. Now then, did you become an officer of the National Radiator Corporation when it became organized?

A. Yes, I was elected director.

Q. You were elected director, and also became secretary of it?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Now, I will ask you whether the matter of this merger and consolidation purchase—call it what you will—putting together of these companies ever became the matter of corporate action of the board of directors either of the old National Radiator Company or of the new National Radiator Corporation, or of either or both of them?

A. The National Radiator Corporation sold out; we had nothing to do with the creation or organization of the new corporation, as a company.

Q. You say they sold out?

A. Yes.

Q. You say the National Radiator Corporation sold out?

A. Company—National Radiator Company—sold its plants, properties and business.

Q. To the National Radiator Corporation?

A. It was taken over by them, yes.

Q. What did the National Radiator Company get paid?

A. I don't recall those figures at this time.

Q. Will you please look that up for us?

A. I can, yes.

Q. Well, you can, can't you?

A. Yes. I see I don't have them right here.

[fol. 276] Q. Will you look them up?

A. Yes.

Q. Now then, do you know of any corporate action of either company underlying the sale and offer of these debentures, and the authorization of the letter of John H. Waters as chairman of the board of directors?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Will you look it up and see what corporate action there is on your records in that respect?

A. I can do that.

Q. Now, I believe you have testified, in respect of one of two of these properties, that you thought Sanderson-Porter were rather "highish"?

A. I did, yes.

Q. I think, when you got to Utica, you thought they were about all right on Utica?

A. I said they were all right with Continental.

Q. Well, that is the Utica?

A. Oh, no.

Q. Which one was it you sold for $700,000?

A. That was the Utica.

Q. Did you think they were too high on the Utica one?

A. I don't know. The Utica plant was sold early in the history of the corporation. I hadn't a chance to examine and form an opinion of the value of the Utica plant prior to its sale.

Q. Well, would the fact that the corporation, within a year after the date of the appraisal of the Utica plant, was able to sell it for a very substantial amount more than the Sanderson-Porter appraisal persuade you to think that [fol. 277] their appraisal was not too high?

A. That included, in addition to the plant and machinery, the heater business.

Q. Yes, and excluded a lot of stuff too, didn't it?

A. I say, included that, but it excluded some sectional boiler equipment and boring machines, which I think were carried on the books around $20,000.

Q. Now, you have come forward and given your opinion to the Court here upon these questions of valuation, and I ask you whether, in light of what transpired, you think that Sanderson-Porter's appraisal was too high or too low, or about right?

A. I have expressed myself in that way.

Q. You say you can't express yourself.

A. I have.

Q. You think it is too high?

A. No, I couldn't say that about Utica. I wasn't in position——

Q. No, I am not talking about Utica. I asked you to give an opinion now. I didn't ask you before, but now I am asking you for one.

A. I will say this, Mr. Royall. I didn't have an opportunity to examine the Utica plant and observe its layout and methods of operation prior to the sale of the property.

Q. Well, upon direct examination, Mr. Waters——

A. Therefore I am not in position to state whether I think Sanderson-Porter's appraisal was high or whether it was low, but I have so stated my opinion regarding other properties.

Q. Now, you stated in Continental you thought it was about right?

[fol. 278] A. I think Continental was about right.

Q. And you stated a couple of others you thought were rather "highish." As to the appraisal of the Union property, I don't think you have expressed an opinion as to that yet. Do you think that was too high or too low, or about right?

A. I think that was about right.

Q. Now, as to all these properties which came in through your old company, several plants and several warehouses, and office buildings, and dwellings, etcetera, did you think they were about right on those?

A. I thought so.

Q. And you were very familiar with those? That is your old family job, you have known those always?

A. Quite familiar with them.

Q. Now, there was mentioned by you upon your direct examination of something that we have not traced the source of, something called by an Indian name——

A. I can't hear you.

Q. I am sorry. There was something—I didn't know it—some company in Canada, with an Indian name, that you talked about having liquidated, and having bitter experience, on your direct examination—some Canadian company?

A. No, I didn't say anything about any Canadian company.

Q. Well, didn't you tell us on direct examination about liquidating some company, basing your experience on that, the difficulty you had on realizing on accounts receivable, or something?

A. Not a company, no.

Q. Well, what is it you testified to?

[fol. 279] A. I testified to this fact—about the Kewanee Radiator——

Q. Kewanee, that is it. Now, tell us about Kewanee. What is Kewanee?

A. Kewanee Boiler Company is a company that manufactures steel boilers out near Chicago—Kewanee, Illinois.

Q. Has the National Radiator Corporation got any relation to it?

A. No.

Q. But you individually have some relation to it?

A. No, only my experience, knowledge of what happened when they liquidated their radiator stock.

Q. Oh—I gathered you to speak as though that was some enterprise you had conducted?

A. Oh, no, you are mistaken.

Q. But you have some hearsay knowledge that they had some bitter experiences. Is that right? Is that what it comes to?

A. I merely stated what happened when they liquidated, when they sold out their tube radiator stock.

Q. And that is based on what somebody told you?

A. No, it is based on our experience of competing with that stock as it was being liquidated.

Q. Do you know what they got for their stock?

A. I have reason to believe that the information I received is correct, which came from customers to whom we gave bids on our product, and we found out what they were able to buy competitors' product for.

Q. Oh, that is all vague knowledge that you have acquired in such ways as you could?

[fol. 280] A. I wouldn't say it was vague, no.

Q. Well, suffice it to say it was somebody else's affair and not yours?

A. It was vitally our affair, when we were trying to sell in competition——

Q. I mean, Kewanee hasn't anything to do with this picture?

A. Only in so far as establishing values of the product.

Q. It is not one of our constituent companies—or properties? That is what I am getting at?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, you have discussed on your direct the question of interchangeability of product, and I gather you to say that these heating products were in no sense interchangeable. Is that right? Is that what you intended to convey on your direct examination?

A. I made this statement, or in substance this statement, that you could not use our product in building up competitors' product, in either radiators or boilers.

Q. Is that what you mean by "interchangeable"?

A. You can't use our product in building up or supplementing the product of our competitors.

Q. Just so we understand ourselves perfectly. And although I am a lawyer, from your standpoint I am a layman—I want you to tell us, as an expert, about this radiator business, how it is conducted. As a mere lawyer, and observing what goes on in my own house, I take it that the radiator business, the art of heating buildings by radiators, comes down to something like this: There is a coil located somewhere in the premises, generally in the cellar, for the [fol. 281] purpose of heating water, either steam or hot water, various pipes that connect that boiler with what are known as radiators, which are placed where the radiation or heat is desired; that the boiler and the radiators through these pipes are connected with threaded piping, pipe fittings, couplings, elbows, valves, and whatnot, all of standard interchangeable type; that apertures are found in the boiler for inserting the pipe, which are adaptable for insertion by any kind of a standard threaded fixture; that the same thing is true at the other end, in the radiator; and that the pipe, as fas as that goes—that is what is called steel tubing—that you or your competitors have nothing to do with making the piping, that you buy it from the subsidiary of the U. S. Steel Company, the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, or wherever you please, it is a standard, interchangeable article; and the problem then is to put a radiator or boiler in the cellar or some other place, and connect it with these standard, interchangeable pipe and fixtures, with radiators of interchangeable type, situated where you will. Is that a fairly correct or substantial description of the art?

A. That is fairly correct, yes.

Q. Now, you do not mean to suggest that the use of radiators manufactured by your leading competitor, the American Radiator Company, is not perfectly feasible with the use of boilers manufactured by you? You do not mean to suggest that, do you?

A. Oh, no.

Q. You do not mean to suggest that it is not the commonest thing in the world for a person wanting to either repair, [fol. 282] equip, supplement or initially introduce heating equipment, to have one kind of a boiler—"kind" in the sense it may be made by you or by any competitor—in the cellar, and connect to radiators made by somebody else in the rooms of the building?

A. You are correct, except as far as repairs are concerned.

Q. Well, I mean by repairs this: Suppose I have got one of your boilers in my cellar, and I don's like my radiators. I prefer some modern radiator that sits under the window and looks pretty. I go to my local plumber and ask him for some of those pretty, stylish radiators, and he shows them to me, and I tell him to install them. That does not in any sense mean that my furnace has got to be disturbed, even though the furnace has been made by you and the radiators are being furnished by your competitor?

A. Just so long as they have the capacity.

Q. Yes,—that doesn't mean that my plumbing contractor is going to ask me, "Well, what kind of a boiler have you got?" and when I tell him I have got a National Radiator boiler, he is going to tell me that he sells only American Radiator radiators and that I had better go over to the fellow across the street and buy my National Radiator radiators over there, to go with the National Radiator boiler which I have got in my cellar?

A. It wouldn't be necessary.

Q. No, and it wouldn't be done.

A. It might be done, if you went to a contractor that handled only National product and you wanted American; he would probably tell you to go over to theAmerican and get it.

[fol. 283] Q. Suppose I don't want American; suppose I want the type of radiator that pleases me——

A. If he handled it, he would give it to you; if he did not, he would tell you where to go and get it.

Q. But if he didn't handle it, he wouldn't send me away because he didn't handle the type of boiler I had in my cellar, or vice versa? Isn't that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Or if my boiler had blown up, and I went to him, he would sell me a competitor's boiler, if he was handling competitor's boilers, without regard to what kind of radiators I had in my rooms. Isn't that so?

A. He couldn't sell you repairs from our boilers to fit another boiler of another manufacturer.

Q. I am not saying he could.

A. He could sell you a complete boiler.

Q. He could sell me a complete boiler?

A. Yes.

Q. He would sell me a complete boiler, and he wouldn't send me over to his competitor because I had radiators from his competitor? Isn't that so?

A. No, not because you had the radiators. It depends on what you wanted to buy.

Q. I thought you understood my question. My question is this: And I will put it in another way: Isn't it a matter of fact that there is wide open competition between all of you, whether for the sale of complete units, boilers, radiators, and the rest of it, or for the sale of radiators separately or boilers separately? Isn't that a fact?

A. That is a fact.

[fol. 284] Q. And isn't it further demonstrated by the fact, I think already testified here, that there are plenty of people engaged in only one end of the business—and I mean by that there are corporations engaged in the business of solely manufacturing and selling radiators, and there are other corporations engaged in the business of selling only boilers?

A. And those people usually supplement their line by buying their boilers or radiators from other manufacturers, so that they will have a complete line.

Q. Now then, tell me again, because I am at a complete loss to understand what you mean by stating to the Court—I don't mean to say that invidiously, but I don't get what the meaning was of your statement that there was complete lack of interchangeability here.

A. I mean this, Mr. Royall: If you have an American radiator in your living room, and it develops a leak due to corrosion, or sand hole in it, or you leave the window open and it freezes, you can't replace the section or sections in which defects or the freeze occurs with one of ours. You can't do that; you have to replace the entire radiator with our product or go to the American for the replacing section.

Q. Then all you meant was the question of repairs, that your radiators have got to be repaired by you people or by repairs furnished by you people, and the others by the others; and the same applies to boilers?

A. There is not an interchangeability, the same as you find in the pipe business for instance.

Q. Well, in the same sense there isn't interchangeability [fol. 285] between a Ford car and a Chevrolet, there isn't interchangeability between boilers or radiators manufactured by competing companies? That is what you mean?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And that is all you mean?

A. Well, you can't put our radiators in the spaces provided for certain other competitive products, due to the difference in the height and width of radiators.

Q. But there is a selection of style, of course?

A. Not style; I am talking about dimensions.

Q. Well, dimensions as part of style. I think we made that clear enough. Now, you had something to say about the business curve, that in the radiator and boiler business the business curve was going up until the end of 1928. Is that what you said?

A. I said that from 1928 to date the aggregate square feet of floor surface in residential construction declined.

Q. Well, when did it start declining?

A. In 1929.

Q. It started declining in 1929?

A. From 1928 until 1929.

Q. The curve kept going up until you crossed January 1, 1929?

A. 1928 was the peak.

Q. And can you plot the curve any closer than January, 1929, when it started to dip?

A. It started to dip—I have my figures here by years. It started to dip in the fall of 1928.

Q. And the building business for the year 1929, stated in percentages—I suppose this is on the basis of building business?

[fol. 286] A. This is on the basis of aggregate square feet.

Q. Of building?

A. Residential.

Q. What is the percentage, roughly stated, of the decline of 1929 below 1928?

A. Roughly, the decline was about thirty per cent—thirty-one per cent.

Q. State the aggregate figure in this case.

A. 1928, the building construction averaged per month 47,365,000.

Q. Forty-seven against?

A. 32,306,000 in '29.

Q. Then give us 1930, reading the figure corresponding to the 47—and 32——

A. 19,470,000.

Q. Give the 1931 figure.

A. It is 15,856,000.

Q. Is the trend still coming down or has it started to go up?

A. The forecast by the F. W. Dodge Corporation for the first quarter of this year indicates there probably will be about $180,000,000 in residential building construction, which is about ten per cent below the corresponding period a year ago.

Q. Is it below the end of 1931?

A. No, it is a little above that.

Q. So that the trade is reviving from the bottom of the curve?

A. No, you cannot compare the end of the year with the beginning of the year. You must compare the same quarters.

Q. You stated on direct examination that whereas your [fol. 287] earnings for the four months, last four months of 1927 were $900,000 plus, for four months, that your earnings for each subsequent year, to date, had shown a deficit—that your operations for each of the subsequent years show deficits well over a million dollars for each of those years. Are you able to reconcile the change of earnings on the basis of $2,700,000 a year for those four months of 1927 to a loss of—What was your loss for 1928?

A. $1,343,000.

Q. Yes—to a loss of $1,343,000—a shift of four million dollars in those years, 1927 and 1928?

A. I would say that it was due largely to the result of the consolidation, which meant that the new corporation could not continue to handle the type of business that was done by two of the predecessor corporations. In other words, the Niagara Radiator & Boiler Company and the Continental Heater Company business was largely made up of what they call mail order business and some "direct to you" business, as they refer to it in the trade; whereas the other companies, particularly the National Radiator Company, sold direct to the heating contractor and the jobber. And that type of business handled by Niagara and the Continental, they simply had to give that up.

Q. But I have directed your attention to the operations for the first four months of the new corporation, which you stated showed a profit of $900,000 to the new corporation, when you were operating on this consolidated basis. How do you account for the fact that, although you could operate for four months upon the basis of such excellent profits, that for the next twelve months after those four [fol. 288] months you could only operate at such a tremendous loss?

A. Well, I explained part of the reason for that—due to the fact that at the end of the year we were obliged to give up a very lucrative part of our business.

Q. Why did you give up a business that was so lucrative that it would make $900,000 in one third of a year, for the purpose of conducting business in such a fashion as to produce over a million dollars of loss?

A. I have explained to you that the corporation couldn't carry water on both shoulders, that two of the units, two of the predecessor companies, did a kind of business that could not be carried out by the consolidated corporation.

Q. Well, you carried the water on both shoulders for four months. Is that right?

A. We did.

Q. And you made $900,000 doing it; and then you let the water go off one of the shoulders, and since then you have been making losses of over a million and a half?

A. We were obliged to give up that class of business, yes.

Q. Obliged by what?

A. Customs of the trade; the jobbers and heating contractors, or so-called legitimate trade.

Q. What was the particular class—

A. Mail order business, or "direct to you."

Q. Now, let us get down to the inventory. I think you have already corrected the erroneous impression that I at least had gotten from your testimony as to this interchangeability as relating to inventory.

[fol. 289] Mr. Teall: Well, I don't understand him to have corrected anything. He repeated what he said in his direct.

The Court: Well, let us get along as quickly as possible, and come to the tangible.

Q. How much of the inventory as at the date of the receivership remains uncollected at this moment?

A. How much of the inventory?

Q. As to the date of the receivership, remains undisposed of—I said uncollected. I will change that to "undisposed of." Approximately will be quite satisfactory.

A. My figures show notes and accounts receivable——

Q. I am talking about inventory. How much of the inventory remains undisposed of?

A. Around $1,634,000.

Q. Of the inventory that you had——

A. That is the inventory of product.

Q. That is the present inventory of the property in the hands of the receiver now?

A. No; I understood you to mean the inventory of the product for sale. I speak of receivers' inventory, when you refer to the other.

Q. I will strike it all out. Now, let me put the question. What was the amount of the inventory as at the date of the receivership? I find the figure $2,048,901.97. Do you care to look at this (handing paper to witness)? You may adopt it, subject to correction, if you like.

[fol. 290] A. Yes.

Q. How much is the inventory presently, now, in the hands of the receivers?

A. The total?

Q. Yes.

A. That I will have to compile for you.

Q. Give it to me roughly.

Mr. Teall: At the present time, Mr. Waters.

Q. Yes, at the present time. Give me what the present inventory is.

A. Are you speaking of the receivers' inventory or are you speaking of our inventory of product?

Q. Well, I don't understand any difference between those two terms.

A. Well, apparently there is. I don't get you.

Q. I want to know how much stuff in the way of manufactured and partly manufactured—so-called—stuff there was when you were appointed, and that therefore went into the hands of the receivership, and how much of that same kind of stuff there is now, whether what there is now is made up partly—whether it remains what was undisposed of at the date of the receivership or whether it was made up partly of inventory that the receivers manufactured?

A. I understand you now. At the time of the receivership, October 8th, there was $2,048,000 inventory; as at the first of the year there was $1,634,000.

Q. Now then, during the period between the appointment of the receivers and the first of the year, the first of this year—That means, of course, the first of 1932?

[fol. 291] A. Yes.

Q. ——and the first of 1932, the receivers, under authority obtained by them from the court, have been manufacturing further merchandise, inventory. Is that correct?

A. They have been manufacturing and selling.

Q. To what extent have the receivers manufactured? An approximate figure will be satisfactory.

A. We produced in radiation for the month of October, 338,000 feet; month of November, 348,000; month of December, 301,000.

Q. I would rather have it stated in cost, rather than footage.

A. And in boilers—In boilers we produced 766,000 pounds, 1,384,000 pounds, and 804,000 pounds.

Q. Will you translate those figures into costs, roughly? If you know what they cost, roughly, you can tell the Court, as far as I am concerned.

A. Oh, I would say around 3½ cents a pound on boilers, and about 15 cents a foot on radiation.

Q. Well, can you make a lightning calculation here, an approximate calculation, about what that would spell in dollars and cents? An approximate figure will be satisfactory.

A. Around $235,000. That is very rough.

Q. The receivers have diminished greatly their rate of manufacture. Is that right?

A. We have, yes.

Q. At what plants are you making what you speak of as radiation—I suppose that means radiators—Where are you doing that?

A. Johnstown.

[fol. 292] Q. Johnstown National. That is the only place you are doing that. And where are you making boilers?

A. New Castle.

Q. That is the only place you are doing that?

A. Yes.

Q. Are those plants being run by the receivers actively?

A. Are they what?

Q. Are they being run full blast?

A. Oh, no. We are running five days a week at Johnstown and three days at New Castle.

Q. Now, can you calculate for us roughly how much of the inventory that came into the receivers' hands at their appointment still remains undisposed of? Do you understand that question?

A. Yes; if you and I are thinking of inventory in the same way.

Q. Well, apparently you and I are confused about inventory. How much of the manufactured and partly manufactured and raw material that you include under the general head of "inventory" of radiators, boilers, and things respecting them, that came into your hands as receivers on the date of your appointment, and which you carried in your inventory filed here—under the description of "inventory"—and which was put in there at $2,048,901.97—How much of that item of $2,048,901.97, if any, has been sold by the receivers? Now, is that clear?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, please answer.

A. Our sales from October 9th to October 31st amounted to $486,469.95, less the freight of $18,642.74, left a net sale value of $467,827.

[fol. 293] Q. That is what you received for the inventory?

A. Yes.

Q. But you sold it at more than cost, didn't you?

A. Yes, that is what we received. That is for the month of October.

Q. Just for the month of October?

A. Yes.

Q. You received for part of your inventory four hundred thousand dollars gross. Have you got any figures as to what you received for the rest of the inventory that you may have sold?

A. For the month of November, we sold $388,477 worth of product.

Q. There were some selling costs to be deducted?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Go through a few months more there, and see how you make out, as long as you have the papers open.

A. For the month of December, our net sales amounted to $264,388.45.

Q. Now, you are down to December, 1930?

A. 1931—the end of 1931. These are what the receivers sold.

Q. When were the receivers appointed?

A. October 9th, last year.

Q. Oh, yes. I was confused for a moment. Have you got any figures for January and February?

A. No, I have not. We don't have the January and February figures here.

Q. I suppose you are familiar in a general way with what is going on, are you not?

A. Yes.

[fol. 294] Q. Well, can you state whether that was kept up at about that average, or less?

A. Yes, I can give you those figures, Mr. Royall.

Q. Well, I don't care to take up too much time—if you could state generally whether it has kept along about that way, or a little less or a little more?

A. To February 6th of this year we sold $203,953.

Q. But you are still making sales, are you?

A. Yes. They are falling off in about the same percentage below last year as they are shown here.

Q. The receivers then have realized already upon the bulk of the inventory. Is that a fact? That is, the bulk of the inventory as at the date of the receivership?

A. Our average receipts for the month—this is calculated over the year——

Q. No, I am talking about since the receivership. I don't think you heard me. (Question read.)

A. Oh, no.

Q. Well, these sales that you have been testifying about were made out of that inventory, weren't they?

A. Yes, but we have been producing too.

Q. Oh, you have been producing at nearly the rate you have been selling?

A. Not quite, no.

Q. Well, the fact of the matter is your inventory, including what you have produced, is now very considerably less than your inventory at the date of the receivership? Isn't that so?

[fol. 295] A. Yes. We show on hand now an inventory of product around 5,000,000 feet of radiation and around 14,500,000 pounds of boilers.

Q. Do you say that the stuff you had on hand when the receivers were appointed was obsolete stuff?

A. No.

Q. It was standard stuff?

A. There was some little obsolete, not very much, though.

Q. Broadly speaking, it was all good stuff?

A. All good stuff.

Q. And interchangeable with the same kind of stuff the receiver has been making?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, will you please tell us what the spread is between this cost—You have testified, I believe, that the cost of the boilers is 2½ cents a pound?

A. No, I said about 3½.

Q. Oh, I am sorry, I didn't mean to misquote you—3½ cents a pound, and that the cost of radiation was how much a foot?

A. About 12½ cents a foot.

Q. Now, what is the spread between that cost and the prevailing market value that you are selling your stuff for?

A. The prevailing market value of radiation is around 16 cents a foot.

Q. And boilers, stated in poundage?

A. Boilers around 5 cents a pound.

Q. But these inventories of the receivers as well as the inventories of the corporation, which you filed here, are all on a cost basis, are they not?

A. Yes.

[fol. 296] Q. And roughly stated, twenty-five or thirty per cent below the aggregate of the prevailing market value. Is that right?

A. That does not include the difference there—we have not taken into account the expense item.

Q. But it costs money to sell things, we understand that. Now, as to the accounts receivable, if you will direct yourself to that, and get the papers on that before you—and other receivables. Your inventory filed herein shows a total of notes and accounts receivable of $1,673,373.59 less $179,046.37 as reserved for bad and doubtful notes and accounts. Is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, this is split up as follows: Notes receivable, Affiliated Company, $356,257.83—What is that?

A. That is notes on the Lincoln Niagara Corporation, affiliated.

Q. Who owns the stock of the Lincoln Niagara Corporation?

A. National Radiator Corporation.

Q. Anybody else own any?

A. No.

Q. Any part of it?

A. No, it is entirely owned by the Radiator Corporation.

Q. And that is merely a bookkeeping entry?

A. Bookkeeping entry.

Q. Notes receivable, regular, $145,579.77. "Regular" signifies something to your mind. What?

A. It means customers' notes.

Q. The next item is notes receivable, National Protective [fol. 297] Payment, $207,197.41. Will you translate for us the meaning of that?

A. Those are notes we have taken covering the sale of boilers and radiators to home owners, the notes of which are endorsed by the steam fitter, the man who installed the equipment.

Q. And what does the term "National Protective Payment" mean?

A. That is the name of the plan under which the material is sold.

Q. Where does the protection come?

A. It comes in this way: The purchaser of the material, his life is insured as an added advantage, so that if he should die before the obligation is paid, the insurance money—the money received from the insurance company takes care of his obligation.

Q. And then you say that the obligation is also endorsed and guaranteed by some dealer, or someone?

A. It is endorsed by the man who puts it in there.

Q. That would be the plumbing contractor?

A. Yes, the heating contractor.

Q. Is there a corporation called the National Protective Corporation, or some such name?

A. No, it is just the name of the plan.

Q. Now, the next item is Accounts Receivable, regular, $945,539.07. "Regular" again signifies ordinary customers?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And who would they be? They would be jobbers, would they?

A. They would be jobbers and trade, as we call them—steam fitters—and a few consumer customers, not many; [fol. 298] probably five hundred trade jobbing accounts and fourteen hundred of the other, of the trade accounts.

Q. Now, these notes receivable, regular, we had a moment ago, they would be for the chief part jobbers.

A. No, they would be more from the trade than from jobbers.

Q. Well, distinguish, please, the difference between the trade and jobbers. I would suppose "jobbers" would signify the trade.

A. We distinguish in this way: Trade accounts are the small heating contractor who buys the material from the and installs it in the house. The jobber is the customer who frequently carries our stock in his warehouse. If not, he draws it from our warehouses and sells it to the trade, with pipe and fittings, and things that we don't manufacture or sell.

Q. I see. Now, the next item we find is Accounts Receivable, Special, $2,168.47. What is that?

A. That would cover material that would be perhaps sold to Lincoln or National Steel Boiler Company.

Q. Accounts Receivable, Employees, $6,691.04. What would that be?

A. That would cover an advance to an employee, cover material purchased by an employee through the corporation.

Q. What employee—an officer?

A. No. Employees in the plant and warehouses and officers. They can buy to advantage through reason of our purchase power, and we frequently allow them to do so, on the basis of our purchase plan.

[fol. 299] Q. Now, this largest item, Accounts Receivable, Regular, is $945,539.07. Do I understand you to say that includes nothing except accounts due from customers for materials sold?

A. That would be largely composed of accounts due for material sold, yes.

Q. I didn't say "largely"; I said, was it solely comprised——

A. Well, I can't say solely, to the last penny.

Q. Well, isn't there an account in here some place of an advance made from the Corporation to the corporation known as the National Steel Boiler Company, or some similar name—quite a large amount of money, $80,000?

A. Probably $80,000, yes.

Q. Eighty odd thousand dollars. Can you give me the precise amount?

A. It is around $86,000, as I recall.

Q. Now, was that incorporated in one of these items that I have read into the record?

A. Yes.

Q. In which one?

A. That would be covering—it is accounted for in this manner: the National Steel Boiler Company——

Q. I mean, which item——

A. I just wanted to explain it, so you will have a better idea—produces steel boilers for the Radiator Corporation, and the Radiator Corporation had been paying the bills of the National Steel Boiler Company and receiving credit—the Steel Boiler Company receiving credit for the boilers that we sold, which they manufactured for us. In other words, it is a bookkeeping offset.

[fol. 300] Q. Well, what do you mean by "paying the bills"?

A. I mean this: The National Steel Boiler Company was organized to produce steel boilers.

Q. Yes.

A. The Radiator Corporation was not in position to manufacture steel boilers. It was incorporated in 1929, April 18th——

Q. You mean the National Steel Boiler incorporated?

A. Yes—with an authorized capital stock of 1500 shares, $100 par value each. As of March 1st, this year, 630 shares outstanding. That company acquired a plant at Lebanon, Pennsylvania, particularly adapted to the production of steel boilers. Now, when the company started, it started on a limited capital, and the National Radiator Corporation owned the majority of the stock in that company; and since it was organized to produce steel boilers, and had no credit standing, the Radiator Corporation took care of the purchasers covering the plates and sheets and tubes, and so forth, for the Steel Boiler Company, and the Radiator Corporation sold those boilers to offset the amount that had been advanced to the Steel Boiler Company in that manner.

Q. Well, they furnished the finances for it?

A. Yes.

Q. And as the result of the furnishing of the finances, there was a balance remaining due as at the date of the receivership of this sum of $86,000——

A. Eighty some thousand dollars.

Q. $86,000, did you say?

[fol. 301] A. Around that, yes.

Q. Of approximately $86,000. Now, you say the National Radiator Corporation owned a large majority of the stock?

A. Yes.

Q. Of this corporation known as the Steel Boiler Company?

A. Yes.

Q. Who were the other stockholders?

A. The other stockholders were employees of the Radiator Corporation and officers of the Radiator Corporation.

Q. Will you name the stockholders?

A. The stockholders consisted of John H. Waters, Samuel B. Waters, Robert S. Waters, Carl E. Resley, Edgar W. Longacre, John E. Jacob, John Walter Jacob, and other employees of the company.

Q. Is this a patented device, this steel boiler?

A. There are patents pending on certain features of the boiler. The smokeless device is part of it——

Q. Under whose experimentation were the patents and the device devised?

A. Under my direction.

Q. Are you the applicant for the patent?

A. No.

Q. Who is?

A. William H. Hagerty, manager of the Steel Boiler Division.

Q. Steel Boiler Division?

A. That is the division of the Radiator Corporation that handles the sale of the steel boilers.

Q. Was Mr. Hagerty the inventor?

[fol. 302] A. Was he the what?

Q. Was he the inventor?

A. Applications were filed in his name.

Q. I heard you say that. I asked you if he was the inventor.

A. Part of it, yes; probably co-inventor, you might say.

Q. You and he were co-inventors?

A. Of part of the devices, yes.

Q. Has the National Radiator Corporation a laboratory in Johnstown for experimental work?

A. We do.

Q. Was the experimentation leading up to the making of this invention conducted in that laboratory?

A. No, it had been conducted, some of it, prior to the acquisition of the laboratory.

Q. But it was conducted in a steel laboratory somewhere?

A. No; the features of it were conducted at New Castle, the old Radiator Company. We were simply adapting the device developed by our old company to the steel boiler, which consisted of eliminating the refractory brick wall and substituting therefor the — brick wall.

Q. Well, without going into details of the invention, suffice it to say that the invention was worked up in the laboratories of the plants of the National Radiator Corporation by you and Mr. Hagerty and perhaps other employees of the Corporation. Is that right?

A. That is right, yes.

Q. And the money to finance the patents for these boil-
[fol. 303] ers in this invention was furnished by the National Radiator Corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. And the National Radiator Corporation owns what percentage of the stock?

A. Something over fifty per cent. I don't recall the exact figures.

Q. You mean the bare majority or the exact figures?

A. The bulk of it.

Q. Well, come as close to it in percentages as you can.

A. I would say about sixty per cent.

Q. And the other forty per cent belong to employees?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether those employees regard themselves as holding that stock in trust for the Corporation, or do they hold it for their own benefit, as stockholders in their own right?

A. Their own right. They paid for it themselves.

Q. Now, are there any other accounts receivable reflected by these general items which would come under the description which you have given of regular customers' accounts? Are there any other explanations required to qualify your general statements that these were customers' accounts?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Aside from this qualification you made about the transaction with the Steel Boiler Company, these accounts are customers' accounts?

[fol. 304] A. Yes.

Q. And notes—the notes as well as accounts?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you have got these reserves here of $179,000. In computing that reserve of $179,000 do you apply any of it against this item of $366,257.83, the affiliated company account?

A. That only includes customers' accounts, reserve.

Q. You don't apply any of it, then, to this account of eighty odd thousand dollars that is applicable to the——

A. I don't think we have, no.

Q. Due from this affiliated company. In giving your opinion to the Court as to the value at which these properties should be taken over by you and your associates, did you consider that this $86,000, affiliated company was subject, along with the rest of them, to these very large depreciations or diminutions that you have testified to?

A. Why, I figured in this way. The receivers have a mortgage on the Lebanon boiler plant—the National Steel Boiler plant.

Q. Beg pardon?

A. The receivers have a mortgage running to our benefit on the plant at Lebanon, which we would feel could be liquidated for the value of their indebtedness to us.

Q. Oh, the receivers have taken a mortgage?

A. Oh, yes, to protect ourselves.

Q. Merely a mortgage of the corporation?

A. Mortgage on the property of the National Steel Boiler Company.

[fol. 305] Q. It is not guaranty of the indebtedness by any individual?

A. No.

Q. Now, tell us about this steel boiler business. Is it a valuable thing?

A. Yes, we consider it is a necessary adjunct to the business of the Corporation.

Q. That is rather a new departure in the art, is it not?

A. No.

Q. To have steel boilers for radiation generally?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Well, it is certainly most common practice, the old practice, to have cast iron boilers, isn't it?—The orthodox practice is to have cast iron boilers—I will put it that way?

A. For small installations, yes; for large installations, steel boilers.

Q. Of course, we all understand in a power generating plant, or factory, steam for power, and all that sort of thing, is generated, and they have these huge steel boilers—they are not cast iron?

A. Yes. These are low pressure boilers.

Q. But the low pressure steel boilers is a departure, isn't it?

A. It is comparatively new for the National Radiator Corporation, yes.

Q. Now, are these steel boilers that you are making designed as a substitute in use and practice for what I may speak of as the orthodox, old-fashioned cast iron boiler?

A. They are being used by steam heating contractors in preference to cast iron.

[fol. 306] Q. Well, are you marketing them for that purpose?

A. We are marketing them the same as we market our cast iron boilers.

Q. I mean, do you present them to the market as an alternate or substitute for the orthodox cast iron boiler?

A. Yes, because our cast iron boilers do not have the capacities of our steel boilers.

Q. So it is not merely for special uses, but this is a new departure in the art, in the trade, for general heating, isn't it?

A. No, it is not a new departure. They have been making steel boilers for years. I said it was new to the National Radiator Corporation.

Q. Now, who has been making steel boilers for years and marketing them——

A. Kewanee Boiler Company.

Q. —for purposes of general domestic use, and that sort of thing?

A. Kewanee, Titusville, Oil City Boiler Company, Fitzgibbon—among the more prominent ones.

Q. Well, it is a new departure for your business, at any rate?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, then, you have some exclusive features, I gather, in your steel boiler which do not pertain to these Kewanee ones and such that your competitors have been making. Is that right?

A. We feel them to have. The patents have not as yet been allowed; I don't know whether they will be.

[fol. 307] Q. Your departures in mechanical practice which you are endeavoring to have patented, are they improvements?

A. We consider they are advantageous, yes.

Q. Do you consider them a great improvement in the art of low pressure boiler manufacture, as heretofore manufactured by others?

A. Yes, we do.

Q. Would any such extensive departure, if patented exclusively, be a very valuable thing to own?

A. It would be advantageous, yes. It would be hard to evalute the value of it, though.

Q. Well, you look upon it as an important thing, don't you?

A. It is; otherwise, we would not have applied for a patent.

Q. Well, let us see how important you think it is. Lots of people apply for patents on things that they do not think are so very important. Is this in your opinion a really vital, important departure in the art of heating, as heretofore practiced?

A. Which—the invention for which we have filed patent application?

Q. Your invention under which you are manufacturing these things.

A. I don't consider it is vital, no. I consider it is an improvement.

Q. You consider it an improvement in the art?

A. We consider it an important improvement on this particular type of boiler. I don't state, however, that the boiler could not be made and would not function without it. They have been for years.

[fol. 308] Q. Now, tell me this: How long have your salesmen been presenting this boiler to the trade?

A. They have been selling steel boilers——

Q. These steel boilers, we are talking about.

A. The past year, 1931.

Q. The manufacture of the thing has been perfected, has it?

A. Yes.

Q. And it is in the trade, it is being produced and sold?

A. Oh, yes. We sold boilers for four months in '30—the last four months of the year.

Q. Please tell the Court what the development in that trade has been during the year?

A. The development has been very slow. Our sales have been relatively small, because it is difficult at this time to introduce new boilers. A boiler of this type has to be sold through the architects and engineers. It has to be accepted by them. You don't sell them direct to the home owner, the house owner.

Q. Are they less or more expensive than cast iron boilers of the same capacity?

A. They are about the same cost.

Q. What are the utilitarian advantages of such an arrangement over the old cast iron boiler?

A. The quick steaming, they generate steam more quickly than the cast iron, by reason of the tubular construction.

Q. And is that an important improvement, in your opinion?

A. It is for a large building project, yes.

Q. Well, isn't it advantageous for any situation?

[fol. 309] A. Your small boilers cannot be made as easily adaptable in steel as they can in cast iron for small residential work.

Q. Now, as to larger operations, except in the smallest operations, it is a departure which is a distinct improvement over previous practices. Is that right?

A. Beyond certain capacities, yes.

Q. I qualify it as to that.

(Recess taken until 1:30 o'clock P. M.)

Afternoon Session

ROBERT S. WATERS RESUMED

ROBERT S. WATERS resumes the stand.

Mr. Royall: I think a while back, when we had the witness refer to the bankers' circular, I neglected to have it marked as an exhibit. I offer it, and ask that it be marked Intervenor First National Bank of Cincinnati Exhibit No. 1.

Mr. Teall: This has not been identified, as far as I know.

The Court: I don't know whether it has been identified sufficiently.

Mr. Royall: It was produced by Mr. Bennett, or Mr. Ludington, Mr. Bennett's associate.

[fol. 310] Mr. Teall: I didn't understand it was offered in evidence.

Mr. Royall: I do offer it in evidence.

Mr. Teall: It has not been identified at all, as far as I know.

Mr. Royall:

Q. Mr. Waters, the paper I show you bears the marking First National Bank of Cincinnati, Intervenor, Exhibit No. 1" of this date, purporting to be the bankers' circular upon issue of the $12,000,000 bonds, and I ask you if you know what that paper is?

Mr. Teall: If you will let me interrupt. If you want it in evidence, we have no objection.

Mr. Royall: Very well then. I offer in evidence the paper purporting to be the bankers' circular, on the National Radiator Corporation, on the bond issue of August 1, 1927, bearing the mark "First National Bank of Cincinnati, Intervenor Exhibit No. 1." It is received in evidence, I take it?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Now, you testified, I believe, that the $179,046.37 item of reserves was applied entirely to the notes and accounts receivable. Is that right?

A. I did, yes.

Q. I would like you to state whether or not, in computing [fol. 311] these reserves, in whatever method of procedure, percentages or otherwise, was employed in respect of the various classifications of notes or accounts, and in that connection I direct your particular attention to the item entitled "Notes receivable, National Protective Payment, $207,197.41." Will you answer the question?

A. I don't understand the question.

Q. In arriving at the figure of one hundred seventy-nine odd thousand as reserve against bad and doubtful notes and accounts receivable, did you or did you not follow or adopt any method whatever as to the classifications of these notes and accounts receivable, and in that connection I direct your particular attention to the item "Notes Receivable, Protective Payment, $207,197.41"?

A. The usual method was followed in preparing the reserves, setting them up.

Q. Well, describe what you adopted as the usual method.

A. It has been our practice in preparation to set up a reserve around three per cent against certain items until they were completely adjusted at the end of the accounting period.

Q. Against certain items?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, by what standards did you put the items in the category for the purpose of the application of the three per cent discount?

A. They would be against accounts which seemed to show evidence of being a little slow in collecting.

Q. Did you apply this method in the same way in respect [fol. 312] of these accounts comprising item "Notes Receivable, National Protective Payment," as you did generally in respect of accounts and notes receivable from customers?

A. I don't recall that particular point, Mr. Royall. I would have to look it up.

Q. Well, whatever you did, in arriving at this figure, will you tell us now whether or not the notes constituting the group or class known as the National Protective Payment group are—shall we say safer, more collectible, or less safe and collectible, than the notes and accounts of the customers generally?

A. I would say they were about equal.

Q. In other words, you would say there was no particular virtue in this National Protective Payment plan?

A. Oh, yes, there is, from the standpoint of getting business, increasing our sales.

Q. It has nothing to do with the question, no relation to the question of credit? You know what I mean by "credit"—the soundness of credit, value of credit?

A. That feature is gone into at the time sale is made, or rather, before sale is made; but it has not been selected by reason of being particularly advantageous from a credit standpoint. It has been selected as a means of increasing business, provided the credit is satisfactory.

Q. Well, I understood you to testify that the sum and substance of the plan was that these accounts had the security or the guaranty of endorsement of a third party, who would be the plumber or jobber or somebody, so that [fol. 313] they were two-party notes instead of one-party notes; and in addition there was a life insurance arrangement to give further protection. This additional party endorsement and this life insurance arrangement was all directed, was it not, to added credit responsibility?

A. It was added as an attractive feature for the buyer.

Q. You mean to say, it is more attractive to the buyer to go out and get some life insurance and get some third party to endorse his note than it is to take the property on his own credit, without having to bother with the life insurance or with the third party endorsement? Is that what you intend to suggest?

A. I mean to convey this idea: that in presenting the sale of our product in accordance with the plans of the National Protective Payment Plan, we do so in a way that it attracts the householder to buy goods in accordance with that plan. It seems to give him ample protection, in that his payments are made to us, in event of his death prior to the liquidation of the notes or the obligation.

Q. Well, you regard this arrangement as giving ample protection to you, don't you?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Now, then, after taking out of the aggregate of $1,673,373.59 of accounts receivable, as they appear on your inventory, the item of $356,257, which was the mere bookkeeping inter-company account, and therefore not a real account—after taking that out, and after taking out the account for the money, which is $86,000, more or less, which is owed to you by the Steel Boiler Company, we have ap- [fol. 314] plicable to a balance of about $1,300,000—between $1,300,000 and $1,400,000—reserve of a hundred seventy odd thousand dollars, or reserve at a percentage of considerably more than ten per cent. Do you regard that to be a large reserve as against the accounts to which it applies?

A. Now, your question was what, Mr. Royall?

Q. I called your attention to the fact, after eliminating from the aggregate of $1,673,373.59 receivables this purely bookkeeping or inter-company item of $356,257 and this item of the $86,000 owed from the Steel Boiler Company, which you have testified in respect of, we have a balance of between $1,300,000 and $1,400,000 as against which this reserve of $179,000 is applied and applicable. Is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. The reserve is only applicable to that much of it?

A. It is my recollection it is.

Q. Now, then, I call your attention that that reserve is approximately twelve per cent.

A. Yes.

Q. And I ask you whether or not, in your opinion, that is not a very high reserve?

A. In view of the present condition in the industry, I would say that it was not excessive; it would be wise to set up a reserve like that. We have failures occurring constantly among the smaller trade, and even some jobbing concerns.

Q. Well, I suppose you had written off from time to time the really stale accounts, had you not?

[fol. 315] A. Yes.

Q. In this aggregate before the reserve you only had left what would be called, perhaps, live accounts?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was against such accounts that you were setting up a reserve of approximately twelve per cent. Is that not so?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, will you tell us, please, to what extent the accounts and notes comprising these items have been collected by the receivers?

A. That is something that I cannot give you right now. I would have to take the inventory and work it out for you.

Q. I suppose the receivers have been pursuing actively the business of collecting the accounts of the corporation?

A. We have, yes.

Q. Well, tell us generally with what success you have been doing that.

A. Well, the accounts as of December, about forty per cent of them were beyond the normal period of collection, which we consider—if twenty per cent are past due, that is about normal in this industry, but in December something over forty per cent were past due.

Q. Well, can't you tell us this without taking the time of the Court to go through the papers too meticulously? Tell us within a hundred thousand or two hundred thousand dollars, please, one way or another, if you can, more or less, how much of the corporation's accounts receivable the receivers have collected? We won't ask you to be too [fol. 316] accurate. Make it more or less, within two hundred thousand dollars.

A. As of December, we received on account of notes receivable from customers $13,932.24——

Q. You said as of December. Do you mean during the month of December?

A. The month of December, yes. Notes receivable from the Protective Payment plan $19,530.18; interest on customers' notes and others, $3,875.23——

Q. You are starting in the middle of the period, aren't you—starting in December?

A. Yes. I am going to work back to the beginning.

Q. Why don't you start with October? That was the first month. To save time,—would you be prepared to admit that you have collected more than half the accounts receivable since the receivership—the receivers have collected more than half the accounts receivable?

A. I can tell you here very well, if you will bear with me for a minute.

Q. All right. Starting with October, then, give us the detailed figures.

A. In October we collected from accounts receivable, customers, $410,173.14; accounts receivable, employees, refunds of advances and payments on accounts, $65.08; notes receivable, Protective Payment plan, $11,096.39; interest on customers' notes and notes $2,721.45; including the finance charges of the Protective Payment Plan notes $3,008.49. Then for the month of November; accounts receivable from customers collected, $477,249.73; accounts receiv- [fol. 317] able, employees, refunds on advances, $564; notes receivable, customers, $9,001.33; notes receivable, Protective Payment plan $18,358.01; interest, customers and others, $3,461.70; finance charges on Protective Payment Plan notes, $1,735.33. For the month of December, $368,322.86 accounts receivable, customers; accounts receivable, employees, refunds on advances or payments on account, $134; notes receivable, customers, $15,932.24; notes receivable, Protective Payment Plan, $19,350.18; interest, customers and others, $3,875.23; finance charges Protective Plan notes, $459.31.

Q. The last month there was December?

A. December.

Q. That is as far as you can take us now?

A. As far as I can take you now.

Q. Well, can you state generally whether the collections have been going along, shall we say normally and satisfactorily during January and February?

A. They have been more difficult in January and February.

Q. Well, have they been substantially in comparison with the collections during previous months?

A. Well, I would say they have been slower; I would say twice as slow.

Q. Well, in aggregate amount, have they been half as little?

A. No, I wouldn't say that.

Q. Well, have you collected, in addition to the figures that you have given the details of, a substantial amount on account of these notes and accounts receivable since December, 1931?

A. That I am unable to tell you.

[fol. 318] Q. You cannot tell whether you have collected a substantial sum or not?

A. Oh, we have collected some, yes.

Q. I asked you if you are prepared to say that you have collected a substantial amount?

A. What do you mean by substantial—a half million?

Q. Something substantial, as compared to the collections that are indicated by the figures heretofore given.

A. Yes, I would say so.

Q. Well, Mr. Waters, isn't it a fact that the aggregate of the collections you have made during the months of October, November and December is approximately equal, if not more—I haven't computed all these figures, excepting in my head, as you went along—but don't they aggregate more than the sum total of your notes and accounts receivable at the time of the inventory, after deducting this bookkeeping, inter-company account, deducting this $86,000 item from the Steel Boiler Company, and crediting the $178,000 reserve? After making those deductions and credits, you would have left less than a million dollars to collect, and you have collected it, haven't you?

A. We have accounts and notes receivable as of the first of the year, around $850,000.

Q. Well, those aren't more than the equivalent—that $850,000—of the receivables which were made by sales of the receivers? Isn't that so?

A. I can't say it was all made by the receivers, no, because some of that was on the record at the time of the receivership.

[fol. 319] Q. My question is this: Did the receivers make sales aggregating more than $850,000 during the period, October to December, 1931? I don't mean making cash sales. I wish to exclude that. Sales on credit, I refer to. I want to qualify that question to sales on credit.

A. Our sales from the time of the receivership to the first of the year were, roughly, around $1,119,000.

Q. Some of those were cash sales, I suppose?

A. Some, yes; most of them, under the usual terms of credit, sixty days.

Q. Well, did you think you created new receivables during the period mentioned aggregating more than eight or nine hundred thousand dollars?

A. I would say not.

Q. Well, then, it is a fact, is it not, before December 31st the receivers had already collected on account of receivables an amount at least equivalent to the receivables shown by the inventory herein, after crediting against reserves, crediting against the bookkeeping, inter-company account of $366,000, and crediting this $86,000 item from the Steel Boiler Company?

A. About the same, yes.

Q. The receivers, under the order which they have obtained from Court authorizing them to operate this business, have used care, have they not, only to manufacture merchandise which they believed to be marketable?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. The receivers have used care also, have they not, to [fol. 320] examine closely into the credits upon any goods which they may have as receivers sold upon credit?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, I should like to direct your attention to items that are on your inventory under the heading "Investments." I find there an item "Stocks $99,377.21". Will you tell me of what that is composed?

A. That included various capital stocks in hotels and other enterprises which were purchased at the time heating equipment was furnished to different concerns, or accepted as payments on account of purchase of our product—or rather, the corporation's product.

Q. Is that all it includes?

A. Principally, yes; includes some stock in the National Steel Tube Boiler Company.

Q. Oh, it does? It includes that, too, does it? I see. How much stock of the National Steel Tube Boiler Company does it include, how many shares?

A. I don't recall. Something over the majority; around 1,500 shares of the corporation.

Q. 1,500 shares outstanding, you say?

A. No, 6,300 outstanding—I mean 630 outstanding.

Q. Well, what did you say about 1,500 shares?

A. 1,500 was the capitalization.

Q. 1,500 was the authorized capital?

A. Yes.

Q. And 630 was the issued capital? Is that what you intend to say?

A. Yes.

Q. But you don't know how many out of that 630 shares belongs to the corporation?

[fol. 321] A. No, I don't; I would have to look that up.

Q. Well, will you look that up, please?

A. I can, yes.

Q. Now, can you tell us how much that is carried at on the books?

A. Around $55,000.

Q. So that this item of investments is chiefly made up of that—more than half?

A. And the hotel company stock, and stock in other enterprises who were furnished radiation.

Q. Do you know how that figure of fifty-five thousand odd, at which the stock in the Steel Boiler Company was carried, was arrived at for the purposes of your inventory.

A. It was the purchase price of the stock.

Q. You mean to say that the defendant corporation paid into the treasury of the——

A. Steel Boiler Company.

Q. —of the Steel Boiler Company fifty-five thousand odd dollars for stock?

A. Thirty-five thousand.

Q. I thought you said it was fifty-five?

A. No, thirty-five.

Q. Didn't you say it was fifty-five before?

A. No, thirty-five.

Q. But they paid other moneys—the defendant corporation paid other moneys besides this $35,000 into the treasury of the Steel Boiler Company?

A. It paid bills.

Q. Well, it paid their bills for them, all right. To what extent did they furnish money to them, or for them, beyond $35,000?

[fol. 322] A. In the neighborhood of eighty-three thousand, something like that.

Q. I thought you said eighty-three thousand, or eighty-six. I thought you said before whatever was the balance due upon advances—that was the balance due after certain credits. Didn't you say that?

A. Well, maybe I misunderstood your question. What was the question?

Q. Well, I asked the aggregate extent of the moneys they furnished them. It was testified eighty-six thousand was the balance due on the money.

A. Around eighty-six was the balance due, yes. I will have to look up and see how much was advanced.

Q. Do you want to give us a rough idea?

A. No, I do not. I would like to give you the exact figures.

Q. Well, I would like to have the exact figures, if it is convenient, but——

A. Well, it isn't convenient; I will have to look it up for you.

Q. Well, I say I would just as soon have a rough figure, if you can tell us what it is?

A. Well, I can't tell you that. I would have to find it for you.

Q. Will you do that?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you have got under the title of "Investments" the item "Real estate, Edgewater Apartment Hotel, $51,172.31." What is that?

A. It is an apartment hotel in Chicago that was taken over by the company to liquidate a debt due the corporation.

[fol. 323] Q. Due from whom?

A. A heating contractor in Chicago.

Q. When did you acquire that property?

A. Acquired that several months ago.

Q. You mean recently, before the receivership?

A. Well, it was acquired about the time of the receivership, as I recall.

Q. Then the figure $51,172.31 written against it signified, perhaps, that that was the amount of the indebtedness for which you took the property?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you take it as security for the indebtedness, or did you take title to the property?

A. We have title to the property.

Q. Did you take it in satisfaction of the indebtedness, or merely take title as collateral security for the payment?

A. We have taken it in satisfaction of the claim.

Q. So it is yours in every sense of the word?

A. It is ours in every sense of the word.

Q. Is it a completed apartment?

A. Yes, as far as I know. I have never seen it.

Q. Is there a mortgage upon it?

A. There is, yes.

Q. Have you ever seen an appraisal of it?

A. No; I don't recall the appraisal of it.

Q. Have you taken any steps toward obtaining an appraisal of it by real estate experts in Chicago?

A. Not yet.

Q. Have you any information whatsoever as to what it is worth?

A. Based on the values at the time the apartment was [fol. 324] financed, I would say that it was worth today the amount of money which is represented here in our inventory.

Q. You mean that the equity in it is worth that?

A. I think so, yes.

Q. Well, have you received somebody else's opinion about what it is worth?

A. I would have to.

Q. You have?

A. Yes.

Q. So that you have had an appraisal of it in that sense—perhaps not a formal appraisal?

A. Not a formal appraisal, no.

Q. But somebody who you think knows about those things has given you an opinion of what it is worth?

A. Yes.

Q. Some real estate man in——

A. In Chicago; I don't know who he was.

Q. Well, I don't care who it was, but you have had the opinion of some Chicago real estate man?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, what was his opinion?

A. Something substantially above the amount that we carried on the books there; as I recall, around $75,000.

Q. Your best recollection is that his opinion was that your equity was worth $75,000?

A. The property was worth that.

Q. You mean your equity in it?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, there is another item under "Investments," [fol. 325] "Life insurance policies, cash surrender value, $18,934." I suppose that explains itself, doesn't it? They have a cash surrender value of that amount of money?

A. Yes.

Q. They can be converted at will into cash for that amount of money?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, there is an item under a heading "Special Deposits", "New York State Highway Bonds deposited with Department of Labor of that State, $15,550.40." Does the Corporation own those bonds?

A. Yes.

Q. They are a municipal—or state issue of the State of New York?

A. I don't recall the bonds.

Q. Well, you understand by "New York Highway bonds" an issue by the State of New York?

A. Yes. I can't give you the detail as to rate of interest and maturity, and so forth; I can't give you that.

Q. Well, you know what a municipal or state bond is, don't you, in that sense?

A. Yes.

Q. And they are such bonds?

A. Yes.

Q. And the price, or figure, $15,550 is cost, I suppose, of that investment?

A. I think so, yes.

Q. Are you of the opinion that those are realizable at approximately their inventory value?

A. I frankly don't know what the market price of these bonds is today, I couldn't tell you.

[fol. 326] Q. Well, the New York State bonds are selling a little bit better than four per cent, yearly basis—and most of them are Four Per Cents—and that would just about accord with your $15,550 cost valuation. They have not gone down an awful lot, New York States, a little perhaps. Now, how long ago did you make that investment?

A. I don't know. Those bonds were deposited to take care of the compensation insurance of employees in New York, but I don't recall when the bonds were required. My recollection is they were required some time prior to the receivership.

Q. You understand, by taking out and underwriting this insurance from an accredited insurance company, you could conform to the New York requirements in such a way as to have these bonds come back into your treasury?

A. Oh yes; yes, sir.

Q. So that, in that sense, they are always available to you to use as though they were cash? Now, Mr. Waters, upon direct examination you testified to an opinion of what you consider the items of cash, inventory, receivables and plants to be fairly worth, for the purposes of fixing a fair upset price upon a judicial sale, and you were asked by your counsel to proceed to give your opinion upon the basis of a principle or rule of procedure set down by Judge Wilkerson in a case decided by him, from which your counsel read an excerpt. Now, will you please state in your own way what you understood and understand to be the principle and rule upon which the valuations that you did give, in answer to your counsel's question, is? What rule actu-[fol. 327] ated you? What rule were you actuated by? State it in your own way. Paraphrase in your own way what you understood Judge Wilkerson's principle or rule of procedure to be.

A. My understanding of an upset price is this: It is a price that is fixed by the Court, below which the Court would not permit property to be sold.

Q. Because the minimum would be so low as to shock the conscience of the Court?

A. Perhaps.

Q. Well, I don't suppose you are putting yourself in the Court's place, and try to say for the Court what the Court ought or ought not to do in confirming some bid that might be made, or some sale here? You are not doing that, are you?

A. I don't intend to speak for the Court, no. That is my understanding what an upset price is, a price below which the Court would not sell, or would not permit the sale of a property.

Q. We will have to put it this way: That you are stating the price below which a Court should not confirm the sale?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And should not, because it would be such a low price that even you, substituting yourself for the Court, would say that you would be shocked at anything below that being acceptable to a Court because of its gross inadequacy. Is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. You didn't intend to express any opinion, did you, when you said that this inventory of $1,634,000, as it now stands, should be put in for that purpose for $327,000?-You [fol. 328] didn't mean to say that you do not think the receivers, in the course of the execution of their duty as such, in collecting upon the inventory now in their hands, cannot get more than $327,000 for that? You don't mean to say that, do you?

A. I do; that is my opinion.

Q. Do you mean to tell this Court, in the face of the fact that you have testified here upon cross examination that the receivers have collected—have sold a very large part of the inventory of this corporation at prices substantially greater—at least twenty or twenty-five per cent greater—I will just say substantially greater than the inventory prices—You don't mean to suggest to the Court that the remaining inventory of $1,634,000 cost, that you can only fairly anticipate $327,000 on it? If that is what you want to tell the Court, say so.

A. I do, if you propose liquidating.

Q. Well, aren't you liquidating now?

A. If you propose carrying on the business, operating the business, I say no.

Q. Well, let us analyze that. Your customers know they are dealing with receivers, don't they?

A. Yes.

Q. Your customers know when this receivership is going to terminate?

A. Do they know it?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. Do they know how it is going to terminate?

A. No.

Q. And these receivers, as such, and notwithstanding [fol. 329] that they are receivers, nevertheless, have been able to collect a great deal more money on inventory, all told, than they have left to collect on?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there any reason that you can point to why, notwithstanding that they are receivers, they cannot continue to do so?

A. As long as we continue to operate the business of the Radiator Corporation as a going concern, we will continue —should be able to continue to do business in about the way we have done it since the receivership. However, if we were to announce tomorrow that we were liquidating the affairs of the Radiator Corporation, in my estimation inventories would shrink to about the figure that I have given you.

Q. Is there any occasion to announce tomorrow that you are going to liquidate the National Radiator Company in every sense, even though tomorrow you were going to do so?

A. No, but it would become known very quickly, because we would soon be unable to furnish a balanced line of product, which in itself is an admission of liquidation.

Q. Well, don't you keep your produce as well as you can in balance?

A. Yes, but that doesn't mean you can continue to furnish a balanced product to meet the varying demands of the trade.

Q. Well, the time would come—I can't quite understand——

A. And it comes very quickly. With the inventory low, as it is today, Mr. Royall, you have to constantly be chang- [fol. 330] ing the patterns in your foundry, otherwise you will build up an inventory which is undesirable at this time.

Q. Mr. Waters, so far as you have given any specific figures here as to realization upon inventory—and those were for the months of October, November and December—they show, as I recollect, an average of over $400,000 a month. Is that right?

A. Not quite $400,000.

Q. Well, a little under $400,000. Is that it?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, upon that basis, within one month from now, if you started manufacturing, you would have every reason to believe that you would sell $400,000 of the stuff, wouldn't you?

A. If within a month we started to manufacture?

Q. No, if today you stopped your operations, is there any reason in the world why within a month from today you should not have sold $400,000 of the inventory? You sold $400,000 in December——

A. Our sales for January are below December.

Q. Well, whatever the average has been, not being technical, whether it is a little bit above four hundred thousand or a little bit below four hundred thousand. But whether you admit or not, it is plain upon the face of things that it must be so?

Mr. Teall: Plain that what must be so?

Mr. Royall: Plain upon the face of things that the inventory, if it is a standard and merchantable article today, is a standard and merchantable article tomorrow—even [fol. 331] though Mr. Waters made up his mind when he went to bed tonight that tomorrow he was going to stop operations.

A. Provided we had a sufficiently balanced stock. I pointed out yesterday there are over three thousand parts in our boiler inventory, there are four hundred and some in our radiation. Now, you can't do business with a low inventory and be prepared to meet all the demands of your trade, when you are handling quantities—handling as many and as great a variety of parts as we are.

Q. Well, you have testified here that your effort is to keep your inventory in proper balance?

A. We have, yes.

Q. And I suppose your experience in the business has enabled you by careful methods to accomplish that to some extent. And the time certainly would not come immediately—you don't mean to tell me, and the Court, that the time would come immediately, or tomorrow, or even quickly, comparatively speaking, when your inventory would be out of balance?

A. Yes, I do; for this reason: We are carrying stock of radiation and boilers at Framingham, Massachusetts, we are carrying stocks at Garden City, at Brooklyn warehouse, we are carrying stocks at Baltimore, Washington and Richmond, we have a stock of radiation and boilers at Chicago, at Cincinnati. Now, how we can maintain those various stocks in balance, and not continue to produce, is beyond my comprehension.

Q. Do you want me to tell you—and I am not a business man?

[fol. 332] A. I would like to have you tell me.

Q. If you have got more radiators, as it might happen, in your warehouse in Baltimore, or some other place, than you have boilers to go with them, and if you have got more boilers in Chicago than you have radiators to go with them, and a few more of this and that, less and more, here and there, why, ship the bloomin' boilers from the place where they are to the place where they are needed, and vice versa.

A. Your customer is not going to wait for you. If you don't have it on the job, he won't take it. That sounds very good, but it isn't practical.

Q. Well, I don't believe it is so terribly great a difficulty——

A. Why, of course it is.

Q. —that you have got to throw the stuff away, that you have to throw it out of the window.

A. Of course it is. It is one of the evils of this industry today. Everybody is carrying stock all over the country, and if you can't make shipments immediately, why, you lose the order.

The Court: Very interesting argument, you are having, but suppose we get a little testimony in.

Mr. Royall: I think your Honor's remark is quite called for. I apologize.

Q. Are you bearing in mind, Mr. Waters, while talking about this inventory, that as the receivers do sell it in normal course they get more for it than they are carrying it for —that the spread between selling price and cost is there.

[fol. 333] Are you overlooking that in telling the Court that you think the best they could realize on this is $327,000?

A. I have taken that into consideration.

Q. Very well. We will leave that subject. Now, we come to receivables.

Mr. Royall: I have not finished with the witness, your Honor, but I have been asked to suspend, for the convenience of another witness.

(Witness temporarily withdrawn.)

TESTIMONY OF R. B. FLERSHEM

R. B. FLERSHEM, a witness produced on behalf of the complainants, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. You are one of the complainants in this case, are you not?

A. I am.

Q. And a member of the reorganization committee?

A. I am.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. Buffalo, New York.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. Banker.

Q. Connected with what institution?

A. Marine Trust Company.

[fol. 334] Q. In what capacity?

A. Vice president.

Q. How long have you held that position?

A. Five years next September.

Q. What was your business before you became connected with the Marine Bank & Trust Company?

A. I was in the American Radiator Company.

Q. How long?

A. Twenty-five years.

Q. In what capacity?

A. From a cub salesman to vice president, in charge of sales.

Q. How long were you vice president, in charge of sales?

A. Eight years.

Q. What was your connection, if any, with the National Radiator Corporation prior to the receivership?

A. I was asked to become a chairman of the executive committee, which I did on September 1, 1928.

Q. And continued in that position for how long?

A. Until the receivership.

Q. Did that enable you to become generally familiar with the problems and affairs of the National Radiator Corporation?

A. In a general way, yes.

Q. What is the position of the American Radiator Corporation in the industry from the standpoint of the volume of its business? Is it a large concern or a small concern?

A. It is dominating in the industry. I don't know just what percentage of the total industry it represents now, [fol. 335] but the last year I was with it it sold nearly half of all the boilers and radiators sold in the United States.

Q. While you were in charge of sales for the American Radiator Company, did you have any experience in the liquidation of obsolete radiation and boiler stock?

A. Yes, that was constant, due to improvements in product. We had a monthly inventory of obsolete product, both boilers and radiators. For example, where we sold a hundred thousand boilers a year, we would perhaps have a hundred obsolete boilers to sell during a year. We found it more difficult to sell an obsolete boiler at a discount of forty-five or fifty per cent from the regular price than to sell regular product at the regular price, because there is not any market for an obsolete product.

Mr. Royall: I don't want to interrupt unnecesarily, but I don't see the materiality of this. The testimony of the general manager and the chief receiver is that there is no obsolete stuff in this inventory.

Mr. Teall: It has also been testified that it all becomes obsolete as soon as you go out of business.

The Court: Go ahead.

Q. Now, do your duties in your position with the bank involve any connection with the real estate market?

[fol. 336] A. Yes, I have charge—I am the president of the company that has title to all the real estate that has been taken over by the bank during the past year or so—longer than that. The past few years—in liquidation of debts.

Q. The properties that you have had to do with, have they been residential properties or industrial properties, or both?

A. All kinds.

Q. Confining your answer to the present time, and for, say, six or eight months last past, will you state whether the real estate market, particularly in respect of industrial properties, is active or otherwise?

A. Well, very inactive.

Q. You have some connection, I believe, with what I will call sick companies, outside of this National Radiator Corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell the Court about that?

Mr. Royall: I object to that. I don't know that his impressions about sick companies generally are of any materiality.

The Court: It is on the question of qualification.

Mr. Teall: That is all. It is just qualification.

A. I am on the reorganization committee for the Wickwire-Spencer Steel Company, and I am a member of bank[fol. 337] ers' committees for Brockway Motor Truck Company, for Pearce, Butler & Pearce, manufacturers of boilers and radiators, and Richardson & Boynton, a boiler manufacturer and jobber of radiators.

Q. Have you given any consideration to the advisability or nonadvisability of endeavoring to convert the assets and properties of National Radiator Corporation into cash?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you come to any conclusions on that subject?

A. Yes.

Q. What?

A. I would endeavor to continue the company as a going concern, and not try to sell its assets for cash.

Q. Why not?

A. Some of them are not salable.

Q. What ones are not salable?

A. The plants.

Q. Do you think those would be salable at all?

A. I don't think you could get a bit on any of them now. I might say for the three largest manufacturers in the industry, who have operated thirty-one plants, they are operating six now. And the only radiator and boiler plant that has been sold since 1928 was the Utica Heating Corporation plant, sold by the National Radiator Corporation to Richardson Boynton, and that is not paid for yet.

Mr. Royall:

Q. Are you in position to state of your own knowledge that is the only one that has been sold?

[fol. 338] A. I haven't heard of another one, and I am sure I would, if one had been sold.

Mr. Teall:

Q. You know that there are six in operation at the present time out of thirty-one?

A. Out of thirty-one.

Q. Now, in an endeavor of a company going out of business to liquidate its inventory, what would you expect?

A. Well, the minute a company endeavored to liquidate its inventory, the trade understanding it is going out of business, its entire inventory would immediately be classed as obsolete. No one would want to buy it, for the reason, a steam fitter bidding on a contract on a house, and was including one of these boilers, his competitor would call attention to that fact, tell the owner about it, and the owner doesn't want to buy a boiler when he can't buy a repair part for it afterwards. Consequently the obsolete product is very difficult to sell at any price by a going concern, and in my opinion it would be very much more difficult to sell at a panic price by a concern that was going out of business. I might add, I bought a house ten years ago in Buffalo that is fifty years old, with a obsolete boiler in it, the boiler wasn't being manufactured; I had to replace a few grate bars, I couldn't buy them, I found I would have to pay such a high price to have them made, I preferred to buy a new boiler and take the obsolete boiler out. That is just an illustration of the situation.

Q. Would you expect any substantial amount of time to [fol. 339] be required in converting the inventory of a defunct concern into cash?

A. I don't quite get that question.

Q. Would you expect a substantial amount of time to be required in converting the inventory of a defunct concern into cash?

A. Yes; the volume of business is extremely small in the industry now. The producing capacity is extremely large, and if I were given a job to sell a nine million foot and twelve million pound radiator and boiler inventory for a concern that was known to be out of business, I would start by offering it at half price, and then I would offer it down about five per cent every month or two until I got it sold, and I would expect to have to scrap the last twenty or twenty-five per cent of the product.

Q. And of course there would be an expense in connection with marketing these goods?

A. I think you would have to maintain at least half the selling organization. I might say that in the American Radiator Company, when we changed patterns in 1926, we scrapped about a million feet of radiation finally, and we were a going concern.

Q. In your opinion, would the value and collectibility of accounts receivable be affected if the concern should go out of business?

A. Yes. When the National Radiator Corporation was organized, from the inherited accounts of the six companies from which it was organized, it carried over into 1928 a loss of accounts of those inherited accounts, which I recall was something over three hundred thousand dollars, which largely accounted for the bad showing of the company in [fol. 340] 1928. You see, I came in in 1928, so I know that.

Q. The accounts receivable on the books of this corporation at this time, you are familiar with them in a general way?

A. In a general way.

Q. With their amounts and character?

A. In a general way, not in detail.

Q. Have you an opinion as to how long it would take to exhaust the collection possibilities of those accounts, if the company was out of business?

A. It would take a long time.

Q. By "a long time" what do you mean—five years, ten years, one year, six months?

A. Well, I would think you would get a very large percentage of them in a couple of years. But I should think it would take two years to get any percentage—ninety per cent, for example.

Q. Would you expect it to take longer or not so long to collect them, after the concern was defunct, as when it was operating in the usual way?

A. Well, a steam fitter would pay the company he was doing business with first, and the company that had gone out of business last. I am sure of that. So I think it is perfectly evident it would take much longer.

Q. Did you make any effort to dispose of any of the plants of the National Radiator Corporation prior to this receivership?

A. Yes.

Q. What plants?

A. I let a good friend of mine know in Buffalo—he was [fol. 341] the leading real estate man—that we had a plant we would like to dispose of, and if he knew of anyone who was in the market for any kind of a plant, to let me know. Off and on, for the past year I have said that to him, and he hasn't had any—I don't think a plant has been sold in Buffalo in 1931. I might say that we have in our real estate company in the bank a number of factory properties that have been vacated, we have not been able to obtain any bids at all for them at any price in the last six to eight months.

Q. You are familiar, I suppose, with the figures in the receivers' inventory and with the general financial situation of the National Radiator Corporation at the present time?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you an opinion as to the present liquidating value, if any, of the entire assets of this corporation?

A. Yes.

Mr. Royall: I object to such an opinion. I think it is highly improper for him to give an opinion at all, because I think he is not an expert qualified to do it, and if he is going to give one, I think he should be required to make it up at least by some itemization. I don't think it is proper for anybody to wave his hand here and give a figure like that.

The Court: I will overrule the objection at this time. You can, of course, bring it out on cross examination. I note you an exception.

[fol. 342] Q. What is the figure you have in mind, Mr. Flershem?

A. One hundred per cent, of course, for cash items.

Q. When you say "cash items" you include cash and the Government bonds of the company?

A. Yes.

Mr. Royall:

Q. I suppose you include the life insurance there too, don't you?

A. I am putting that on extra at one hundred per cent, under miscellaneous items. Cash and Government bonds at one hundred per cent. I put receivables at fifty per cent; regular accounts at forty per cent, and National Protective Association accounts at ninety per cent, making an average of about fifty per cent for the receivables. I put inventory at thirty per cent, twenty per cent to be scrapped at one-fifth of cost, balance eighty per cent to be sold at one-third of cost; fifty per cent from the selling price is about sixty per cent of cost. That would give a total return from the inventory figures of thirty per cent. Now, add to those figures one hundred per cent for the cash surrender value of the life insurance, for the special deposit under the New York State insurance law, $17,000, and for the other investment item, $12,000; total of $48,000. That would give me——

Q. You speak of another investment item. May I ask what you mean?

A. From investment, Semi-Public, book value $99,000.

Q. Are you reading from the inventory?

[fol. 343] A. No, I am reading from a review made by Mr. Cornell of our reorganization committee.

Q. You have $99,000 for what?

A. From investment, semi-public, book value $99,000. I am taking Mr. Cornell's figure there at $12,000. In that manner I arrive at the following valuation: Cash, one hundred per cent, approximately $1,800,000; receivables; fifty per cent, $425,000, as of December 31; inventory, thirty per cent, $480,000—$1,600,000 for inventory; that makes a total of $2,705,000. Add $48,000 for these miscellaneous items, gives $2,753,000. Now, the expense of liquidation I put down for two years about half the current expense, would make about $750,000. The net return would be $2,300,000.

Mr. Teall:

Q. The total net figure, then, representing your opinion of the liquidating value of the entire property is approximately $2,300,000?

A. Yes. Cash value under forced liquidation, immediate forced liquidation.

Q. $2,300,000?

A. $2,300,000.

Q. Do you have any financial interest in the National Radiator Corporation?

A. No; I have never had.

Q. How did you become connected with the concern?

A. Mr. Waters asked me to try and assist him.

Q. When you say Mr. Waters, which Mr. Waters do you refer to?

[fol. 344] A. Mr. John H. Waters. We had been competitors and friends for many years.

Cross-examination.

Mr. Royall:

Q. You left out of your summary the investment in the Steel Boiler Company. Do you know anything about the Steel Boiler Company? Did anybody tell you about that?

A. I know very little about that.

Q. You left that out wholly. You think that ought to go along kind of with the "tail of the dog" idea? Is that your idea about it?

A. Well, as I understand it, there is about as much owed there as there is equity.

Q. Owed to whom?

A. National Radiator Corporation.

Q. Don't you expect them to get that? Are you writing that account down too?

A. I don't see much value there. What can you sell that plant for for cash today, under forced liquidation?

Q. Well, in your opinion, should this $86,000 indebtedness of the Steel Boiler Company be written down fifty per cent, along with the other receivables, and the whole affair disposed of that way?

A. Yes.

Q. And the stock you consider worthless?

A. Well, you couldn't sell it.

Q. You consider it worthless, do you?

A. I don't think you could get any cash for it.

Q. Well, you said a moment ago you didn't know much about it?

[fol. 345] A. That is true; I don't know much about it.

Q. How much do you know about it?

A. I know they are making a few sales, not a large volume of sales.

Q. Do you know enough about it to give an opinion one way or the other to the Court?

A. I know they are making just a few sales.

Q. Did you hear Mr. Waters—Mr. Robert S. Waters—testify about that subject?

A. I heard most of it.

Q. Do you think he knows what he is talking about, or he didn't know what he is talking about?

A. I think he knows pretty well what he is talking about.

Q. Do you think he knew what he was talking about when he talked about that subject?

A. Why, yes.

Q. Do you think you know more about that subject than he does?

A. No.

Q. Are you willing to accept his opinion as superior to yours, as to the value of that item?

A. I didn't hear him say that you could sell it for anything.

Q. You wish to stand by your opinion that the most that you are willing to attribute to that, stock and loan together, is fifty per cent of the loan?

A. Yes.

Q. That is all you ascribe to that? You want to stick to that? All right, we will leave that. Now, as to the other accounts receivable, I understand that in your opinion they should be depreciated only to the extent of ninety per cent [fol. 346] of those that have this security under this—what do you call the plan?

A. National Protective Association.

Q. Yes—those you think are collectible, with a ten per cent discount?

A. I should think there would be—they are a two-name paper, that is counting it high.

Q. And the rest of the accounts receivable, you put those in at thirty?

A. Forty.

Q. And thus you get a general average of about fifty?

A. That is right.

Q. Have you heard it testified here that most of the accounts receivable, or the bulk of the accounts receivable of the Corporation have been already collected—indeed, that more has been collected—that more was collected during the months of October, November and December than the whole amount at which the customers' accounts receivable was carried less discount? Did you hear that?

A. Oh, that is by a going concern; that is very different from a forced liquidation.

Q. It was by the receivers, wasn't it?

A. Yes, but the receivers were carrying on a going business. It is generally anticipated in the trade that this concern is going to continue in business, no matter what has been told by anyone, competitors or anyone else.

Q. The trade has been doing business with the receivers, hasn't it?

A. Yes.

[fol. 347] Q. Isn't it an assumption, in the nature of things, that when a corporation would go so far down it is in the hands of receivers, that it may or may not go on?

A. Yes.

Q. And haven't you heard it testified to here in court today that the receivers—the receivers—have been able to collect within a period of less than three months from the date of the receivership an amount in excess of the customers' accounts at the date of the receivership?

A. Yes, Mr. Royall, but the receivers are manufacturing currently, and producing and selling, and advertising, and carrying on the affairs of the business almost exactly the same as the corporation did before the receivership. The trade observed that, and they considered it a going concern. It would be a very different thing if the receivership was ended and forced liquidation started—very different.

Q. Well, suppose, if you will, if the Court should authorize—and that is what I am going to ask the Court to do here—the receivers to continue the collection of these accounts receivable, not to turn them over but to collect them. Are you basing your testimony on some theory that because the receivers may at some time during the process of collecting stop manufacturing, that there is any legal defense to the account? You are not trying to suggest that, I suppose?

A. If there is any legal defense?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't know just what you mean.

Q. You know what a legal defense is by a debtor and a creditor——

[fol. 348] The Court: Well, suppose we pass, that there is no legal defense to it.

A. I know this, Mr. Royall: That if the Court orders this to be liquidated, the trade will know it, and the competitors will know it, and it will be generally known throughout the country in a week, unless it is to be a forced liquidation proposition immediately; and most of the debtors will delay their payments and amass claims against their accounts, cancelling them in large part—and all those things that you know as well as I do.

Q. Notwithstanding, you think that in cases where we get two names for each account, as debtors on each account, that we can collect ninety per cent, whereas, if we only have one name, we can only collect forty per cent?

A. Very much higher percentage—very much higher.

Q. I am glad to have your ideas on that. Now, your inventory, you put that in at a straight thirty per cent?

A. That is right.

Q. Don't you know that the receivers have, notwithstanding that they are receivers—and you have heard testified here, they have sold a large part of the inventory at prices very subtsantially above inventory prices?

A. The National Radiator Corporation in receivership is regarded as a going concern, its product is not regarded as obsolete. The minute it is ordered to liquidate its assets, all of its product immediately becomes obsolete and drops [fol. 349] fifty pre cent in value at once, the same as a used automobile.

Q. Now, let us see what you mean by "at once"?

A. Inside of a week.

Q. Let us suppose that the receivers decided that they were not going to go ahead any further. Wouldn't it be their duty to go forward and make sales, the best way they could?

A. Yes, but they couldn't conceal the fact that they were liquidating the company, the competitors wouldn't let them.

Q. Why can't they conceal the fact? Why can't they?

A. Immediately it will be known that the plants are all shut down. Your competitors will know it the very next day. Their salesmen will spread the news at once.

Q. Our plants are practically all shut down here, comparatively speaking. We are running along in a crippled sort of fashion—enough for our competitors to make it the basis of a rumor. Couldn't they do it?

A. No, they know two plants are operating. They know one is operating five days a week and the other one three days a week.

Q. If a competitor wanted to go around suggesting that the receivers are not going to carry on, isn't he in just as good a position to do so now, because in the meantime the receivers decided not to go ahead?

A. No, that is not the truth now, and it would be then. You can't keep the proceedings in this court-room secret. These proceedings are being followed by competitors, they [fol. 350] will know tomorrow what occurred here today.

Q. Now then, consider this possibility—and here is something I would like to have you answer me, very much, because I think you are qualified probably to do it: You don't think it advantageous, I suppose, to the newly reorganized committee that your committee proposes to bring into existence to be carrying a lot of idle plants, or do you think it advantageous?

A. No.

Q. Do you think you would be better off to have the plants, or not to have the idle plants?

A. Why, that is a pretty hard question to answer. If there is an upturn in the business sufficient to warrant using them, it would be advantageous to keep them, for the next couple of years; but my judgment would be they could take a chance on selling some of them, not all of them. I wouldn't think that was good judgment.

Q. You think it would be advantageous to anyone conducting this business to have the plants; at least pretty near all of them?

A. Have some of them?

Q. Most of them?

A. No, not most of them. I think I would sell three or four of them, if I could.

Q. Well, you would keep some of the idle ones and sell some of the idle ones—put it that way, shall we?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, the reorganization committee are not the only people that could make use of some of this property, are they?

[fol. 351] A. They can't make use of this property now. I am looking ahead in the future a couple of years, or more.

Q. Let us suppose, Mr. Flershem, that the going plants, all of the accounts of customers, good will, trade name, patents, the stock of the Naitonal Radiator Corporation in the Steel Boiler Company—the equitable rights that the National Radiator Corporation may have in its position, to claim the position of the sole owner of that company, of the stock of that company—do you think that that going business, consisting of, say, two plants, at New Castle and Johnstown, and an office building at Johnstown, and the warehouses, this good will in a going business, plus this business of the Steel Boiler Company, do you think that will make money?

A. Do I think what?

Q. That it would make money? Comb it down to that, do you think that affair would make money?

A. Do you mean all of the property?

Q. Just that property I talked to you about—throw everything out, take everything out of the picture except the two best plants, Johnstown and New Castle, the office building that they use at Johnstown as the headquarters of business, the warehouses, of course put the going business in, the good will in, and the ownership—regarding it as a hundred per cent ownership of the Steel Boiler Company—would that, as a nucleus of a business, in your opinion, make money?

A. At some time, I think.

Q. Make money now?

[fol. 352] A. No.

Q. Have you seen the receivers' report that they filed here?

A. No.

Q. Would it surprise you to hear that the receivers' report showed earnings——

Mr. Teall: It doesn't show any earnings, unless I very much disremember it.

Mr. Royall: All right; it shows earnings before the expense of carrying these plants. I thought perhaps you could point to it quicker than I could.

Mr. Teall: It shows more cash receipts than disbursements, but it shows a loss after taking the expense of operations.

Mr. Royall: Well, I will read what it says——

The Court: All right, it is part of your cross examination, you may read it to the witness.

Q. Are you familiar in the statement of the report of the receivers dated (blank), which reads as follows——

Mr. Royall: Do you know about the date, Mr. Teall?

Mr. Teall: I think it was filed in this court on the second day of January, 1932.

[fol. 353] Q. "On the accrual basis of accounting, without deduction for depreciation and without payment of interest on the funded indebtedness of the said corporation, the operations of said receivers for the period October 9, 1931, to November 30, 1931, resulted in a loss of $14,630.44"——

A. What were those dates?

Q. That was for the period from October 9 to November 30, a little less than two months.

Mr. Teall: Without depreciation.

Q. (Continuing:) —"but during said period your receivers carried an expense of $46,548.21 for the maintenance of the above mentioned non-operating plants, which expense has been charged in competing said figure $14,630.44." That was the loss. So that you will say that there was for that short period of time, before the expense of carrying these plants, there was about $32,000 of operating revenue before depreciation——

A. Not surprising at all.

Q. Before interest?

A. I will tell you why that is not surprising, Mr. Royall. Those are the thirty best earning days in the entire year for the radiator and boiler industry, which is highly seasonable. The average shipments and deliveries during each month throughout the year, for something like nineteen years, is approximately as follows: January, 5 per cent; February, 4 per cent; March, 4 per cent; April, 4 per cent; May, 5 per cent; June, about 7 per cent; July, about 8 per [fol. 354] cent; August, 9 or 10 per cent; September, 12 per cent; October, 16 per cent; November, 12 per cent; December, 10 per cent—I think that is about a hundred. It sounds to me like about 150, but maybe it isn't. Let's add that up and see what it is—99. Now, if you had a report of the earnings of February, March or April, you would find a big loss—in fact, in the best earning years——

Q. Now, I would like to take that up.

A. I hadn't quite finished answering. I might state this to you: In its best earning years the American Radiator Company seldom made a profit on the first six months of any year; forty per cent of the volume of business is done in the first six months, and sixty per cent in the last six months.

Q. Are you considering you are answering a question of mine, or are you volunteering?

A. I am giving you some information. I thought it would be illuminating to account for those earnings.

Q. Suppose I put questions, and we will go along, I think it will help the Court. Do you know whether the receivership—or the corporation, ever lost money in this February month that you speak about?

A. Well, the only February month he has had is the one just past.

Q. Yes.

A. I don't know; I feel sure it did.

Q. You think it did?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you know anything about the patents of the company?

A. I have had some experience with patents.

[fol. 355] Q. I asked you if you know anything about the patents of this company.

A. I have no knowledge that is worth anything, about the patents of the company, no.

Q. Have they any designs of radiators that are peculiar to themselves?

A. Yes; the designs of every company are peculiar to themselves.

Q. Do you consider the product, the designs of the National Radiator Corporation compare favorably with those of their competitors?

A. Yes, very good product.

Q. Are any of those designs exclusive, by way of patent or other method of legal exclusiveness, if I may use the expression?

A. I never heard of any exclusiveness of design in the building. There are patents galore. I never heard them amount to anything.

Q. What trade names do they use?

A. The National Radiator Corporation uses the trade name "Aero" for its radiators, and "National" for its boilers.

Q. Have they been accustomed in the past to do any advertising?

A. Some, not much.

Q. Do you know to what extent?

A. Oh, about twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars a year, recently, which is very small.

Q. What do you mean by "recently"?

A. In the last two or three years.

Q. Before that did they advertise more broadly?

A. Yes—not before this corporation was formed?

[fol. 356] Q. No, before the last two years that you are testifying about.

A. In 1928 or '9 they advertised somewhat more than that, spent somewhat more, I think about $100,000, as I recall it.

Q. And in 1928 perhaps even more?

A. 1928 is the year I mean.

Q. 1929 then?

A. Not quite so much.

Q. They were accustomed, before the present active depression, to spend a hundred thousand dollars a year for advertising?

A. When was that?

Q. Before this present depression set in.

A. I only know what they spent in 1928 and 1929. I don't know what they spent before that.

Q. Would you say that they spent well over a hundred thousand dollars?

A. Not well over, my recollection is about $100,000 in 1928, and less in 1929, and much less in 1930, and very little last year.

Q. Do you know anything about customs for setting up reserves by properly managed industries—reserves, I mean, against accounts receivable and notes receivable?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you hear that the reserve amounted to about twelve per cent against these customers' receivables?

A. Yes.

Q. And that that included in there about $300,000 worth—let's see—about $200,000 of these Protective Payment receivables?

[fol. 357] A. Yes.

Q. Isn't that a hig[illegible]eserve against receivables?

A. Well, these times are the worst conditions in collections that I ever knew——

Q. I am asking as a matter of general practice.

A. General practice, it is high.

Q. General practice, in normal times?

A. Oh, yes, general practice in normal times, it is high.

Q. Three per cent would be about usual, wouldn't it?

A. I would think it would be somewhat more than that. I would think five per cent in normal times.

Q. As applied to accounts characterized as not stale, wouldn't you think three per cent was about the proper figure?

A. Well, if you call 1927, '7 and '8 normal times. I think three per cent would be enough. That has nothing to do with these times.

Q. Well, hasn't that been regarded as good accounting practice.

A. It would have been good accounting practice in those years, yes. It was in this business.

Q. Well, it has been a habit? It has been established as good accounting practice for years?

A. Yes, in those years.

Q. And for many years before it was the accustomed accounting practice?

A. Yes, but not for this year, Mr. Royall.

Q. Well, special reserves should go up then, I suppose, but they should be treated as special reserves?

[fol. 358] A. Well, this year I think you must have reserves of that kind, without any reference to former practice, because conditions—we have never seen the like.

Q. Now, the building business has been slowing up for quite a long while?

A. Since the end of 1928.

Q. We have accumulated during the period since the end of 1928 a deficit, if I may use that term to describe it, of building, we have run behind?

A. I don't know. We have got a surplus of buildings, I do know, under present conditions, a surplus of houses, a surplus of factories, a surplus of apartment buildings, surplus of stores, lofts, office buildings, everything—the surplus is very heavy. Let us get to normal times, and we might not have a surplus, we might have a shortage, I don't know.

Redirect examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Just one question, Mr. Flershem. You are a member of the reorganization committee, I believe you so testified?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what percentage of bonds have come into the reorganization plan and signified their assent thereto by depositing bonds?

A. Better than ninety-five per cent.

[fol. 359] ROBERT S. WATERS RESUMED

ROBERT S. WATERS resumes the stand.

Cross-examination (continued):

Mr. Royall:

Q. Now, what did you say when you testified on direct examination your opinion was as to the write down—as the figure for the receivables ought to be written down to?

A. I testified that the receivables should be written down to about $174,000.

Q. $174,000?

A. In the neighborhood of that.

Q. And those receivables at their face after a twelve per cent reserve for doubtful and bad accounts would be what?

A. Receivables as of the end of the year, or the first of the year, were $858,000.

Q. And you say that that ought to be written down to $174,000?

A. Around $174,000.

Q. But the eight hundred thousand dollars that you were carrying on that was after a reserve for doubtful and bad, of about twelve per cent?

A. As I recall it, yes.

Q. And included in this $800,000 was this $86,000 due from this company, Steel Boiler Company?

A. Yes.

Q. So that, after you take out the $86,000 that is due by the Steel Boiler Company from your $176,000 you have got about $90,000 left?

A. Why are you deducting that?

[fol. 360] Q. Well, don't you think it is payable?

A. I don't know how you would get the money.

Q. You don't know how the receivers would get it?

A. That would mean, we would have to sell the property to get it. That property was on the market for two years before the Corporation bought it. That is the Lebanon plant. We would have a very difficult time now to sell it, I am convinced of that.

Q. But you have got these patents, haven't you?

A. That doesn't matter. We haven't gotten the patents yet, we have merely applied for them. We may never get them.

Q. What do you think would happen if the receivers put up this stock and accounts, lock, stock and barrel—and they could put it up lock, stock and barrel—of the Steel Boiler Company? Do you think your competitors would be interested in buying them?

A. No.

Q. Well, you don't think so much of it now, then? You don't think it is such a good thing?

A. I don't think they would want to buy the plant.

Q. Would they want to buy the business—the process? Would they want to buy the steel boiler business?

A. No; they have their own boiler business. And if the patent isn't granted on these few devices that go into the boiler, they could turn around and make them themselves without them, absolutely.

Q. If you were told that your father, Mr. John H. Waters, in attempting to persuade the depositors of these [fol. 361] bonds, stated that he believed—that he was sanguine of the prospect of turning these deficits into profits, because of his belief in the steel boilers that they were manufacturing, would you concur in such a sanguine thought?

A. I wouldn't concur in the thought that steel boilers alone were going to pull this company out of the hole. It would take more than a steel boiler. And I don't think Mr. John H. Waters ever stated that.

Q. Well, what do you think can pull it out of the hole?

A. Revival in business, or increase in the demand for the manufacture of the product.

Q. Are there any improvements in the style of the product that you are sanguine in believing will pull you out of the hole?

A. I think this, Mr. Royall: Any improvements in product, whether it is in the manufacture or design, or whether it is improvement in design and type, will all contribute in bringing about an improvement in our situation.

Q. Well, from time to time——

A. That is going on constantly, yes.

Q. That is, normal improvements. But have you in mind now any special improvements—phrase it, a departure; that conveys my meaning, perhaps—not ordinary routine improvements here and there, but new ideas and new departures, which you and your father are sanguine of, that they will pull you out of the red?

A. Nothing new, no. I don't think there is any one of a number of new things we are developing and bringing onto [fol. 362] the market in itself will pull the corporation out. I think they will all contribute.

Q. The best thing in sight from that standpoint is the steel boiler, isn't it?

A. Oh, no. I don't think the steel boiler—I don't think you can contribute to any one particular thing—by "thing"

I mean product—the fact that it will pull the corporation out.

Q. Now, has it been the custom of the corporation in the past, when they developed new ideas of one kind or another, new inventions, whether patented or not—has it been the custom to have the corporation develop them and manufacture them, as well as sell them, and have it to be carried on as a regular corporation matter, or has it been the custom in those instances, rather, to put it into a corporation, those things owned by some of the employees or officers or directors? What has been your practice in that respect, generally?

A. The practice has been this: that the corporation develops a product, brings it out and manufactures it and endeavors to sell it.

Q. They do that for the account of the corporation, for the purposes of the corporation, and the benefit of the corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. Why was it, then, that this new departure, this steel boiler departure, was put into the name of the Steel Boiler Corporation and carried on by it, with only a bare majority of the stock in the National Radiator Corporation, and the rest of it in the employees? Why was that?

A. The original money advanced to acquire the plant was advanced by John H. Waters.

[fol. 363] Q. Well, there was plenty of money in the corporate treasury, wasn't there?

A. We felt at that time that it would be desirable to keep it separated from the corporation.

Q. And why?

A. Because we thought it was an undertaking that would require some development and some time to perfect and get into the business.

Q. That is the only reason you can give for that?

A. I think that will cover it, yes.

Q. How much money was there in the treasury of the corporation, cash, at the time the default was made on the coupons on this bond issue?

A. Something over a million dollars.

Q. Something over a million? Is that the best you can do?

A. I wouldn't undertake to quote from memory. I can look it up if you want me to.

Q. On February 1, 1931, you defaulted on your coupons then maturing on the then outstanding debentures which have been so often mentioned here. Is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. On December 31st you had cash of $1,701,809.94, according to your balance sheet as of that date. Is that correct?

A. About correct, I imagine.

Q. Besides which you had $32,000 of Government bonds. Is that right?

A. If it is stated in the plan, it is substantially correct, yes. I am not attempting to remember those figures.

[fol. 364] Q. And the amount of interest then maturing was three hundred and some thousand dollars?

A. Three hundred and some thousand.

Q. Do you identify this paper I am showing you as the annual report of the corporation for the year ended December 31, 1930?

A. Yes.

Mr. Royall: I offer it in evidence, as Intervenor First National Bank of Cincinnati Exhibit No. 2.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that as at that date you carried assets on your books of $19,355,937.79. Is that right?

A. If it is on the report, yes.

Q. Now, what did you testify, again, that your receivables should be marked down from and to—from eight hundred thousand, was it, to a hundred seventy-four thousand?

A. About $850,000 to $174,000.

Q. And treating this account as collectible from the Steel Boiler Company, would you want the Court to understand that the rest of the eight hundred thousand is, in your opinion, only worth about $90,000. Is that what you want the Court to understand?

A. My opinion is this: That our accounts receivable and notes receivable, when collected, would amount to around $174,000.

Q. How much do you think you can collect outside of the $86,000 item due to you from the Steel Boiler Company?

A. How much could we collect other than that?

Q. Yes, from your regular customers. On the $800,000 [fol. 365] due from your regular customers, how much do you want the Court to understand that you think can be collected?

A. Probably in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Q. In the neighborhood of what?

A. Neighborhood of ninety-eight or a hundred thousand.

Q. In working that out, you have proceeded upon the theory, have you, that you can collect the whole of the $86,000 or less than the whole of the $86,000.

A. I am figuring this—that if you could find a buyer for the Lebanon plant, that is what you would get. If you cannot find a buyer for the Lebanon plant, I don't believe you can get your $86,000.

Q. Well, then, in arriving at this opinion, how have you treated it? How do you think the Court should treat it here? Do you think the Court should treat this whole asset in your steel boiler business as worth more or less than $86,000?

A. The business is worth more or less than $86,000?

Q. I am asking you whether, for the purposes of this upset price, you are bound here to advise the Court—about whether you want to tell the Court, in your opinion, whether your whole investment, stock and accounts receivable, in this Boiler Company should be treated at anything, and if so, at what amount?

A. Well, I would say this: It would be very difficult for the receivers to collect the money due the corporation by the Steel Boiler Company, unless we should be fortunate enough in finding a buyer for the property. Now, the Steel Boiler property, as such, will have very little market unless [fol. 366] you could be fortunate enough to find somebody who would take it over and continue to produce the boilers; but the Steel Boiler Company would be particularly handicapped, because it hasn't the sales organization, it is merely a manufacturing company.

Q. Now, as receiver, do you think that there is enough—I want you to talk now as receiver. Do you think that there is enough in this National Steel Boiler Company so that it ought to be made the subject of a separate sale, so that the National Radiator Company and some of your other competitors can come in here and have a chance to bid for this thing? Don't you think that that would be the safe way of protecting creditors, to have that done that way?

A. I haven't an opinion on that, I haven't given it any consideration, Mr. Royall.

Q. Now, then, I wonder if you have given this thought consideration: Do you understand what the duties of receivers are?

A. I think so, yes.

Q. Well, I would like to have you give a definition of what you consider the duties of a receiver to be?

Mr. Teall: If the Court please, I am going to introduce my first objection today.

The Court: Yes, I think we are going too far afield.

Q. Assuming, Mr. Waters, that the Bondholders' Protective Committee were to purchase the going business of de- [fol. 367] fendant when and as the same is offered for sale, under order of court, in your opinion, would you be better off to take all of the properties or less than all of the properties?

A. My opinion would be this, Mr. Royall: At this time the reorganization committee would be better not to have all the property. That is based on the unfavorable immediate outlook of business. If, however, there should be an upturn in business, we might be very glad to have the plants at that time, provided that occurred within a year or eighteen months. We might be very glad to have it. That is something I don't know. I don't know what is going to happen. If business is going to remain as it is now, we wouldn't need all the plants. That is very evident from what I have told you regarding the production.

Q. Well, would you say this: Is the whole property, in fact, in your opinion, essential to the business?

A. Not under present business conditions, no.

Q. Or any that you anticipate within any reasonable time?

A. As I see the situation now, we will not have occasion to use the plants for some time.

Redirect examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Mr. Waters, you have been examined by Mr. Royall in regard to the appraisal made at the end of '26, or as of December 31, 1926, by Sanderson & Porter. Do you have that appraisal before you?

A. I do.

[fol. 368] Q. Will you open it at page 2? At the top of the page, state the basis of the valuation made in that report, as that basis is stated in the report itself?

A. The best way to do so would be to read the report, Mr. Teall, that portion of it.

Q. Well, read the second sentence.

A. "We summarize below our estimates of replacement costs now, and also less allowances for depreciation of the fixed assets of these companies as of December 31, 1926."

Q. In other words, that is a report on the basis of replacement value less depreciation?

A. It is.

Q. Now, I ask you to turn to page 6 of the appraisal and read into the record the first sentence of the second complete paragraph on that page.

A. The second complete paragraph?

Q. Yes. The first sentence of the second complete paragraph on that page.

A. "Our estimates of replacement costs now of the buildings are based upon current construction costs."

Q. And that report was made in '27?

A. This report was made and accompanied a letter of Sanderson & Porter dated July 26, 1927.

Q. I don't want to take that much time—the report was made in the summer of 1927, as of December 31, 1926?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, I ask you to read the first sentence of the last paragraph on page 8.

A. "Our estimates are based upon advantageous use of [fol. 369] plant facilities under capable management in the conduct of the business of the respective companies, and are not estimates of liquidating value."

Q. Will you state the amount of the unpaid indebtedness of National Radiator Corporation at the close of business October 8, 1931, exclusive of the outstanding debentures?

A. $157,511.89.

Q. 511—or 811?

A. 511, according to my memorandum.

Q. $157,511.89?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the amount of cash and Government bonds and life insurance surrender value that you had on hand on March 2, 1932?

A. Yes.

Q. What is it?

A. As follows: Cash $759,119, U. S. certificates of deposit and bank certificates of deposit $1,030,875; cash surrender value life insurance at that time was $22,900; total $1,812,894.

(Adjourned until Monday, March 7, 1932, at 10:00 o'clock A. M.)

[fol. 370] Monday, March 7, 1932.

Morning Session

TESTIMONY OF JOHN H. WATERS

JOHN H. WATERS, a witness produced on behalf of complainants, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Mr. Waters, you reside at Johnstown, Pennsylvania?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have resided there for how long?

A. For fifty-nine years.

Q. You are familiar with the organization of National Radiator Corporation in 1927?

A. I am.

Q. What has been your connection with that corporation?

A. At the time of the sale of the National Radiator Company to the National Radiator Corporation, it was my intention to retire entirely, but I was induced to remain on as Chairman of the Board for a period of one year to one year and a half. Mr. Edward Norris was elected to the office of president. He became ill, and the company was really—he eventually resigned after serving about six months, and following that for a period of about four or five months I temporarily acted as president until a new president was elected. That was Mr.—I can't think of his name, the president; he served from September, '28, until [fol. 371] February 1, 1929. Since that time I have been acting as president.

Q. So that you were chairman of the board from when to when, at the beginning?

A. From the organization of the corporation, in August—the latter part of August or September, I believe, until—really, I have served as chairman since that time. Mr. Pierce is the man that followed, whose name I couldn't recall.

Q. I will change the word from "president." You were the active executive head from the beginning, from when to when?

A. Of this corporation?

Q. Yes.

A. I would hardly say I was the active head. I consented to serve as chairman of the board for a year to a year and a half, conditional that an active president would be secured. As I say, Mr. Norris was elected, and he became ill and resigned after six months. Temporarily then I acted as president until the following September, when Mr. Pierce was elected president and in active charge of the company's affairs. He resigned, however, after serving about a year and a half, in February, 1930. Since then I have been acting as president.

Q. And Mr. Flershem, I believe, is now chairman of the executive committee?

A. He is.

Q. How long has he been in that office?

A. He has filled that position, I believe, since September, 1928.

Q. Now, since the organization of this company, have you been under salary?

[fol. 372] A. I have drawn no salary whatever.

Q. What experience have you had in the radiator and boiler business?

A. I originally engaged in the radiator business—we were not manufacturing boilers at that time—in 1893; and, as I stated, I was actively engaged at the head of the old National Radiator Company up until the time the company sold out to the National Boiler & Radiator Corporation. I was the active head of that organization until that period.

Q. From 1893 until 1927?

A. Yes.

Q. You are a member of the Reorganization Committee, the complainants in this case?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How came it that the Reorganization Committee was organized?

A. Well, due to the full knowledge of the affairs of the company of myself and Mr. Flershem, we realized that under the original capitalization it would not be possible to carry the organization to a safe conclusion, and we then went to the bankers in New York, Bankers Trust Company and Seligman & Company, the two factors in the consolidation of these six different companies, and suggested a reorganization with a reduced capitalization.

Q. With a view to preserving——

A. With a view of preserving the interests of the company. Personally I could have very well dropped out entirely and taken my loss, but I realized that there were a great many people who had invested in the securities of the company, and I felt that I would like, if possible, to help [fol. 373] conserve their interests as well as my own, and for that reason I worked during all this period without any salary.

Q. Mr. Waters, have you given any thought to the advisability or non-advisibility of turning all the assets of this company into money, if possible to do so, as distinguished from continuing the organization as a going concern?

A. Yes, I have given a great deal of thought to that.

Q. Have you come to any conclusion as to what ought to be done?

A. Well, my conclusion has been that it would be very unwise to attempt to liquidate the company at this time.

Q. Why?

A. Well, for the reason that our inventories would be virtually scrapped. It would be impossible to sell the plants and equipment at this time, for the reason that the industry today has capacity or practically double the amount of radiation and boilers that were sold during the period of 1928, which was the peak period in the industry, and of course the plants are not adapted to any other line of manufacture; and we have made effort to sell the plants that are not being operated, but without any results whatever as to securing purchasers. It would be a tremendous sacrifice to sell our inventories at this time, because as soon as it would be announced that the company was going out of business our products would be obsolete and would have to be sold at a very great sacrifice, and our accounts receivable, of course, would suffer tremendously as well.

[fol. 374] Q. Do you have on your radiators and boilers the words "National Radiator Corporation," or anything else to indicate who manufactures the goods?

A. We have distinguishing marks on them, yes.

Q. And what is the nature of that mark? Is it just a label that would come off, or is it in the casting, or how?

A. No, it is in the casting.

Q. Has the National Radiator Corporation any funded debt other than the 6½ per cent debentures that have been mentioned here?

A. Not any.

Q. What amount of those debentures are held by you, or you and your family?

A. Individually and my family, we hold around a million and a half—in excess of a million and a half of those debentures.

Q. Do you know how the rest of those debentures are held?

A. They are quite widely scattered. They are held pretty well all over the United States, and some in Canada, and we have discovered a few of them were held in Europe.

Q. In other words, it would be fair to say that you and your family hold about a million and a half, and the balance are held by the public generally?

A. By the public generally or people who were identified with the corporation, people who were employees.

Q. What percentage of these debentures—give your answer in dollars—have been deposited with the Reorganization Committee, of which you are a member?

[fol. 375] A. Ten million and some odd thousand. It is in excess of 95½ per cent, I think, now, and they are still coming in, still being deposited.

Cross-examination.

Mr. Watts:

Q. Mr. Waters, if the properties that were formerly in the so-called National Radiator Company were now be continued as an operating company, could such an operating unit dispose of your present inventory at fairly advantageous prices?

A. Not as a liquidation proposition.

Q. I am not speaking as a liquidation proposition; I am speaking as a continuing operating unit.

A. Well, I don't quite understand that. If we were continuing as an operating unit, we would be continuing as a company, and they would not be liquidating then. You asked the question concerning liquidating, I believe.

Q. No; I am asking you to assume you were to continue, and in the continuation you have just those properties which were formerly owned by the National Radiator Company. Could you not dispose of your present inventory at advantageous prices?

A. Well, may I ask you just what you mean? Do you mean to continue to manufacture and supply new product, or where sales would be made?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Oh, I presume I could, in due course, like we are hoping there is going to be a return to better business conditions, and that could be done eventually.

Q. And I ask you whether or not, if you continued in that [fol. 376] manner, that is to say, using substantially the old National Radiator Company plant and organization, you would necessarily have to make use of the four, five or six other plants which were merged with the National Radiator Company in 1927?

A. Not all of them, no.

Q. Well, would you have to use any of them?

A. That would depend altogether on business conditions. If business improved and warranted, some of them could be used, no doubt; but under existing conditions, not, because we are not operating the plants of the old National Company to anything near like their capacity. In fact, one is closed down entirely, the largest plant for the manufacture of radiators. The plant at New Castle, which manufactures boilers, is today working at about forty per cent capacity, and I don't have the records, but I think Johnstown plant, as a radiator plant, is working at about the same capacity.

Q. And could not all the patents, trade names and copyrights which are listed in your present assets be used and exploited by a new company that would have practically the assets of the old National Radiator Company?

A. Well, they could be used as to whatever they would be worth, yes. We have a number of patents, like all manufacturers have, and have some applications for patents pending. As to the real value of them, that is problematical.

Q. When Mr. Robert Waters was on the stand last week, he was asked to state the price paid by the present corporation for the assets of the old National Radiator Company, [fol. 377] and stated that he was unable to do so but would give us that information. Are you able to answer that question?

A. I couldn't give it offhand. Our proposition was to sell our company for cash. We, however, accepted some securities, which we could have received cash for, and a considerable amount of common stock. I can't tell you the exact amount, but the securities and cash are in excess of $13,000,000.

Mr. Teall:

Q. That is, taking the securities at par or market?

A. At par; and common stock at around $36—$37 a share, which of course has no value today.

Mr. Watts:

Q. And can you state the amount of that common stock in relation to the amount of these debentures, if any, that were taken?

A. I am unable to state that correctly. I didn't suspect any such question would be asked and don't have the data before me.

Q. Now, Mr. Robert Waters was also asked to state the total extent of the financing furnished by your present company to the Steel Boiler Company, and stated that he would give us that information later. Can you help us now while you are on the stand?

A. I can't give you that definitely. It is my recollection that at the organization of the company it was capitalized at $150,000, and there was paid in in cash, I believe, between $50,000 and $60,000 at the time of the organi- [fol. 378] zation. Of that amount I and some of the associates in the company subscribed for—oh, I think around $30,000; it was just a little bit less than the amount that was put in by the company, we thought being that the company should be in control. At that time we questioned the advisability of drawing on the resources of the company, and felt that as individuals we should help as far as possible to establish that plant. And our reason for doing that—that question was asked before, but not as clearly stated as it should have been—was due to the fact that a great many large buildings, hotels, schoolhouses and institutions requiring large installations required larger boilers than the units that are made in cast iron, with the result that in many cases we would lose the radiation, because we didn't have the boilers, and for that reason we thought it was advisable to go into the manufacture of steel boilers, so that we could supply the requirements of these large installations and secure the order for the radiation as well as for the boiler.

Q. Is it correct that the defendant corporation, meaning the corporation in receivership, paid the bills of the Steel Boiler Company, and that the steel boilers which were manufactured by the latter were then consigned to the former, which did the selling?

A. In effect, that was the way. They advanced—the National Radiator Corporation would advance sufficient funds to pay for the material and the labor, and then the Steel Boiler Company, in turn, consigned the boilers to the National Boiler & Radiator Corporation.

[fol. 379] TESTIMONY OF WILLIAM G. HEINER

WILLIAM G. HEINER, a witness produced on behalf of the complainants, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Mr. Heiner, you reside at Pittsburgh?

A. I do.

Q. And you are a member of the Allegheny County Bar and of the Bar of this Court?

A. Yes.

Q. And have been for how long?

A. Fourteen years.

Q. You are one of the two receivers of the National Radiator Corporation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Having been qualified as such on what date?

A. We were appointed October 9th; I think our qualification by filing the bond was the next day after, October 10, 1931.

Q. I think it was October 9th, but it doesn't make any difference. It was October 9, 1931.

A. That is right.

Q. Had you had any previous experience, Mr. Heiner, in the radiator and boiler business?

A. None whatever.

Q. You had, however, had some experience as receiver and as attorney for receivers?

A. Yes.

Q. That was in your practice as a lawyer?

A. That is right.

[fol. 380] Q. Can you give us some notion of what experience you had had?

Mr. Watts: Is that relevant and competent?

Mr. Teall: Do you object to it?

Mr. Watts: Why not ask the question? If there is any question about his qualification, I will raise it.

Q. How many employees do the receivers have? I don't expect you to give an exact answer, but approximately.

A. I should say at the present time, between six and seven hundred, all of the various kinds.

Q. Your connection with this business since you have been appointed has been close or otherwise?

A. I think it has been rather close.

Q. Can you give the Court some notion of the close touch you have kept with this business since you have been appointed receiver?

A. Except for the last week or so, when we have been engaged in this court matter, I have been in Johnstown practically every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and then on the alternate days of Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, I have done considerable work in my office in Pittsburgh, and in conferences with our attorneys in Pittsburgh.

Q. You have been in my office many times during the receivership?

A. A great many times, yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Heiner, in your connection with this busi-
[fol. 381] ness, have you formed any opinion as to the advisability—from the standpoint of the benefit to creditors, the advisability of continuing the business as a going concern, or of trying to turn it into cash?

A. Yes, I have formed an opinion.

Q. What is your opinion?

A. Well, if this company can be continued in reorganization rather than liquidated, I think that the creditors in due time will fare a great deal better than to receive a cash distribution and liquidation.

Q. Have you formed an opinion as to the amount that the business might be liquidated for at this time—assuming that it could be liquidated and turned into cash?

A. Yes.

Q. What in your opinion is the figure?

Mr. Watts: I am somewhat curious, if the Court please, as to whether counsel is offering this testimony for the purpose of assisting the Court in fixing an upset price or not.

Mr. Teall: That is the purpose of it.

Mr. Watts: Very well.

A. $2,229,073.98.

Q. Well, that seems fairly close, but tell us, if you will, how you arrive at that figure?

A. We have on hand now—well, no, I will take that back. I figured this as of our balance sheet of December 31, 1931, which shows cash of $852,096.29, and I figure, of course, [fol. 382] that we will get one hundred per cent for that. In investments we have United States certificates of indebtedness of $980,000, accrued interest on those certificates of $6,124.97, bank certificates of deposit of $50,000, cash surrender value of life insurance of $22,900, and deposits under the New York Workmen's Compensation Law of $18,686.33, making total investments of $1,077,711.30, which I figure we will get one hundred per cent for. Our accounts receivable, as of the same date, that is, as of December 31, '31, were $858,992.41. It is my opinion, on liquidation we would get about twenty-five per cent of those, or $214,498.10. Our inventories on the same date were $1,634,905.25, and on liquidation I figure we will only get scrap, which is, as

I view it, and in my opinion, approximately ten per cent, or $163,490.52. Our real estate, buildings, machinery and equipment as of December 31, '31, were carried at $6,635,-842.84, and on present liquidation the most I can figure is $500,000. That in my opinion is high, on account of the fact I don't think we can sell them. That makes total sales of liquidation business of $2,807,796.21. Now, in liquidating we have a sales expense, naturally, and our sales expense alone in 1931, for the calendar year 1931, was $674,603.27. I figure that it will take three years to completely liquidate National Radiator Company——

Q. National Radiator Corporation?

A. Corporation, I mean—that for the first year it will cost us at least one-third of that sales expense, or $224,-867.75; that for the second year of liquidation it will cost one-half of the sales expense for the first year, or $112,-[fol. 383] 433.87, and for the third year one-half of the second year's expense, or $93,420.89. During this same period of three years' liquidation, we will unquestionably have advertising expenses. The advertising expense for the calendar year 1931 was $51,593.45, and I feel that the same expense will of course not be incurred in liquidation, but in trying to analyze it I think it would cost us at least twenty-five per cent during the first year of liquidation, which would be $12,398.36, and for the second year one-half of the twenty-five per cent, or twelve-and-a-half per cent, which would be $6,199.18, and for the third year of liquidation one-half of the second year, or $3,099.59. Now, then, a third element in the cost of liquidation, in addition to selling expense and advertising, is the cost of maintaining idle plants. We have at the present time five idle plants, which cost us to maintain, for the calendar year 1931, the sum total of $280,262.67; and if it takes three years to liquidate, that expense will not cease instantly. It cannot, in my opinion. And I think that we will have at least one-third of that expense to incur for the first year of the three-year period of liquidation, which would make it $93,420.89, and for the second year one-half of the first year's expense, or $46,710.44, and for the third year, probably a half of the second year, or $23,355.22. Now, all of those expense items, in connection with selling, advertising and idle plant maintenance, in my opinion, total $578,722.23, and that latter figure must be subtracted from our total sale figure of $2,- 807,796.21, in order to get at a net liquidating price; and subtracting those two fives a net liquidating value, in my opinion, of $2,229,073.98.

[fol. 384] Q. So that your method, if I may bring it out briefly, is to take your opinion of what you could get for all this property and deduct from it what in your opinion would be the cost of liquidating the property, and the difference represents your opinion of the net liquidating value?

A. That is right.

Q. And I believe you said that in making that computation you have assumed that it will be possible to turn all the plants into cash?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. For purposes of your computation. Now, Mr. Heiner, are you familiar in a general way with the draft of the proposed decree that we have in proof here?

A. Yes.

Q. And the division of the company's property into Lots "A", "B", "C", and so on up to "K"—or Parcels "A" to "K"?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you made any apportionment of your net liquidating figure as between those several parcels?

A. I have.

Q. And what is it?

A. For Parcel "A"—Do you wish me to describe briefly what each parcel consists of?

Q. I don't think that will be necessary, for the decree is here.

A. Do you want them in round figures?

Q. I think round figures will be near enough.

A. For Parcel "A" $2,135,000; Parcel "B" $24,000; [fol. 385] Parcel "C" $15,000; Parcel "D" $33,000; Parcel "E" $15,000; Parcel "F" $1000; Parcel "G" $2000; Parcel "H" $1000; Parcel "I" $1000; Parcel "J" $2000; and Parcel "K", which is the total, $2,229,000.

Q. What is the basis of that distribution?

A. Well, Parcel "A" includes all cash and investments, accounts and books receivable, inventories, the Johnstown and New Castle plants, patents and all miscellaneous intangible and tangible property; while all the other individual parcels include merely the real estate, buildings and machinery. That is the reason for the large division assigned to Parcel "A", because it carries all the cash and accounts receivable, inventories, notes receivable and investments.

Q. Now, I think you have worked out there an arithmetical basis of distribution. Could you tell the Court what that is?

A. In arriving at this division of dollars assigned to each parcel, I notice that the decree applying to Parcels "B" to "J" inclusive converts one fixed asset, and therefore I felt that a proper division of percentage would be based upon the inventory that the receivers filed as of October 9th of fixed assets, and the total fixed assets under that inventory were $6,743,419.15; and dividing that figure, which was the total book value of the fixed assets, and representing one hundred per cent, into figures representing fixed assets of the various parcels, as shown in the inventory, it shows Johnstown—that is, Parcel "A", I mean, should have a percentage of fixed assets of 45 per cent, Parcel "B" 14 per cent, Parcel "C" 9 per cent, Parcel "D" 20 per cent, [fol. 386] Parcel "E" 9 per cent, Parcel "F" .5 per cent, Parcel "G" .8 per cent, Parcel "H" .35 per cent, Parcel "I" .45 per cent, Parcel "J" .9 per cent.

Q. Parcel "K" 100 per cent?

A. Parcel "K" 100 per cent.

Mr. Watts:

Q. And the six million is what?

A. $6,743,419.15, being the total book value of the fixed assets, according to the receivers' inventory as of October 9, 1931. And then, applying those percentages to $500,000, I arrive at the net liquidating value of these various parcels, which includes Parcel "A", and to Parcel "A" must be added the cash, investments, and so forth.

Mr. Teall:

Q. In other words, you have taken the fixed assets, as inventoried, for your denominator, and you have taken the fixed assets of each parcel as your numerator?

A. That is right.

Q. You have converted them into a percentage, and you have applied that percentage to the total in liquidating value that you have fixed?

A. That is right.

Cross-examination.

Mr. Watts:

Q. What inspection have you made, Mr. Heiner, as to the property, identified as Parcel "B", as appearing on page 96 of the printed form of decree?

A. That is the Trenton plant—none at all.

[fol. 387] Q. Can you tell us at what figure that property was put into the merger of the National Radiator Corporation in 1927?

A. I cannot.

Q. Now, assuming that I propounded the same question to you with respect to the other parcels, "C" to "J", inclusive, could you give us any more definite information.?

A. No, I couldn't.

Q. That is to say, you have not personally inspected any of these porperties in these different localities?

A. That is right.—Did you say "A" to "J" inclusive?

Q. "C" to "J".

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Now, have you or your associate receiver procured appraisements of any of the properties described as Parcels "A" to "J" inclusive in this decree?

A. Appraisements?

Q. Appraisements, yes.

A. No, sir.

Q. The figures shown in the inventory on file are simply the figures at which the properties were being carried by the corporation at the time of your appointment?

A. That is right; book figures.

Q. Am I then to understand that, with respect to the Trenton property, for instance, you and your co-receiver have made no inquiry or investigation with respect to the salability of that separate property or the price at which it might possibly be sold?

[fol. 388] A. Other than that we have communicated with a company by the name of Siegel & Company, for the purpose of determining the salability of the Trenton plant, but without any result. They are engaged in liquidating companies, and we are not able to get anything definite from them at all by way of any hope or prospect, or anything like that.

Q. Have you taken any similar action with respect to any of the other properties, "C" to "J" inclusive; and if so, what?

A. Yes; the North Tonawanda and the Dunkirk, New York, plants were visited by Siegel & Company at our request, and the same result as in the Trenton case; but not any others than those three.

Q. How long ago was that, Mr. Heiner?

A. I should say January of this year or December of last year; about two months ago, I should say.

Q. Am I to understand from the calculation which you gave us, stating in detail probable expenditures in liquidating over an estimated period of three years, that you compiled the same on the basis of approximately normal selling at private sale, as distinguished from public sale?

A. No; I hadn't thought about private sale. That wasn't the basis.

Q. Wasn't the sales expense of six hundred seventy-four odd thousand dollars during the year 1931 the sales expense of your company as an operating company engaged in selling your product at private sale?

A. Oh, yes; I see what you mean. Selling boilers and radiators by our salesmen?

[fol. 389] Yes.

A. Yes, those are all private sales; they are not auction sales.

Q. So that, when you take one-third of that figure for the cost of the first year of liquidation, do you not contemplate liquidation by a corresponding method of private sale?

A. I don't know; I should think it would be sold at public sale.

Q. And how do you figure that the cost of selling off these properties, inventory, and land and buildings, would necessitate a sales cost during the first year of $224,867, if those properties were to be sold at public sale?

A. Are you talking now about the real estate?

Q. All of the property supposed to be sold.

A. Well, of course, we won't sell our merchandise and accounts receivable, and things like that, at public sale, unless we might be forced into an auction of such things; but ordinarily the personal property, I think, would be sold at private, and the real estate at public sale. But most of that cost of $224,000 will be wages to our salesmen, our employees, in disposing of the present inventory that we have on hand. We would probably have to keep—well, if we had to keep one-third of our salesmen, which now number about 140—and having cut our wages and salaries of our employees twice since we were appointed receivers, in October, 1931, we certainly cannot cut them again, and we certainly would have to spend half that amount for the first year, just to sell the inventory alone.

Q. Well, have you made an estimate of the selling cost [fol. 390] on your basis there, for first, second, and third years? Have you totaled the selling cost for the three years, as you have estimated it??

A. No, but I could give you those for the three years.

Q. The total is over $400,000, is it not?

A. For the three years?

Q. Yes.

A. It is more than that; it is $578,722.23.

Q. Well, have you not already depreciated your inventory to $163,490?

A. That is right.

Q. So that you would expend over a half million dollars to sell much less than a half million dollars worth of merchandise?

A. But not included in the sales are the sales of the accounts receivable, inventory, real estate, buildings, machinery and equipment; and I believe that the fixed assets will be sold last. It will be much harder to sell real estate and machinery and buildings than it will scrap inventory and scrap accounts receivable.

Q. Well, you would have no salesmen to sell buildings at public sale, would you?

A. We will have a long series of expense in negotiations, traveling expense, advertising.

Q. Well, will you need salesmen to sell book accounts?

A. No.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Mr. Heiner, one question I forgot to ask you: Do you have before you there a tabulation of figures so that you [fol. 391] can tell the Court whether business was done last year at a profit or loss?

A. Yes.

Q. I don't know whether it is in shape for you to give it to us by months or not. Can you tell us what was the profit or loss on the business for the calendar year 1931?

A. Strictly accrual basis of accounting?

Q. The accrual basis of accounting—that is the way you keep your books, is it not?

A. That is right. For the entire year 1931—

Mr. Watts: May I interrupt the witness, and suggest that the statement he has be offered, rather than attempting to have it copied?

(Paper referred to marked Complainants' Exhibit "A".)

Q. Mr. Heiner, you have taken this Complainants' Exhibit "A" out of your files as receiver, and you are satisfied of the authenticity of it, are you?

A. That is right. It was prepared partly under my direction.

Mr. Teall: Complainants' Exhibit "A" is offered. And I will put on the record, for the sake of brevity and clearness, that Exhibit "A" shows an operating loss for the year 1931 of $995,832.76, and a total loss after depreciation and all expenses and charges of $1,634,167.89.

Q. Now, in this process of liquidation which you referred [fol. 392] to, and which in your opinion would take three years, would you have warehousing charges, freight charges, carting charges and other expenses that you would have in selling any property?

A. Yes, such as taxes and watchmen's servies, repairs, and other things, in addition to those that you mention.

Mr. Watts:

Q. Mr. Heiner, I neglected to ask you another question: Have you visited or inspected the property of the Steel Boiler Company at Lebanon, Pa?

A. No, I have not.

Q. In your calculation of accounts and notes receivable of eight hundred fifty-eight odd thousand dollars, do you include the indebtedness of that company to the defendant of some $86,000?

A. It is included as part of the accounts receivable.

Q. In your opinion, as receiver, should that account be depreciated to twenty-five per cent of its face amount?

A. In my opinion, the account of the National Steel Boiler Company at Lebanon should be depreciated one hundred per cent. I don't think we are ever going to get anything out of it, that particular account, if we were to start liquidating today.

Q. And is your opinion in that respect based upon an investigation of the origin of the Steel Boiler Company and its relations with the defendant?

A. It is based upon the trouble we have had in attempting to collect, so far, a small portion of the $86,000 they owe us, and we find that we can't do it unless we help them [fol. 393] along; and if our help stops, which it will do upon liquidation, then it becomes a total loss.

Q. And I repeat my question: Is your opinion that the account is worthless based upon an investigation of the origin of the Steel Boiler Company and its relations with the defendant?

A. No, not upon its origin. I am not familiar with the original beginnings of that company, to know what light that would throw upon it.

Q. In other words, you have not investigated the history of the Steel Boiler Company?

A. I have not.

Q. Or its relations with the defendant corporation?

A. Well, I know what its present relations are, if that is what you mean.

Q. That of debtor and creditor?

A. That is right; and what it manufactures, and how the steel boilers fit in our bids with radiation, if that is what you mean.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Mr. Heiner, you and Mr. Robert Waters, as receivers, have done this, I believe: You have taken over all the inventory and goods in process, and finished goods, and everything but fixed assets of this National Steel Boiler Company, applying it on the indebtedness owing by that company to the National Radiator Corporation, and you have taken a mortgage securing a demand bond upon all the fixed assets of that corporation?

A. That is right.

[fol. 394] Q. And those fixed assets are simply the plant and machinery?

A. That is right.

Mr. Watts:

Q. Are the bond and mortgage you have just testified to listed in the assets set forth in this proposed decree of sale?

A. That would be in Parcel "A", I should think, Mr. Watts.

Q. You think so? Where?

A. Well, of course, Parcel "A," according to the wording of the decree, does not give all the details.

Q. Well, if your statement is correct, that the mortgage or lien, or whatever it is, that you hold upon the assets of the Steel Boiler Company, is included in Parcel "A," then I ask you whether or not that Parcel "A" gives any notice to prospective bidders that substantially the property of the Steel Boiler Company at Lebanon, Pa., is included in this sale?

A. Well, I should think that the real estate and plant of the National Steel Boiler Company at Lebanon would not be included in it, but that the mortgage that we have would be included in the decree of sale.

Q. Do you still adhere to your opinion that the account of the defendant against the Steel Boiler Company is worthless, even though it is secured by a mortgage upon the plant of the debtor corporation?

A. I don't think, in foreclosure proceedings, we could sell that, probably, Mr. Watts.

Q. In other words, you think the property is valueless?

[fol. 395] A. On present day liquidation you can't get anything; and if you can't get any person to buy it, then, if that is the test, it is valueless.

Q. Your idea is that anything that can't be sold today is worthless?

A. If the test is, what is the present day value of it, yes.

COLLOQUY

Mr. Teall: The summary requested by Mr. Royall in his cross examination of Mr. Robert Waters has been produced and handed to Mr. Watts, the same bearing the caption

"Resumé of Fixed Assets of National Radiator Company acquired in August, 1927, by National Radiator Corporation."

I also want to state, if the Court please, that Mr. Robert Waters is sick this morning and cannot be here, and he has written me a letter in which he says that he answered a question from memory, to the effect that an option had been given to C. H. Lewis, Cleveland, Ohio, on the North Tonawanda and Framingham plants, and Mr. Waters stated that the price asked was $400,000. In checking over the records, he says he finds that the $400,000 was the figure placed on the North Tonawanda plant, and $450,000 was the price asked for the Framingham plant. When he stated that the price asked for both of them was $400,000, he was in error, and he wants to correct his testimony accordingly.

Morning Session

(Book marked Intervenor First National Bank of Cincinnati Exhibit No. 3.)

Mr. Watts: We desire to offer in evidence Exhibit No. 3, being the appraisal of Sanderson & Porter made at the time of the formation of the defendant corporation.

Mr. Teall: No objection.

Mr. Watts: We also request that the inventory filed by the Receivers and any other papers of similar import be considered part of the record available to the parties, for such portions thereof as may be material to their respective sides. Is that agreeable, Mr. Teall?

Mr. Teall: No objection.

Mr. Royall: In lieu of Mr. John H. Waters' testimony in amplification of some general figures as to the price at which the old National Radiator Company was acquired by the defendant, National Radiator Corporation, at the time of the 1927 merger, the following figures are furnished: Debentures in the principal amount of $5,935,000; preferred stock, 35450 no par value shares at transfer price [fol. 397] of $100, $3,545,000; common stock, 70,000 shares, no par value, at transfer price of $36.00, $2,520,000; cash $1,290,000; total $13,290,000.

Here is a memorandum regarding and amplifying the testimony of Mr. Robert S. Waters re the financing furnished by the defendant corporation in respect of the Steel Boiler Company: To acquire property at Lebanon, Pennsylvania, June, 1930, $49,500. Above paid by 350 shares $100 par value common stock, August 9, 1930, $35,000; cash to cover balance $14,500; and then extended to the right-hand column, $49,500. To cover merchandise purchased, payrolls and expenses incurred at plant, and salaries paid from the Corporation office: For merchandise $107,074.97; payrolls and expenses at plant, $30,648.66; salaries paid from Corporation office, $27,236.30; total $164,959.93. Payments on above: Steel boilers furnished the Corporation, $81,708.78; inventory at plant, transferred to Corporation, $44,751.34; total $126,460.12. Balance owing Radiator Company by Boiler Company, $38,499.81. The testimony, we should note, was that the balance was $86,000.

Mr. Teall: That was at the date of the receivership, I think.

Mr. Royall: Well, this is at the date of the receivership.

Mr. Teall: No, this is right now. The date is March 11, 1932, I think.

[fol. 398] Mr. Royall: It is dated March 11th, but at the top it says "From June, 1930, to October, 1931."

Mr. Teall: Well, that is the advances, but the payments are not all of that date.

Mr. Royall: Then is it understood that this balance of $38,499.81 is as of the present date?

Mr. Teall: Yes.

Mr. Royall: And that during the course of the receivership further liquidation of this eighty-six thousand odd balance has been made by way of delivery of further steel boilers?—And is this true, Mr. Teall: The figure given by Mr. Waters of about $86,000, the balance due as of the date of the receivership, is reconciled with the March 11, 1932 balance of $38,499.81, by a credit passed by the receivers to the Steel Boiler Company of $44,751.34 for inventory at the Steel Boiler plant, transferred to the Corporation, or to the receivers on account of the Corporation? Is that correct, Mr. Teall?

Mr. Teall: Yes, that is correct.

Testimony closed.

(Oral argument by counsel for respective sides.)

The following information has been summarized by John H. Waters, Esq., Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Corporation, from his accompanying letter to us:

Business: National Radiator Corporation has been organized under the laws of Delaware to acquire assets and business of the following six companies:

National Radiator Company,
Utica Heater Company,
Niagara Radiator & Boiler Company,
Gurney Heater Manufacturing Company,
[fol. 401] Continental Heater Corporation,
Union Radiator Company,

all of which have been in successful operation over a long period of years.

National Radiator Corporation, upon acquisition of these various properties, will be the second largest manufacturer in the world of steam and hot water radiators and cast iron boilers for heating purposes. The wide variety of its products meets the heating requirements of buildings of every character from small dwellings to office buildings, apartments, hotels, schools, churches, theatres and similar types of structures.

The Corporation will own ten plants, two of which are located at Johnstown, Pa., two at New Castle, Pa., and one each at Trenton, N. J., Utica, Dunkirk and North Tonawanda, N. Y., Framingham, Mass., and Chicago, Ill. Through the favorable location of its various plants and warehouses the Corporation will be in a position to serve practically all the consuming markets of the United States.

Capitalization: The capitalization of the Corporation, upon consummation of the plan for the acquisition of assets and business of the six predecessor companies, and the financing incident thereto, will be as follows:

[fol. 402]

Common Stock (no par value).	*500,000 shs.	270,000 shs.

* Includes 180,000 shares to be reserved for conversion of the authorized Preferred Stock.

Security: These Debentures will be, in the opinion of counsel, the direct obligations of the Corporation and, upon the completion of this financing, will constitute its sole funded debt.

Earnings: The combined net earnings of the six predecessor companies, assets of which are to be owned by National Radiator Corporation, for the four years ended December 31, 1926, as certified to by Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Co., were as follows:

	Earnings available for interest after depreciation, but before Federal taxes	Annual interest requirement on $12,000,000 Debentures: Times earned
1923	$2,456,076	3.14
1924	3,405,763	4.36
1925	3,488,980	4.47
1926	3,472,184	4.45

Earnings available for interest for the four year period, as shown above, have averaged $3,205,751 annually, equivalent to 4.11 times annual interest requirements on this [fol. 403] issue of Debentures and for the year 1926 were 4.45 times such requirements.

The six predecessor companies report earnings, after provision for depreciation, but before interest and Federal Income Taxes, of approximately $601,000 for the six months ended June 30, 1927, as compared with approximately $892,000 for the corresponding period of 1926. Unfilled orders as of June 30, 1927, amounted to about $4,270,000 as compared with about $2,200,000 at the corresponding date in 1926. Normally, about two-thirds of the radiator and boiler business is done in the last half of the year and a still greater proportion of the net earnings realized in that period.

Andrews, President of Niagara Radiator & Boiler Company, will be the Chairman of the Advisory Committee. The management and associates will have a substantial interest in the new Corporation through acquisition of approximately 43% of its Common Stock, and will also acquire substantial amounts of these Debentures and of the Preferred Stock.

National Radiator Corporation

August 6, 1927.

Bankers Trust Company, J. & W. Seligman & Co.

GENTLEMEN: In connection with your offering of 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of National Radiator Cor-[fol. 408] poration, I take pleasure in furnishing you with the following information:

Business

National Radiator Corporation has been organized under the laws of Delaware to acquire assets and business of the following six companes:

National Radiator Company,
Utica Heater Company,
Niagara Radiator & Boiler Company,
Gurney Heater Manufacturing Company,
Continental Heater Corporation,
Union Radiator Company,

all of which have been in successful operation over a long period of years.

National Radiator Corporation, upon acquisition of these various properties, will be the second largest manufacturer in the world of steam and hot water radiators and cast iron boilers for heating purposes. The products manufactured comprise radiators of all the standard sizes and types; low pressure cast iron heating boilers, both round and sectional, of the most efficient designs, for burning hard coal, soft coal, coke, oil and gas; warm air heating equipment; and hot water supply boilers. This wide variety of products meets the heating requirements of buildings of every character from small dwellings to office buildings, apartments, hotels, schools, churches, theatres and similar types of structures.

The high reputation which the Corporation's products bear is indicated by the large increase in their output. The [fol. 409] combined production by the six predecessor companies of radiators, measured in square feet of radiating surface, increased from 22,982,370 sq. ft. in 1923 to 39,820,-878 sq. ft. in 1926 while production of boilers, expressed in pounds of iron used, increased during the same period from 48,346,696 lbs. to 65,555,415 lbs.

Plants and Properties

The Corporation will own ten plants, two of which are located at Johnstown, Pa., two at New Castle, Pa., and one each at Trenton, N. J., Utica, Dunkirk and North Tonawanda, N. Y., Framingham, Mass., and Chicago, Ill. The plants are well equipped and maintained and are advantageously placed with respect to the principal consuming markets and to raw material supply. They have a total annual capacity, upon complete installation of the new radiator plant at New Castle, of approximately 60,000,000 square feet of radiating surface, and over 85,000,000 pounds of boilers. Warehouses and/or branch offices are maintained in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Richmond and other important cities throughout the east and middle west.

Through the favorable location of its various plants and warehouses the Corporation will be in a position to serve practically all the consuming markets of the United States. A number of the plants will have easy access to water transportation for shipment on the Great Lakes and to the Pacific Coast as well as to export markets.

[fol. 410] It is expected that the unification of the businesses of the several companies will prove beneficial from the standpoint both of production and distribution, and should result in substantial operating economies. Immediate benefits are in prospect from the elimination of duplication in warehouse and sales facilities in the same cities and important economies are also expected to accrue from reduction in administration expenses, from the coordination and better distribution of manufacturing operations, and from greater standardization of manufacturing processes and of products. The consolidation of activities will permit more effective advertising, and enable research work to be undertaken on a more comprehensive scale.

Capitalization

The capitalization of the Corporation, upon consummation of the plan for the acquisition of assets and business of the six predecessor companies, and the financing incident thereto, will be as follows:

	Authorized	To be presently outstanding
6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, due August 1, 1947 (this issue)	$16,000,000	$12,000,000
$7 Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock (no par value)	90,000 shs.	60,000 shs.
Common Stock (no par value).	*500,000 shs.	270,000 shs.

* Includes 180,000 shares to be reserved for conversion of the authorized Preferred Stock.

[fol. 411] Security

These Debentures will be, in the opinion of counsel, the direct obligations of the Corporation and, upon the completion of this financing, will constitute its sole funded debt. The Indenture under which the Debentures are to be issued will provide in substance, among other covenants, that so long as any of the Debentures issued thereunder are outstanding the Corporation will not mortgage or pledge or place any lien whatsoever on any of its properties or assets, except as hereinafter provided, unless such Debentures shall be secured by a prior lien upon the property so encumbered. The Indenture will further provide that the $4,000,000 principal amount of Debentures to be authorized, but not to be presently issued, may not be issued in excess of 66⅔% of the cost or fair value, whichever is lower, of new property acquired or of additions and betterments to the properties, and only when the net income of the Corporation, as defined in the Indenture, for 24 consecutive calendar months within the preceding 30 calendar months shall have been at least two and one-half times the interest charges for a like period upon all outstanding indebtedness of the Corporation, including the Debentures to be issued. The Corporation covenants that, so long as any Debentures of this issue are outstanding, it will not issue any funded debt except under the above restrictions as to net income and the acquisition of new property or additions and betterments. Nothing in the covenants shall be deemed to apply to purchase money mortgages or the assumption of [fol. 412] liens on property hereafter acquired or to the refunding or extension of the same, or to obligations incurred in the ordinary course of business maturing within one year from date which may be secured or unsecured.

Earnings

The combined net earnings of the six predecessor companies, assets of which are to be owned by National Radiator Corporation, for the four years ended December 31, 1926, as certified to by Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Co., were as follows:

	Earnings available for interest after depreciation, but before Federal taxes	Annual interest requirement on $12,000,000 Debentures: Times earned
1923	$2,456,076	3.14
1924	3,405,763	4.36
1925	3,488,980	4.47
1926	3,472,184	4.45

Earnings available for interest for the four year period, as shown above, have averaged $3,205,751 annually, equivalent to 4.11 times annual interest requirements on this issue of Debentures and for the year 1926 were 4.45 times such req-irements.

The six predecessor companies report earnings, after provision for depreciation, but before interest and Federal Income Taxes, of approximately $601,000 for the six months ended June 30, 1927, as compared with approximately $892,000 for the corresponding period of 1926. Unfilled orders as of June 30, 1927 amounted to about $4,270,000 as [fol. 413] compared with about $2,200,000 at the corresponding date in 1926. Normally, about two-thirds of the radiator and boiler business is done in the last half of the year and a still greater proportion of the net earnings realized in that period.

Balance Sheet

The balance sheet of National Radiator Corporation as of December 31, 1926 (copy of which is attached hereto) after giving effect to the acquisition, as to that date, of properties and assets to be presently owned, to the appraisals as of the same date by Messrs. Sanderson & Porter of real estate, plant and equipment, to the present financing and transactions incident thereto, as certified to by Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Co., shows total current assets of $10,742,547 as compared with total current liabilities of $1,478,061, or a ratio of over 7¼ to 1. Tangible assets after deducting all liabilities except these Debentures, were approximately $18,000,000.

Sinking Fund

The Indenture under which the Debentures are to be issued will provide for a cumulative semi-annual Sinking Fund, calculated to be sufficient to retire the entire issue by maturity through call by lot at the prevailing redemption price. The Corporation may offer Debentures at their redemption price in lieu of cash for the Sinking Fund.

Purpose of Issue

These Debentures, together with 60,000 shares of $7 Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock of no par value [fol. 414] and 270,000 shares of Common Stock of no par value are being issued in connection with the acquisition of assets and business of the six predecessor companies.

Management

The operating management will continue in the hands of former executives of the predecessor companies. John H. Waters, President of National Radiator Company is the Chairman of the Board of Directors, Edward Norris, President of Utica Heater Company will be the President, and E. C. Andrews, President of Niagara Radiator & Boiler Company, will be the Chairman of the Advisory Committee. The management and associates will have a substantial interest in the new Corporation through acquisition of approximately 43% of its Common Stock, and will also acquire substantial amounts of these Debentures and of the Preferred Stock. The Corporation will have the benefit of the experience of other executives of the predecessor companies all of whom have been notably successful in the development of their respective companies.

General

Due to the climatic conditions of a large part of the United States and to the high standards of living in the country, the manufacture of heating equipment has become of fundamental importance. Steam and hot water radiation has come to be regarded as the most healthful, convenient and economical method of distributing heat. The growing [fol. 415] recognition of its superiority is reflected in the increase in radiator and boiler installations over a long period of years. Shipments for 1925 and 1926 were the highest ever recorded for the industry.

The growing wealth of the country and the increase in its population estimated at over 1,500,000 annually, have resulted in continuous replacement of older structures by new and better grade buildings. While minor variations may take place from year to year in building construction, the demand for modern homes, schools, public buildings and other structures will undoubtedly continue to increase in keeping with the improving living standards of the country. In practically all such new buildings radiators and boilers are an indispensable part of the equipment. In addition to new construction there is an increasingly important demand for radiators and boilers in the very large number of homes which have not yet been equipped with central heating plants and for replacement of obsolete or worn out equipment by the new improved type of products. These various sources of demand offer a wide potential market for the radiator and boiler industry.

Very truly yours, John H. Waters, Chairman of the Board of Directors.

[fol. 416] In United States District Court

Opinion—Filed May 31, 1932

Gibson, District Judge:

The plaintiffs compose a committee for the reorganization of the defendant company. The defendant company admitted the allegations of plaintiffs' bill of complaint and consented to the relief sought therein. The Bankers Trust Company, a corporation of the State of New York, Trustee under an issue of debentures by the defendant, has intervened as a party plaintiff, and the First National Bank of Cincinnati, a holder of debentures to the amount of $68,000, and the International Heater Company, a general creditor, have intervened as party defendants. The plaintiffs represent holders of more than 95% of the debentures issued by the defendant company. The total of these debentures outstanding when the bill of complaint was filed, interest uncounted, is $10,705,000. The general indebtedness of the defendant is comparatively very small.

The bill of complaint prays, inter alia, the sale of the defendant's properties situated in ten Districts. The only intervening defendant appearing at the trial in opposition to the prayers of the bill was the First National Bank of Cincinnati. Its opposition was forcibly presented, but analysis does not show its contentions to be forceful. By implication rather than specific charge, it alleged improper collusion between the original plaintiffs, the intervening plaintiff and the Radiator corporation, defendant. In so doing it based its contention largely upon the fact that the de- [fol. 417] fendant had more than sufficient funds on hand to pay the interest upon the debentures at the time it defaulted in the payment of it. It did not undertake to deny that the defendant company had lost in operation about $1,500,000 for each of the last three years preceding the filing of the bill of complaint, or that it was moving toward inevitable bankruptcy when the instant suit was instituted. The most tangible effort of the intervening defendant was put forth in an effort to have a large "upset" price fixed by the Court in ordering a sale of the defendant company's properties. It also urged that a sale should not be ordered until the depression period had passed. As to the contention last mentioned, it is possible, and we hope, that conditions will improve in the near future, but in view of the fact that the expenses of the receivership are very heavy, and the operation of the defendant company is at a considerable loss, we feel it would be improper to undertake to exercise a gift of prophecy which has not actually been conferred upon us. Such attempt might well result in greater loss.

In our opinion, the evidence has disclosed no fraudulent collusion between the plaintiffs and defendants. It does show, we think, a very present need for reorganization of the Radiator Corporation, and the means suggested in the bill seem to us to furnish a reasonable chance to avoid further loss by creditors. The holders of a small proportion of the company's indebtedness do not agree with this opinion, and such creditors are entitled to consideration by the Court. This does not mean that we should overturn the plans of the great majority of the creditors to save some [fol. 418] part of their claims unless those plans unfairly encroach upon the rights of the minority claimants. In the instant case we discern no such encroachment. All the creditors were given the opportunity to participate in the plan of the majority. The small minority did not want to participate in the reorganization plan of the majority. Under such circumstances the rights of the minority creditors seem plain. They are entitled to recover the amount of the indebtedness to them by judicial sale of the properties of the defendant, or, in event those properties are fairly sold for less than the total indebtedness of defendant, for that proportion of the net proceeds of the sale which their claims bear to the total indebtedness.

The defendant has defaulted in the payment of interest upon its bonds, and the sale of its properties is inevitable. All who appeared at the hearing agreed upon this proposition, although differing as to the proper time for the sale and the minimum price, or prices, of the properties at which the Court would confirm the sale. The difference at the hearing between the creditors desiring reorganization and the single creditor urging complete liquidation was wide. The latter pointed to the appraisement of the various component properties at the time the combination of plants was formed in 1926, and demands that an "upset" price of over $10,000,000 be fixed as the minimum confirmation price. The appraisement was upon operating plants and based upon replacement costs as of December 31, 1926. This appraisal is of little value in the determination of liquidation value at present, when only two of the eight plants in [fol. 419] the combination are operating, and those two not fully. The intervening defendant has introduced no witness to contradict the witnesses of the plaintiffs who have testified as to present liquidating values. Its claim is so plainly extravagant as to make it worthy of little consideration. The witnesses of the plaintiffs have fixed the liquidating value of the assets of the defendant company at a little less than $2,500,000, and we think this amount reasonably represents a minimum price for the properties of defendant at which a sale of them might be confirmed by the Court. The allocation of this amount among the various properties is set forth in the decree.

The intervening defendant's counsel have cited Northern Pacific Railway Company v. Boyd, 228 U. S. 482, in an attack upon the reorganization plan set forth in the bill. That case holds that no reorganization plan may allow stockholders to exchange their shares in the old company for shares in the new, unless the rights of general creditors have been protected. The instant case is not one wherein the stockholder has been benefited at the expense of general creditors. In the proposed reorganization of the present case the creditors are given the senior securities of the new company. Common stockholders of the old company may obtain stock in the new, but only upon condition of payment of a cash assessment. In view of the fact that the properties are by the decree ordered to be sold, this contention is somewhat immaterial. The creditors who have adopted the reorganization plan are satisfied with the provisions, and those who have not accepted it will have their rights protected by the sale.

[fol. 420] Findings of Fact

The findings of fact are as set forth in paragraphs 1 to 28, inclusive, of the decree hereinafter set forth, now referred to and made part hereof.

Conclusions of Law

The plaintiffs are entitled to a decree ordering the sale of the assets and properties of the defendant company.

Article II

Proceedings Had in This Cause and Ancillary Causes

6. The Bill was filed on October 5, 1931; and, on October 9, 1931, National Radiator, by its answer, admitted the truth of the allegations contained in the Bill, joined in the prayers thereof, and consented to the appointment of a receiver or receivers as prayed for in the Bill; and thereupon, by Decree No. 1 in this cause dated October 9, 1931, Robert S. Waters, of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, and William G. Heiner, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania (hereinafter sometimes called the "Receivers"), were appointed receivers of all the property and business of National Radiator wheresoever situate, with authority to take possession of said property and business and to continue to carry on the business of National Radiator as a going concern.

7. The Receivers so appointed by Decree of this Court promptly qualified as such and thereupon, under authority of said Decree, entered upon and took possession of all [fol. 423] the property of National Radiator and (except as hereinafter stated) have since continuously held possession thereof and carried on the business of National Radiator under said Decree and other orders and decrees entered in this cause and the below mentioned ancillary causes, as on file.

8. After the filing of the Bill, ancillary causes similar to this cause were instituted by the complainants against National Radiator, in aid of the proceedings in this cause, in the below mentioned courts; and, by orders of said courts entered in said ancillary causes on the respective dates hereinbelow set forth, said Robert S. Waters and William

G. Heiner were appointed ancillary receivers of all the property and business of National Radiator within the respective territorial jurisdictions of said courts, to wit:

District Court of the United States for the	Date of Appointment
District of New Jersey	October 9, 1931
District of Massachusetts	October 20, 1931
Southern District of Ohio, Western Division	October 22, 1921
Western District of New York	October 23, 1931
Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division	October 23, 1931
District of Maryland	November 5, 1931
Eastern District of Virginia	November 13, 1931
Eastern District of New York	December 24, 1931
and
Supreme Court of the District of Columbia	November 30, 1931

Said Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner so appointed as ancillary receivers, duly qualified as such.

[fol. 424] On November 18, 1931, an action was instituted against National Radiator in the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis, Missouri, by one Abraham Ring, who, as the owner of 50 shares of the Common Stock of National Radiator, filed a petition praying for the appointment of a so-called "ancillary receiver"; and thereupon, without previous notice to National Radiator or the Receivers, said Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis appointed one J. M. Feigenbaum as a so-called "ancillary receiver" of National Radiator. Forthwith after such appointment, said J. M. Feigenbaum ordered the agent of the Receivers, who was at that time in possession of the premises and property of National Radiator in the City of St. Louis, to vacate said premises and property and to turn over the same to said J. M. Feigenbaum, and thereupon said agent of the Receivers relinquished possession of said premises and property to said J. M. Feigenbaum or his deputy. Shortly thereafter, the Receivers caused said action to be removed from said Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis to the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Missouri, Eastern Division, and caused a motion to be made in said cause for the dismissal of said petition of said Abraham Ring and for the discharge of said J. M. Feigenbaum as receiver, upon the ground that said petition did not state a good cause of action in equity. Thereafter, and on or about January 27, 1932, while said motion for the dismissal of said petition and for the discharge of said J. M. Feigenbaum as receiver was pending, the complainants instituted an ancillary cause, similar to this cause, against National Radiator, in the District Court of the United States for the [fol. 425] Eastern District of Missouri, Eastern Division, in aid of the proceedings in this cause, and thereafter, and on or about February 15, 1932, said District Court dismissed the above-mentioned petition of said Abraham Ring and thereby terminated the action instituted by him as aforesaid and the appointment of said J. M. Feigenbaum as receiver; and, by order entered in said last mentioned ancillary cause, said District Court, on February 15, 1932, appointed Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner ancillary receivers of all the property and business of National Radiator within the territorial jurisdiction of said court. Said Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner, so appointed as ancillary receivers, duly qualified as such and thereupon entered upon, and took possession of, the premises and property of National Radiator in said City of St. Louis.

9. On October 9, 1931, an action was instituted by the complainants herein in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware, and, by the decree of said court dated October 12, 1931, said Robert S. Waters and one Robert H. Richards, Jr., a citizen of Wilmington, Delaware, were appointed receivers of and for National Radiator, with power to take charge of the estate, effects, business and affairs of National Radiator, and, in so far as it might be necessary in their judgment, to continue the business of National Radiator for the purpose of conserving its estate, until the further order of said court. At the time of the institution of said action, National Radiator did not own, and at no time since has it owned, any property or assets situate within the State of Delaware.

[fol. 426] 10. On January 9, 1932, Bankers Trust, as Trustee under that certain Indenture dated August 1, 1927, made by National Radiator to said Trustee, with leave of this Court by said Order No. 11 first granted, filed in this cause its Intervening Petition against National Radiator, praying, among other things, that two certain judgments obtained by Bankers Trust, as Trustee, as alleged in said Intervening Petition, be enforced in this cause and that this Court ascertain and decree the rights of Bankers Trust, as Trustee and judgment creditor, and the rights of the holders of the 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of National Radiator (hereinafter called the "Debentures") issued under said Indenture, and the coupons thereto appertaining, and for other relief as set forth in said Intervening Petition, including the relief prayed for in the Bill. Thereafter, with leave of court first granted, Bankers Trust filed similar intervening petitions in the various ancillary causes mentioned in Section 8 of this Decree.

On or about February 13, 1932, National Radiator filed in this cause its answer to said Intervening Petition of Bankers Trust, admitting each and every allegation in said Petition and joining in the prayers thereof. No answers to said Intervening Petition have been filed by any of the other parties to this cause. Similar answers were filed by National Radiator to the intervening petitions filed as aforesaid in the ancillary causes.

11. On February 17, 1932, the First National Bank of Cincinnati, as the owner of $68,000 principal amount of Debentures, filed in this cause its petition for leave to intervene herein as a party defendant, for the purpose of pro- [fol. 427] tecting its rights and the rights of Debentureholders similarly situated who might join in such intervention and contribute to the expense thereof; and, by Order No. 16 entered herein on March 3, 1932, upon consent of the parties hereto given in open court on the final hearing of this cause, the First National Bank of Cincinnati was made a party defendant to this cause, in subordination to and in recognition of the propriety of the main proceeding.

On March 31, 1932, International Heater Company, as the owner of $60,000 principal amount of promissory notes of National Radiator, filed in this cause its petition for leave to intervene herein as a party defendant; and, by Order No. 17 entered herein on March 31, 1932, International Heater Company was permitted to intervene as a party to this cause in accordance with Rule 37 of the Equity Rules.

Article III

Authorization, Execution and Delivery of the Indenture; Issue of Debentures; Defaults under the Indenture; Judgments Obtained by Bankers Trust for Principal and Interest of Debentures; Claims of General Creditors.

12. Shortly before August 30, 1927, National Radiator duly authorized the issue of the Debentures in the aggregate principal amount of $16,000,000. The Debentures were to be coupon debentures in denominations of $1,000 and $500, to be dated August 1, 1927, to be payable August 1, 1947, and to bear interest from August 1, 1927, at the rate of 6½% per annum, payable semi-annually on the 1st [fol. 428] days of February and August in each year, upon the presentation and surrender of the interest coupons thereto attached, and were to be in the form or substantially the form set forth in the Indenture hereinafter mentioned. For the purpose of setting forth the terms and provisions governing the issue of the Debentures and appurtenant coupons and the rights and remedies of the holders thereof, on or about August 30, 1927, National Radiator duly made and executed under its corporate seal and delivered to Bankers Trust, as Trustee, its Indenture dated August 1, 1927 (hereinafter called the "Indenture"). At the time of the execution and delivery of the Indenture, Bankers Trust was duly authorized and empowered to act as Trustee thereunder and duly accepted the trusts under the Indenture and united in the execution of the Indenture. "Schedule A" annexed to and made a part of the Bill is a full, true and correct copy of the Indenture.

The Indenture was and is the proper act and deed of National Radiator, was by it duly authorized, made and delivered in all respects in conformity with law, and remains and now is in full force and effect.

After the execution and delivery of the Indenture, and on or about August 30, 1927, National Radiator duly executed $12,000,000 aggregate principal amount of Debentures with all appurtenant coupons, in substantially the form provided by the Indenture, and Bankers Trust, as Trustee, authenticated the same and delivered them to or upon the order of National Radiator, all in accordance with the provisions of the Indenture.

[fol. 429] 13. Thereafter National Radiator duly negotiated and sold for value and issued to numerous bona fide purchasers thereof said $12,000,000 aggregate principal amount of Debentures with all coupons for interest thereunto appertaining. Of the Debentures so issued, $1,169,000 principal amount have been delivered by National Radiator, from time to time since the execution of the Indenture and prior to the verification of the Bill, to Bankers Trust, as Trustee, for cancellation in lieu of the semi-annual Sinking Fund payments provided for in the Indenture, and the Debentures so delivered have been cancelled by Bankers Trust, all as provided in the Indenture.

14. Of the Debentures issued as aforesaid, $158,000 principal amount have been purchased and acquired by National Radiator and have been cancelled and delivered to Bankers Trust by National Radiator and/or the Receivers, so that at the present time $10,673,000 principal amount of Debentures are outstanding in the hands of divers persons who are the owners and holders thereof for value and said Debentures are now in all respects valid and outstanding obligations of National Radiator.

15. On February 1, 1931, National Radiator made default in payment of the interest then falling due on all of the Debentures issued and outstanding as aforesaid, although the coupons or some thereof appurtenant to said Debentures were duly presented for payment and payment duly demanded.

16. On or about February 11, 1931, the complainants, Ru-
[fol. 430] dolph B. Fershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters, under a Plan and Agreement of Reorganization dated February 11, 1931 (hereinafter called the "Plan and Agreement"), constituted themselves a Reorganization Committee for the purpose of effecting the reorganization of National Radiator. "Schedule B" annexed to and made a part of the Bill is a full, true and correct copy of the Plan and Agreement. On or about September 1, 1931, the complainant Frank B. Cahn was duly elected a member of the Reorganization Committee as provided in Article 16 of the Reorganization Agreement with the effect in said Article 16 provided. The Plan and Agreement provides, among other things, that holders of Debentures may become parties to said Plan by depositing their Debentures with the February 1, 1931 and all subsequent coupons with Bankers Trust, as Depositary, and that such deposit of Debentures shall transfer to and vest in the Reorganization Committee the legal title to such deposited Debentures and the coupons appertaining thereto. Prior to the institution of this suit, more than $8,736,000 principal amount of Debentures had been deposited with Bankers Trust, as Depositary under the Plan and Agreement, together with the coupons for interest on said Debentures due on February 1, 1931 and all subsequent interest dates, and, at the time of the institution of this suit, the complainants were, and at all times since have been and now are, the holders and owners of said Debentures and coupons.

17. On August 1, 1931, National Radiator made default in payment of the interest then falling due on all the Debentures issued and outstanding as aforesaid, although the [fol. 431] coupons or some thereof appurtenant to said Debentures were duly presented for payment and payment duly demanded.

18. Shortly before October 5, 1931, the complainants, as the holders and owners of coupons representing interest on the Debentures due February 1, 1931, in the aggregate amount of not less than $283,920, and as the holders and owners of coupons representing interest on the Debentures due August 1, 1931, in the aggregate amount of not less than $283,920, duly presented all of said coupons for payment at the place specified for the payment thereof and duly demanded of National Radiator payment thereof in full and National Radiator made default in the payment of all of said coupons and the interest thereby represented and omitted and refused to pay the same or any part thereof, and National Radiator was therefore at the time of the institution of this suit indebted to the complainants on account of said coupons and the interest thereby represented in an amount not less than $567,840, together with interest thereon, and no part of said sum has been paid and no bond or other security has been given for the payment thereof.

19. After National Radiator had made default in the payment of interest on the Debentures as aforesaid, the holders of more than one-fourth in principal amount of the Debentures then and now outstanding requested Bankers Trust to take all steps needful for the protection and enforcement of the rights of the holders or registered owners of the Debentures, whether by judicial proceedings or otherwise, and Bankers Trust, pursuant to said request, [fol. 432] did thereafter demand payment of said instalments of interest, and no part thereof being paid, did, with the leave of this Court first obtained, in its own name and as trustee of an express trust, commence an action in assumpsit in this Court against the defendant, entitled "Bankers Trust Company, Trustee, Plaintiff, vs. National Radiator Corporation, Defendant, No. 6776 Law" and in said action obtained judgment on October 13, 1931, against National Radiator in the amount of $713,944.38 for the instalments of interest due February 1, 1931 and August 1, 1931, respectively, on all of the Debentures then and now outstanding, with interest.

20. On or about December 24, 1931, acting under the provisions of Section 2 of Article V of the Indenture, Bankers Trust did, pursuant to the written request of the holders of more than one-fourth in principal amount of the outstanding Debentures, duly declare the principal of and interest on all the Debentures outstanding to be immediately due and payable, and upon such declaration the same did become forthwith due and payable.

21. The principal of and interest upon the outstanding Debentures having become immediately due and payable as aforesaid, and National Radiator having defaulted in the payment of the same on due presentation for payment of certain of the Debentures, Bankers Trust did, pursuant to the request of the holders of more than one-fourth in principal amount of the Debentures then and now outstanding, demand payment of said principal and interest, and no part thereof being paid, did in its own name and as [fol. 433] trustee of an express trust, with the leave of this Court first obtained, commence an action in assumpsit in this Court against National Radiator, entitled "Bankers Trust Company, Trustee, Plaintiff, vs. National Radiator Corporation, Defendant, No. 6851 Law" and in said action obtained judgment on December 30, 1931 against National Radiator in the sum if $10,948,597.33, for the $10,673,000 principal amount of Debenture outstanding, with interest on said Debentures from August 1, 1931 to December 24, 1931, in the sum of $275,597.33, plus $11,698.50 representing interest on said total sum of $10,948,597.33 from December 24, 1931 to the date of said judgment making the total amount of said judgment $10,960,295.83.

22. Since the institution of this suit, additional Debentures have been deposited with Bankers Trust, as Depositary under the Plan and Agreement.

Of the $10,673,000 principal amount of Debentures outstanding as aforesaid, $10,188,500 principal amount, at or prior to March 3, 1932, had been deposited with Bankers Trust, as Depositary under the Plan and Agreement, together with the appurtenant coupons for interest due on February 1, 1931 and all subsequent interest dates, and the complainants in this cause are now the holders and owners of said Debentures and coupons. The remaining $484,500 principal amount of Debentures were, on March 3, 1932, outstanding in the hands of divers persons other than the complainants in this cause.

The coupons appertaining to said $484,500 principal amount of Debentures for the interest due on February 1, [fol. 434] 1931 and all subsequent interest dates, were also outstanding in the hands of divers persons other than the complainants in this cause, except that the February 1, 1931 and the August 1, 1931 coupons pertaining to $68,000 principal amount of Debentures have been paid and retired by reason of the facts hereinafter set forth. On October 9, 1931, the date of the appointment of the Receivers, National Radiator had on deposit with said First National Bank of Cincinnati, the sum of $10,000. Said First National Bank refused to pay said sum over to the Receivers, on their demand, claiming an offset equal to the full amount of said deposit, by reason of the fact that it (said First National Bank) was the holder of $68,000 principal amount of Debentures and of the appurtenant coupons representing unpaid instalments of interest on said Debentures, in the sum of $2,210 due February 1, 1931 and the sum of $2,210 due August 1, 1931. On December 8, 1931, the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, by order entered in the ancillary cause there pending between the parties hereto, adjudged that the amount of said overdue interest coupons was a valid offset as claimed by said First National Bank, but that said Bank was not entitled to any offset on account of the principal of said Debentures, and ordered said First National Bank to deliver to the Receivers said unpaid coupons aggregating $4,420 and to retain for its own account a like amount of said deposit, and to pay to the Receivers the remainder of said deposit, to wit, the sum of $5,580. Said coupons have been delivered to the Receivers, and said sum of $5,580 has been paid to the Receivers by said First National Bank, [fol. 435] pursuant to said adjudication and order, and said sum of $4,420 has been retained by said First National Bank and applied by it, by way of offset, to the payment of said coupons.

23. By reason of the matters and things hereinbefore stated, there are now due and payable to Bankers Trust, as Trustee and/or judgment creditor, the following:

First. A reasonable compensation to Bankers Trust, as Trustee, its agents, attorneys and counsel, and all expenses, liabilities and advances made or incurred by Bankers Trust under the Indenture, all in such amount as may be approved by this Court;

Second. The amount of the judgment hereinabove in Section 19 referred to	$713,944.38
Less the amount included therein in respect of the $4,420 of coupons which have been retired as hereinabove in Section 22 recited, and interest thereon	4,548.69
	$709,395.69
Interest at the rate of 6% per annum on said $709,395.69 from October 13, 1931 to the date of this Decree	27,311.73
[fol. 436] The amount of the judgment hereinabove in Section 21 referred to	10,960,295.83
Interest at the rate of 6% per annum on said $10,960,295.83 from December 30, 1931 to the date of this Decree	279,487.54
Total	$11,976,490.79

Article IV

National Radiator's Assets and Liabilities

24. On January 2, 1932, the Receivers filed with this Court their inventory of the assets and property of National Radiator as the same were constituted on October 9, 1931, the date of the appointment of the Receivers.

25. Apart from the amounts hereinbefore found to be due and payable under the Indenture and the above mentioned judgments, claims of creditors against National Radiator, which have been duly presented as above provided and which have been or shall be proved and allowed as valid obligations of National Radiator, are and will be due and payable as established and allowed. At the time of the filing of the Bill, National Radiator was and still is indebted to creditors other than Bankers Trust and the holders of Debentures, in the total principal amount of approximately $157,511.89, all of whom, with minor exceptions, are unsecured creditors.

[fol. 437] 26. At the time of the filing of the Bill, National Radiator had and still has no means at hand with which to meet, pay or satisfy the interest charges on the Debentures which had become due and payable on February 1, 1931, and August 1, 1931, without seriously jeopardizing the ability of National Radiator to continue its business and without making it difficult for it to secure necessary supplies, materials and labor to continue the operations of its plants and the sale of its products; and the cash and other immediately realizable assets of National Radiator are wholly insufficient for the payment of the indebtedness of National Radiator now due, and National Radiator is presently unable to pay or obtain an amount sufficient for the payment of the indebtedness now due and owing by it. The unity of the property of National Radiator and its integrity as a whole, as now held and operated, the administrative, technical and sales organization and the goodwill of its customers, constitute, however, most important elements of value. If the properties and assets of National Radiator were sold under separate levies by its creditors, the net proceeds thereof would in all probability be wholly inadequate to pay and satisfy its obligations. But continuation of the receivership (except until such time as a sale of National Radiator's property can be effected) cannot produce results sufficiently favorable to justify its continuance. The property, assets and business of National Radiator should, therefore, be administered and sold in such manner as to realize the highest price obtainable. The interests of the creditors of National Radiator will best be served by the speedy sale of all its property, assets and business, in such a manner as to give an opportunity for [fol. 438] the purchase of the whole thereof as an entirety, and the distribution, under the direction of this Court, of the net proceeds of such sale amongst the creditors of National Radiator and such others, if any, as this Court may adjudicate.

27. This Court specially finds that this cause was instituted and has been prosecuted by the complainants and Bankers Trust, as Trustee, and that the answer of National Radiator admitting the truth of the allegations of the Bill and joining in the prayers thereof and consenting to the appointment of the Receivers was filed, in good faith, for the purpose of conserving the property, assets and good will of National Radiator and of effecting the sale thereof for the benefit of all creditors of National Radiator, and there is no evidence of any fraud or collusion on the part of the complainants, or of Bankers Trust or of National Radiator in connection with any of the proceedings herein.

28. This Court, upon consideration of the foregoing, also concludes that the complainants and Bankers Trust, as Trustee and judgment creditor, are legally entitled to a sale pursuant to this Decree of all of the property, assets and business of National Radiator, as prayed for in the Bill and in said Intervening Petition of Bankers Trust.

It is therefore further ordered, adjudged, and decreed as follows:

Article V

Payment of Indebtedness Decreed

29. National Radiator, or someone on its behalf, shall within 10 days after the entry of this Decree, pay or cause [fol. 439] to be paid to Bankers Trust, as Trustee and judgment creditor, for the use and benefit of the holders and registered owners of the Debentures now outstanding and the coupons thereunto appertaining, the sum of $11,976,490.79 with interest thereon at the rate of 6% per annum from the date of this Decree to the date of such payment.

Article VI

Sale of Property Decreed

30. If the payment hereinabove in Section 29 decreed is not made within said 10-day period, all property and interests in property of every kind, character and description of National Radiator and/or the Receivers, real and personal, movable and immovable, vested and contingent, in law or in equity, tangible and intangible, held and to be held or acquired by National Radiator and/or the Receivers, wheresoever situated and to which National Radiator and/or the Receivers is or are or may become entitled, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing description, all the business, good-will, including corporate name, patents, trade names, trade marks, bills and accounts receivable, choses in action and cash on hand or in banks, shall be sold in the manner and subject to the provisions hereinafter in this Decree set forth, without valuation, appraisement, exemption or extension and free from any right of redemption, and all the right, title and interest and equity of redemption of National Radiator and of its creditors and stockholders and of the Receivers and of all persons claiming under it or them or any of them [fol. 440] and of all parties to this cause, in and to said property and every part and parcel thereof, shall be forever barred and foreclosed and the entire property and assets of National Radiator shall be administered, and the rights, liens and equities of the creditors of National Radiator, are decreed, and shall be enforced, all as hereinafter provided.

If such payment shall be made as hereinabove in Article V decreed, any of the parties to this cause, or any person or persons making any such payment or payments, may apply to this Court for such further instructions and for such further order or decree with reference to relief from the operation of the decree of sale herein contained and otherwise, as may be just and equitable.

31. The property owned by National Radiator and/or the Receivers which is to be sold under this Decree is more particularly described in Schedule A hereto annexed.

32. The property by this Decree directed to be sold, whether sold as an entirety or in parcels, shall be sold subject to the lien of taxes and assessments lawfully levied or assessed against the same and unpaid, and subject to the lien or charge of any lawful mortgage, pledge or other encumbrance thereon heretofore made or given by any person, firm or corporation, including National Radiator and the Receivers.

33. The sale directed by this Decree shall be made at public auction to the highest bidder, in the manner hereinafter directed. It shall be made by and under the direction of the Receivers and may be made by them in per- [fol. 441] son or by their duly appointed agent. The sale directed by this Decree shall be made at the County Court House in the City of New Castle in the County of Lawrence in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, on a day and at an hour to be named by the Receivers, on request of the solicitor for the complainants. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Boston, Mass.; Baltimore, Md.; Washington, D. C.; Richmond, Va.; Trenton, N. J.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Johnstown, Pa.; Cincinnati, Ohio; Chicago, Ill. The first publication may be made on the first day after the entry of this Decree or on any day thereafter. Said notice, when so published, shall constitute due, timely and sufficient notice to all persons of said sale and of the hearing on the report of the Receivers of the result of said sale. The Receivers shall have power to adjourn said sale from time to time to any [fol. 442] future date, by oral announcement of such adjournment, made either personally or by some person designated by them to act in their name or by their authority, at the time and place appointed for the sale or for such adjourned sale, and the Receivers may, without further notice, advertisement or publication, proceed with such sale at the time to which the same shall have been so adjourned, but they may give any such further notice of sale, in addition to the notice herein directed, or of any adjournment, as may be requested by the solicitors for the complainants, or as this Court may order.

As soon as may be after any sale, the Receivers shall report the result of such sale to this Court, and from time to time thereafter shall make such further and supplemental reports as may be necessary or desirable to keep this Court and the parties to this cause properly advised of their proceedings and the execution of this Decree.

34. Such hearing may thereupon be had without any further notice to any party.

Article VII

Manner of Sale—Parcels in Which Property is to be Sold. Acceptance of Bids

35. The sale directed by this Decree shall be made in the manner hereafter in this Section prescribed, and all bids for any Parcel of the property to be sold shall be received and noted only on condition that such Parcel may be subsequently offered and sold as in this Section provided.

A. The Receivers shall first offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel A, the property described in Clause I of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

B. The Receivers shall next offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel B, the property described in [fol. 444] Clause II of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

C. The Receivers shall next offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel C, the property described in Clause III of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

D. The Receivers shall next offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel D, the property described in Clause IV of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

E. The Receivers shall next offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel E, the property described in Clause V of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

F. The Receivers shall next offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel F, the property described in Clause VI of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

G. The Receivers shall next offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel G, the property described in Clause VII of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

H. The Receivers shall next offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel H, the property described in Clause VIII of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

[fol. 445] I. The Receivers shall next offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel I, the property described in Clause IX of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

J. The Receivers shall next offer for sale separately and as an entirety, as Parcel J, the property described in Clause X of Schedule A annexed to this Decree, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

K. The Receivers shall next offer for sale Parcels A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I and J, together as an entirety, as Parcel K, and shall note the highest bid therefor.

If the highest bid noted for Parcel K shall equal or exceed the aggregate of the highest bids for said property when offered for sale in separate parcels, as provided in the foregoing Paragraphs A to J, inclusive, then the bids noted for Parcels A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I and J shall be cancelled by the Receivers and said bid noted for Parcel K shall be accepted. Otherwise, the bid noted for Parcel K shall be cancelled and the highest bids noted for Parcels A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I and J shall stand and be accepted by the Receivers, and said several parcels shall be struck off and sold to the highest bidders for said respective Parcels.

In that event that no separate bid at least equal to the required minimum amounts prescribed in Section 38 of this Decree shall have been noted for some one or more of said several Parcels, then, for the purposes of this Section, it shall be deemed that there has been bid for each such Parcel for which no such bid was noted, the minimum [fol. 446] amount required by Section 38 of this Decree to be bid for such Parcel.

In case a separate sale of any of the Parcels above mentioned shall be directed to be made by an order of any of the above mentioned courts in which ancillary causes are pending, as hereinabove in Section 8 recited, this Decree shall be deemed to be modified to the extent that the provisions of said order relating to the separate sale of such Parcel are inconsistent with the provisions of this Decree.

This Court reserves the right to make such further orders and decrees as may be necessary or proper to carry the foregoing provisions into effect and further expressly reserves the right not to confirm any sale made as provided in this Decree and to accept or reject any bid or bids which may be made at any such sale.

Article VIII

Bidder's Statement, Deposit Required to Qualify Bidders, and Upset Prices

36. The Receivers shall refuse to receive any bid from anyone who shall not, at least 24 hours before the offer for sale by the Receivers of the property to be sold, file with the Receivers a statement as to whether or not he proposes to bid for the purposes of any plan or agreement of reorganization and, if so, the further statement that there has been filed with the Clerk of this Court, and entitled in this cause, a petition duly verified for the approval by this Court of said plan or agreement of reorganization in the event that the bidder becomes the suc- [fol. 447] cessful bidder at the sale directed by this Decree, together with a complete copy of such plan or agreement and a complete statement of the notice theretofore given of such plan or agreement, by publication or otherwise, to persons and corporations interested in National Radiator and its property; provided, however, that, if any bidder's bid is made for the purposes of the Plan and Agreement hereinabove in this Decree referred to, such bidder's statement need not include a copy of said Plan and Agreement.

At the hearing to be held upon the report of the Receivers referred to in Section 34 hereof, this Court will hear complaints as to the equity of the provisions of any such plan or agreement of reorganization, including the Plan and Agreement hereinabove referred to, affecting the respective priorities of all persons and corporations interested in National Radiator and its property, from all Debentureholders or other creditors, secured or unsecured, of National Radiator, who before the date of such hearing shall file, with leave of Court, their petitions herein for such purpose, specifying in reasonable detail the particulars in which such plan or agreement is alleged by them to be inequitable, and this Court reserves exclusive jurisdiction to determine whether the provisions as to which complaints are so made are equitable; and no sale of any property hereunder to any purchaser who is to purchase said property for the purposes of any such plan or agreement of reorganization shall be confirmed if this Court shall, after such hearing, determine that the provisions of such plan or agreement of reorganization, or any thereof, are [fol. 448] inequitable or that said plan or agreement of reorganization does not provide an equitable and timely offer of participation in the reorganization thereby proposed to all persons entitled thereto. The Receivers' notice of sale shall refer to the foregoing provisions of this paragraph; and if any person or persons who shall have filed with the Receivers a statement that he or they propose to bid for the purposes of any plan or plans or agreement or agreements of reorganization, as aforesaid, shall be the successful bidder or bidders for said property, the Receivers shall publish once in the same newspapers in which they shall have published the notice of sale, a notice that the successful bidedr or bidders, as the case may be, have filed as aforesaid such statement with a copy of the plan or agreement of reorganization for the purposes of which their successful bid or bids were made and that such copy of said plan or agreement of reorganization may be examined by anyone wishing to do so at the office of the Clerk of this Court. Such publication shall give notice of the time and place where the hearing hereinbefore provided for upon the equity of the provisions of such plan or agreement of reorganization shall be held. The aforesaid publications shall be made as hereinabove provided and shall be completed at least 5 days before such hearing, and when so made shall constitute due, timely and sufficient notice of the hearing on any such plans and agreements. All persons who shall fail to make any complaint at said hearing as hereinabove provided, shall be barred from doing so thereafter.

37. In making the sale directed by this Decree, the Receivers shall refuse to receive any bid from any person offering to bid who shall not, at least 24 hours prior to any [fol. 449] such offering by the Receivers for sale under this Decree, deposit with the Receivers and deliver to them as a pledge that he will make good his bid and as part payment of the purchase price in case of the acceptance of his bid (a) a sum in cash or check or checks of or certified by some bank or trust company in New York, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., Chicago, Ill., or Boston, Mass., acceptable to the Receivers, and made or endorsed payable to their order, equal to at least 10% of the minimum amount specified in Section 38 of this Decree in respect of the Parcel for which such person is offering to bid, or (b) Debentures in bearer form and/or coupons thereon due February 1, 1931 and/or August 1, 1931 and/or assignments of claims against National Radiator then finally established and allowed, aggregating in amount at least 40% of such minimum amount specified in said Section 38, or (c) partly cash and/or certified check or checks and partly Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims, in the same relative proportions. Any person offering to bid for two or more Parcels shall make a separate deposit as aforesaid with respect to each such Parcel for which he offers to bid, or make one or more deposits equal to the aggregate of such separate deposits. A deposit made to qualify any person to bid for Parcel K will also qualify such person to bid separately for one or more of Parcels A to J, inclusive.

In lieu of such deposit, the Receivers may accept the certificate or certificates of any bank or trust company acceptable to them, that it holds, subject to their order, cash, checks, Debentures, coupons and/or assignments of claims, [fol. 450] all of the character above specified.

Any deposit received from an unsuccessful bidder shall be returned to him at the conclusion of the bidding, but without interest thereon. The deposit received from a successful bidder shall be applied on account of the purchase price of the property purchased by such bidder in case the sale to him shall be confirmed, and in case this Court shall deny confirmation of the sale to a successful bidder, his deposit shall be returned to him on his demand therefor, but without interest thereon.

In case a successful bidder, after confirmation of the sale to him as hereinafter in this Decree provided, shall fail to comply within the period of 20 days after the entry thereof with any order of this Court requiring or relating to the payment of the balance of the purchase price, or if an appeal be taken from such order, within the period of 20 days after the service of notice of the entry of the order finally affirming such order on appeal, then the deposit of such bidder shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failure and shall be applied to the payment of the expense of a re-sale and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property sold to such bidder shall be sold at a less price on any such resale, and to such other purposes as this Court may direct.

38. The Receivers shall not receive any bid for any Parcel of the property in and by this Decree directed to be sold less than the respective minimum amounts hereinafter set forth:

[fol. 451] Parcel A	$2,392,000
Parcel B	28,000
Parcel C	17,500
Parcel D	37,500
Parcel E	17,500
Parcel F	1,000
Parcel G	2,250
Parcel H	1,000
Parcel I	1,000
Parcel J	2,250
Parcel K	2,500,000

When the property by this Decree directed to be sold is offered for sale by Receivers, if a bid of at least the above required minimum amount shall not be received for any of said Parcels, then the Receivers shall adjourn the sale of such Parcel or Parcels to such date as they shall determine and announce at the time of adjournment, and thereupon they shall apply to this Court for further instructions. If a bid or bids of at least the above-required respective minimum amounts shall be received and noted for any one or more of said Parcels as hereinbefore provided, then such bid or bids, as provided in Section 35 of this Decree, shall be accepted and said Parcel or Parcels shall be struck off and sold as in said Section 35 provided.

39. Any party to this cause or any owner or holder of Debentures or of any of the coupons thereon or of any claim against National Radiator, or anyone else, may bid at the sale and, if the successful bidder, may purchase in his or its own right.

40. Any successful bidder may assign, transfer and set over his bid in whole or in part and all or any part of his [fol. 452] rights or interest under this Decree as such successful bidder; provided, however, that the assignee shall assume the successful bidder's obligation to perform all the terms and conditions of the sale.

Article IX

Purchaser to Assume and Pay Certain Expenses, Compensations and Liabilities

41. The word "Purchaser", wherever used in this Decree, shall include the plural as well as the singular, and is intended to designate the person or persons, firm or firms, corporation or corporations, to whom or to which the sale of any property covered by this Decree shall have been confirmed by order of this Court herein, and his, its or their successors and assigns.

42. The Purchaser of Parcel A of the property (whether sold separately or as a part of Parcel K), in addition to the amount of his accepted bid for said property and as part consideration for said property and as part of the purchase price thereof, shall be required to assume all obligations of the Receivers under any then existing executory contracts, leases and agreements entered into, assumed or adopted by the Receivers.

The Purchaser of Parcel A shall take the property, and shall receive the deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer hereinafter provided to be given to the Purchaser, subject to the express condition that the Purchaser shall perform the [fol. 453] obligations hereinbefore required to be assumed by the Purchaser of said Parcel, to the extent that such obligations have not theretofore been fully performed and made, and this Court expressly retains jurisdiction of the property so purchased, as against all other provisions of this Decree, and reserves the right to re-take said Parcel and apply it to the satisfaction of said obligations in case the Purchaser shall fail to comply with any order of this Court directing such performance within 20 days after the service of a copy of such order, or, if an appeal be taken from any such order, within 20 days after service of written notice of the final affirmance of such order upon appeal.

Article X

Payment by the Purchaser

43. Upon confirmation of the sale by this Court, the Purchaser shall make such further payment or payments on account of the purchase price of the property sold to him as this Court may from time to time direct; provided, however, that at the time of the assignment, transfer and delivery to the Purchaser of the property and cash comprised in Parcel A, the Receivers shall retain out of said cash the sum of $300,000, and the retention of said sum by the Receivers shall be deemed to constitute the payment in cash by the Purchaser of Parcel A of a like portion of the purchase price, and said sum shall be treated as a portion of the proceeds of the sale of said Parcel A, to be applied as provided in Section 48 of this Decree.

[fol. 454] The purchase price may be paid in cash or the Purchaser may satisfy any residue of his bid, in whole or in part, by turning over to the Receivers, at their distributive value to be credited and returned as hereinafter in this Decree provided, Debentures in bearer form and/or coupons thereon due February 1, 1931 and/or August 1, 1931, and/or assignments of claims against National Radiator then finally established and allowed.

In lieu of Debentures and/or coupons and/or assigned claims, the Receivers may accept the certificate or certificates of any bank or trust company in New York, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., Chicago, Ill., or Boston, Mass., acceptable to them, that it holds, subject to their order, such Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims against National Radiator finally established and allowed.

The Purchaser shall not be required to pay on account of the purchase price any amount thereof which may be payable in cash out of the proceeds of the sale to Bankers Trust or to any holder of Debentures or coupons thereon or to any other creditor of National Radiator until 10 days after this Court shall, on application of Bankers Trust or such Debentureholder or couponholder or other creditor, direct payment of the cash distributive share of such proceeds to which Bankers Trust or such Debentureholder or couponholder or other creditor shall be entitled.

44. The Purchaser shall be credited on account of his purchase price for Debentures and coupons and assigned claims finally established and allowed, turned over in part [fol. 455] payment of the purchase price, with such sum as would be paid in respect of such Debentures, coupons and assigned claims out of the proceeds of sale, if the whole amount of the purchase price had been paid in cash.

After this Court has determined the amount of the purchase price of the property directed by this Decree to be sold with which the Purchaser is to be credited on account of the Debentures, coupons and assigned claims which the Purchaser has turned over to be credited on his purchase price, and after the Purchaser has completed payment of the purchase price or has complied with the conditions of any order of this Court providing for the return to him of such Debentures, coupons and assigned claims before the payment in full of the purchase price, the Receivers shall return the same to him, noting thereon, by stamping or otherwise, the amount of the purchase price with which the Purchaser is to be credited with respect to each such Debenture, coupon and assigned claim.

45. This Court reserves a lien and charge upon the property sold to any Purchaser, subordinate only to the right reserved by Section 42 and the liens mentioned in Section 32 of this Decree, for the payment in full of the purchase price thereof and the right to re-sell the property, or any part thereof, upon such notice as it may direct, at the risk and cost of the Purchaser, in case the Purchaser shall fail or omit to make any payment on account of such purchase price within 20 days after the entry of the order requiring [fol. 456] such payment, or if an appeal be taken from any such order, within 20 days after the service of written notice of the final affirmance of such order upon appeal.

46. All sums of money, checks, Debentures, coupons, assigned claims or certificates of deposit therefor received by the Receivers in connection with the qualification of bidders and on account of the payment of the purchase price of the property sold under this Decree shall be deposited by the Receivers in such bank or banks, trust company or trust companies in the City of Pittsburgh, Pa., or in the City of New York, N. Y., or in both of said cities, as shall be approved by the solicitor for the complainants and the solicitor for Bankers Trust, to be held subject to the order of this Court in this cause.

47. The Purchaser shall not be required to see to the application of the purchase moneys nor be answerable in any manner whatsoever for any loss, mis-application or non-application thereof or of any part thereof.

Article XI

Application or Proceeds of Sale

48. The proceeds of sale of the property by this Decree directed to be sold shall be applied as follows:

First. To the payment of

(1) all administration expenses, allowances and disbursements in this cause, including the expenses attendant upon the sale of the property directed by this Decree to be [fol. 457] sold, and any unpaid compensation which has been or shall be allowed to the Receivers in this cause and in the causes referred to in Sections 8 and 9 of this Decree or any of them and all expenses incurred by the Receivers and by Robert H. Richards, Jr., as one of the receivers in the cause mentioned in Section 9 of this Decree, in the discharge of their duties after the delivery of the possession of the property sold;

(2) the compensation and disbursements of the complainants and of their solicitors, and of National Radiator and its solicitors, and of the solicitors for the Receivers in this cause;

(3) the compensation of Bankers Trust, as Trustee under the Indenture, its agents, attorneys and counsel and all expenses, liabilities, and advances made or incurred by it as such Trustee;

(4) all unpaid indebtedness and liabilities of the Receivers in this cause and in the causes mentioned in Section 8 of this Decree and of Robert H. Richards, Jr., as one of the receivers in the cause mentioned in Section 9 of this Decree, contracted or incurred in the management or operation of the property in their possession or otherwise in the discharge of their duties as receivers, or in compliance with any orders of court in any of said causes up to the date of delivery of possession of the property sold;

(5) the compensation of Robert H. Richards, Jr., as one of the receivers appointed as aforesaid by the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in the cause therein [fol. 458] pending and the compensation and disbursements of the solicitors for the complainants, for National Radiator and for the receivers appointed in said cause, in such amounts as shall be finally allowed said Robert H. Richards and said solicitors by order of said court in said cause; and

(6) the compensation and disbursements of the solicitors for the complainants, for Bankers Trust, for National Radiator and for the Receivers in the several ancillary causes mentioned in Section 8 of this Decree, in such amounts as shall be finally allowed said solicitors by orders of the respective courts in which said causes are pending as aforesaid.

Second. To the payment of such obligations of National Radiator as this Court shall direct at the times and in the manner directed by this Court in its order of distribution to be entered upon or after the entry of its order confirming the sale herein directed to be made, and this Court reserves exclusive jurisdiction to make such order and to pass upon and determine all questions which may be presented to it in accordance with its practice relating to the validity and to the amount and priority of the claims of any person claiming to be entitled to share in the proceeds of sale.

Except as in this Decree otherwise provided, all matters and questions relating to any of the above mentioned indebtedness, obligations, compensation, fees, allowances and expenses and all payments to be made therefor, shall from [fol. 459] time to time be determined fixed, allowed and settled by this Court upon application by the respective persons claiming to be entitled to receive such payments, and this Court reserves the right and retains the exclusive jurisdiction so to do.

Article XII

Appearance of Purchaser

49. The Purchaser of any property sold by this Decree shall have the right to enter his appearance in this cause and he, or any of the parties to this cause, shall have the right to contest any claim, demand or allowance pending at the time of the sale and then undetermined, and any claim, demand or allowance which would be payable by such Purchaser, or which would be chargeable against the property sold to such Purchaser, in addition to the amount bid at the sale, and he or any such party may appeal from any decision relating to any such claim, demand or allowance.

Article XIII

Disallowance of Unfiled Claims and Injunction

50. Notice having heretofore been given pursuant to Order No. 7 entered in this cause October 23, 1931, requiring all creditors of National Radiator to file statements of their claims and demands against National Radiator with the Receivers on or before December 31, 1931, and said Order No. 7, having been duly adopted by appropriate orders entered in all of the ancillary causes hereinabove in Section 8 referred to, and the time for such filing having heretofore expired, all claims and demands against Na- [fol. 460] tional Radiator, statements whereof have not been filed on or before December 31, 1931 (except any claims or demands which have arisen or may arise after October 9, 1931, and/or which may thereafter be proved nunc pro tunc by permission of this Court and be allowed after said date or which have been or may hereafter be allowed by order of this Court without requiring the filing of statements thereof) shall be finally barred and foreclosed, and no such claim so barred or foreclosed shall be enforced against the Receivers or against any assets in the hands of the Receivers or against any of the property sold, or any portion thereof, and no holder of any such claim or demand shall be entitled to any right whatsoever under this Decree, nor shall any such claim or demand be entitled to share in the distribution of any of the proceeds of sale of the property directed by this Decree to be sold.

51. All creditors and stockholders of and claimants against National Radiator are hereby severally and respectively perpetually enjoined from prosecuting against the Purchaser of any property by this Decree directed to be sold, or against any nominee or assignee or grantee of such Purchaser, or against any person or persons, corporation or corporations claiming by, under or through them, or any of them, or against any of the property sold pursuant to this Decree, any suit or proceeding arising out of or based on any obligation or liability of National Radiator, or otherwise to impose liability upon the Purchaser or upon any nominee or assignee or grantee of the Purchaser or upon any party to this cause or upon any person or persons, cor- [fol. 461] poration or corporations, claiming by, under or through them or any of them, or upon any property sold pursuant to this Decree in respect of any claim against National Radiator, or to charge the Purchaser, or any nominee or assignee or grantee of the Purchaser, or any party to this cause, or any person or persons, corporation or corporations claiming by, under or through them or any of them, or any property sold pursuant to this Decree, with any liability on or in respect of any matter adjudicated by this Decree, except pursuant to the provisions of and in subordination of this Decree; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to limit or restrict (a) the right of any such claimant whose claim, or any part thereof, is payable under the provisions of this Decree, as part of the purchase price of the property sold hereunder or out of the proceeds of sale of said property, or any part thereof, to take herein such proceedings in respect thereof as may be authorized or permitted by this Decree; or (b) the right of the holder of any lien or charge subject to which the property of National Radiator is to be sold, to enforce such lien or charge; and provided, also, that if any Purchaser of the property by this Decree directed to be sold assumes or adopts any of the obligations of National Radiator, the failure of any holder of any obligation so assumed or adopted to file a statement of his claim with the Receivers as hereinabove recited shall not relieve such Purchaser from liability upon the obligation so assumed or adopted by him.

[fol. 462] Article XIV

Confirmation of Sale and Receivers' Deeds

52. Upon confirmation of the sale by this Court and upon payment by the Purchaser of the purchase price of the property sold to him (including the assumption by the Purchaser of the obligations by him to be assumed as hereinabove in Section 42 provided) or of such portion of the purchase price as, pursuant to the provisions, if any, of the order of this Court confirming the sale, shall entitle the Purchaser to receive delivery of a deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer, the Receivers shall execute and deliver a deed or deeds or other proper instrument or instruments conveying or assigning and transferring to such Purchaser or his assigns the property sold to him; and to the Purchaser of Parcel A (whether sold separately or as a part of Parcel K) the Receivers shall assign, transfer and deliver all cash (less the sum of $300,000 to be retained by the Receivers as hereinabove in Section 43 provided), and all current assets, materials and supplies then in the possession of the Receivers.

National Radiator shall, at the time of the delivery of any deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or transfer and assignment by the Receivers, and by way of further assurance, make and deliver a similar deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyances or assignment and transfer to the grantee or grantees named in such deed or deeds or other instrument or in- [fol. 463] struments of conveyance or assignment and transfer by the Receivers, or if any such Purchaser or his assigns shall so request, shall join with the Receivers in the execution of the deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer to be made by the Receivers, and shall thereby convey, transfer, assign and release to such grantee or grantees all its right, title and interest in and to the property so conveyed or assigned and transferred by the Receivers.

Upon the production of said deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer or of a certified copy or copies thereof, the grantee or grantees therein shall be let into the possession of the property so conveyed or assigned and transferred and shall, after such delivery of possession, hold, possess and enjoy the property so conveyed or assigned and transferred and every part and parcel thereof, free from any lien, charge or claim, except those subject to which this Decree expressly declares the property is to be sold, and free from all claims, rights, interest or equity of redemption of, in or to the same by or of National Radiator, its successors and assigns, and by or of its creditors or stockholders and by or of any and all persons claiming by, under or through it, its creditors or stockholders, and by or of any party to this cause; provided, however, that, if the property sold under this Decree shall be sold in separate Parcels as hereinbefore provided, the respective Purchasers of Parcels B to J, inclusive, shall permit the Purchaser of Parcel A to leave on the respective premises comprised in said Parcels [fol. 464] B to J, inclusive, for a reasonable time to be hereafter fixed by this Court and without cost or charge, such inventories, stocks of merchandise and other property comprised in Parcel A as shall be located or stored on such premises at the time of such delivery of possession to the Purchasers of said Parcels B to J, inclusive, and they shall also permit the Purchaser of Parcel A, at all reasonable hours during such time, to enter upon said respective premises and to remove therefrom such inventories, merchandise and other property.

Prior to the delivery of possession as herein provided, the Receivers may continue to operate the properties in receivership and to carry on the business of National Radiator and to use for such purpose the cash, current assets, materials and supplies now or hereafter in the possession of the Receivers.

53. Within 2 weeks after the entry of this Decree, the Receivers shall file in this cause a reasonably itemized and specific schedule of all the property and assets of National Radiator not already fully itemized and specified in their reports heretofore filed in this cause or to be filed herein pursuant to Section 54 of this Decree.

Article XV

Statements of Receivers

54. The Receivers shall, not more than 20 nor less than 10 days prior to the date fixed for the sale under this Decree, file in this cause an approximate statement or statements as nearly correct as they are able to make the same, [fol. 465] and made as of the latest date reasonably practicable showing or containing:

(a) the amounts as estimated by the Receivers of all taxes and assessments lawfully levied or assessed and of all mortgages, pledges and other encumbrances, which the Receivers are informed are claimed to be a lien or charge upon any of the property by this Decree directed to be sold, and specifying in each case the nature of such tax, assessment, mortgage, pledge or other encumbrance, and the particular property upon which the same is claimed to be a lien or charge;

(b) such supplement to the report of the Receivers filed on January 2, 1932, by way of a later balance sheet or otherwise, as will, together with said report of January 2, 1932, show the current assets of the receivership, including cash, and the extent to which any of such assets are pledged or otherwise charged to secure any indebtedness of the Receivers or of National Radiator;

(c) the indebtedness and obligations of the Receivers of every kind, character and description, including a description of all outstanding contracts and leases entered into by the Receivers and indicating which thereof, if any, reserve to the Purchaser under this Decree the right to elect not to assume or adopt the same;

(d) a description of all outstanding contracts and leases to which National Radiator is a party; and also showing whether they have been assumed or adopted or disaffirmed by the Receivers; and [fol. 466] (e) all claims and demands against National Radiator which have been filed pursuant to any order heretofore entered in this cause, save such as may have been paid and discharged in full, and the amount of such claims and demands which have been allowed.

Such statements and each of them shall be advisory only and shall not, with respect to any matter, be construed as a representation or warranty. Nothing therein contained or omitted therefrom shall be binding upon the Purchaser at such sale or shall release any bidder or the Purchaser at such sale, nor shall such statements or any of them constitute ground for release from any debt, liability or obligation because of anything included therein or omitted therefrom, and the Purchaser at such sale shall be entitled only to such title or interest as the Receivers and/or National Radiator have or has power to transfer by virtue of this Decree. None of said statements shall be binding upon any of the parties to this cause or be or be deemed conclusive as to any matters contained herein.

Article XVI

Disaffirmance of Contracts and Rejection of Property by Purchaser

55. Any Purchaser of the property described in this Decree, whether or not he has exercised or used any rights thereunder, shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter specified, within 6 months after the delivery of the deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer by the Receivers of the prop- [fol. 467] erty purchased by him, or within such additional period as the Court may hereafter by its orders or decrees permit, have the right to elect not to assume or adopt any contract, lease or agreement not fully performed, heretofore made or assumed by National Radiator (but not any contract, lease or agreement entered into, made, assumed or adopted by the Receivers which does not expressly reserve to the Purchaser the right to elect not to assume or adopt such contract, lease or agreement), which is part of the property embraced in such deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer. Such election shall be made by instrument in writing signed by such Purchaser and shall contain a general description of the contracts, leases or agreements which he elects not to assume or adopt, and shall be filed with the Clerk of this Court within the period aforesaid or within such additional period as this Court may hereafter by its order permit. No user of rights prior to the expiration of said period shall be deemed to conclude the Purchaser in respect of such election, and upon the filing of such election, the Purchaser shall be deemed not to have assumed or adopted said contracts, leases, agreements or rights therein described and not to be bound by the obligations of said contracts, leases or agreements; provided, however, that such election shall not entitle such Purchaser to any reduction in the amount of the bid made at said sale or in the amounts to be paid as in this Decree provided. [fol. 468] Any Purchaser shall also have the right not to accept any part of the property sold to him under this Decree, by written notice of his election to the Receivers given at any time prior to the execution and delivery of the deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer by the Receivers or by National Radiator. No such election by the Purchaser shall diminish or affect the purchase price to be paid by him. The deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer to be given by the Receivers and National Radiator, shall not include any property which the Purchaser shall have so elected not to take or accept.

Article XVII

Matters Reserved

56. All matters not determined by this Decree are reserved by this Court for future determination. This Court further reserves the right and retains exclusive power and jurisdiction by appropriate order or orders hereinafter entered to cause to be delivered to any Purchaser title to and possession of the property by this Decree sold to him, and to hear and determine any and all the controversies as to the character, extent and validity of the title and possession to such property acquired under this Decree or upon the execution thereof. Any party to this cause, or any claimant or other person whose rights are affected or determined by any of the provisions of this Decree, may at any time apply to this Court for such orders and directions touching the matters hereby reserved or for such further or other [fol. 469] relief as this Court may deem just and proper.

For the purposes of this cause, the present Equity Term of this Court is extended until after the complete execution of the provisions of this Decree and of any decree supplementary to or modifying the same, and until after the final determination and disposition of all matters herein reserved for future determination or action by this Court, and said Equity Term is extended in any event for a period of 3 years from the date of this Decree with leave to any party to this cause, at any time prior to the expiration of said period of 3 years to apply to this Court for a further extension of said Term.

Article XVIII

Certified copies of orders and decrees made by said courts in respect of the concurrence in and the adoption of this Decree shall from time to time be filed with the Clerk of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania. This Court reserves the right from time to time to refer to the [fol. 470] courts having jurisdiction in the ancillary causes such of the matters and things reserved under this Decree as may properly be so referred, and the right from time to time to make such orders or decrees as may be necessary or expedient for the purpose of executing and carrying into effect this Decree in conformity with the terms and intent of any concurring orders and decrees of said courts.

The property to be sold, both real and personal, may be inspected by intending bidders, subject to such reasonable regulations as the Receivers may prescribe.

As more fully provided by the Decree, to which reference is hereby made:

[fol. 477] 1. Such sale will be made without valuation, appraisement, exemption or extensions, and free from any right of redemption.

2. The property will be sold subject to the lien of taxes and assessments lawfully levied or assessed against the same and unpaid, and subject to the lien or charge of any lawful mortgage, pledge or other encumbrance thereon.

3. The Receivers may adjourn the sale from time to time as provided in the Decree, and they may, without further notice, advertisement or publication, proceed with the sale at the time to which the same may have been adjourned.

4. The sale will be made in the manner provided in Article VII of the Decree and subject to the terms and provisions thereof. The Receivers will first offer each of the above described Parcels for sale separately and note the highest bid for each such Parcel, and the Receivers will then offer for sale Parcels A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I and J together as an entirety, as Parcel K, and note the highest bid therefor. If the highest bid noted for Parcel K equals or exceeds the aggregate of the highest bids for Parcels A to J, inclusive, when offered separately, the bids noted for Parcels A to J, inclusive, will be cancelled and said bid noted for Parcel K will be accepted. Otherwise the bid noted for Parcel K shall be cancelled and the highest bids noted for Parcels A to J, inclusive, will stand and be accepted by the Receivers and the several Parcels will be struck off and sold to the highest bidders for said respective Parcels.

[fol. 478] 5. The Receivers will refuse to receive any bid from anyone who shall not, at least 24 hours before the offer for sale by the Receivers of the property to be sold, file with the Receivers a statement as to whether or not he proposes to bid for the purposes of any plan or agreement of reorganization, and if so, the further statement that there has been filed with the Clerk of the Court a petition duly verified for the approval by the Court of said plan or agreement of reorganization in the event that the bidder becomes the successful bidder at the sale, together with a complete copy of such plan or agreement and a complete statement of the notice theretofore given of such plan or agreement, by publication or otherwise, to persons and corporations interested in National Radiator Corporation and its property; provided, however, that if any bid is made pursuant to the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization dated February 11, 1931, a copy whereof is annexed to the Bill of Complaint in the Primary Cause, such statement need not include a copy of said Plan and Agreement.

A hearing will be held on the Receivers' report to the Court of the result of the sale, at which the Court will hear complaints as to the equity of the provisions of any such plan or agreement of reorganization, affecting the respective priorities of all persons and corporations interested in National Radiator Corporation and its property, from all holders of the 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of National Radiator Corporation (hereinafter called the "Debentures") or other creditors, secured or unsecured, of National Radiator Corporation who before the date of [fol. 479] such hearing shall shall file with leave of Court their petitions in the Primary Cause for such purposes, specifying in reasonable detail the particulars in which such plan or agreement is alleged by them to be inequitable. No sale of any property under the Decree to any purchaser who is to purchase said property for the purposes of any such plan or agreement of reorganization will be confirmed, if the Court shall, after such hearing, determine that the provisions of any such plan or agreement of reorganization are inequitable or that said plan or agreement of reorganization does not provide an equitable and timely offer of participation in such reorganization to all persons entitled thereto. The Receivers will publish a notice of the filing by any successful bidder or bidders of such statement with a copy of any such plan or agreement and that such copy may be examined by anyone wishing to do so at the office of the Clerk of the Court and of the time and place where said hearing upon the equity of the provisions of such plan or agreement will be held. All persons who shall fail to make any complaint at said hearing, as in the Decree provided, shall be barred from doing so thereafter.

6. The Receivers will refuse to receive a bid from any person offering to bid who shall not, at least 24 hours prior to any such offering by the Receivers for sale under the Decree, deposit with the Receivers and deliver to them as a pledge that he will make good his bid and as part payment of the purchase price in case of the acceptance of his bid (a) a sum in cash or check or checks of or certified [fol. 480] by some bank or trust company in New York, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., Chicago, Ill., or Boston, Mass., acceptable to the Receivers, and made or endorsed payable to their order, equal to at least 10% of the minimum amount specified in Paragraph 7 of this notice in respect of the Parcel for which such person is offering to bid, or (b) Debentures in bearer form and/or coupons thereon due February 1, 1931 and/or August 1, 1931 and/or assignments of claims against National Radiator Corporation then finally established and allowed, aggregating in amount at least 40% of such minimum amount specified in said Paragraph 7 of this notice, or (c) partly cash and/or certified check or checks and/or partly Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims, in the same relative proportions. Any person offering to bid for two or more Parcels shall make a separate deposit with respect to each such Parcel for which he offers to bid, or make one or more deposits equal to the aggregate of such separate deposits. A deposit made to qualify any person to bid for Parcel K will also qualify such person to bid separately for one or more of Parcels A to J, inclusive, In lieu of such deposit, the Receivers may accept the certificate or certificates of any bank or trust company acceptable to them, that it holds, subject to their order, cash, checks, Debentures, coupons and/or assignments of claims, all of the character above specified. Any deposit received from an unsuecesful bidder will be returned to him at the conclusion of the bidding, but without interest thereon. The deposit received from a successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price of the property [fol. 481] purchased by such bidder in case the sale to him shall be confirmed, and in case the Court shall deny confirmation of the sale to a successful bidder, his deposit will be returned to him on his demand therefor, but without interest thereon.

For the terms and conditions upon which the deposit received from any successful bidder to whom a sale has been confirmed may be forfeited, reference is hereby made to Section 37 of the Decree.

7. The Receivers will not receive any bid for any Parcel of the property to be sold less than the respective minimum amounts hereinafter set forth:

Parcel A	$2,392,000
Parcel B	28,000
Parcel C	17,500
Parcel D	37,500
Parcel E	17,500
Parcel F	1,000
Parcel G	2,250
Parcel H	1,000
Parcel I	1,000
Parcel J	2,250
Parcel K	2,500,000

8. The purchaser of Parcel A of the property (whether sold separately or as a part of Parcel K), in addition to the amount of his accepted bid for said property and as part consideration for said property and as part of the purchase price thereof, shall be required to assume the obligations of the Receivers under existing executory contracts, leases and agreements, entered into, assumed or adopted by the Receivers.

[fol. 482] 9. The purchase price of any property sold may be paid in cash, or the purchaser may satisfy any residue of his bid in whole or in part by turning over to the Receivers at their distributive value to be credited and returned as provided in Article X of the Decree, Debentures in bearer form and/or coupons thereon due February 1, 1931 and/or August 1, 1931 and/or assignments of claims against National Radiator Corporation then finally established and allowed. In lieu of Debentures and/or coupons and/or assigned claims, the Receivers may accept the certificate or certificates of any bank or trust company in New York, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., Chicago, Ill., or Boston, Mass., acceptable to them, that it holds, subject to their order, such Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims against National Radiator Corporation finally established and allowed. In lieu of Debentures and/or coupons and/or assigned claims, the Receivers may accept the certificate or certificates of any bank or trust company in New York, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., Chicago, Ill., or Boston, Mass., acceptable to them, that it holds, subject to their order, such Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims against National Radiator Corporation finally established and allowed.

By the Decree, the Court reserves the right to re-take and re-sell any Parcel of the property sold to enforce the payment of the purchase price and the performance of the obligations required by the Decree to be assumed by the purchaser of Parcel A.

10. The purchaser of any property sold shall have the right to appear in the Primary Cause and he or any of the parties to the Primary Cause shall have the right to contest any claim, demand or allowance pending at the time of the sale and then undetermined and any claim, demand or allowance which would be payable by such purchaser, and he or any such party may appeal from any decision relating to any such claim, demand or allowance.

[fol. 483] 11. Upon confirmation of the sale and upon payment of the purchase price or such portion thereof as the Court shall direct, the purchaser shall be entitled to receive delivery of a deed or deeds or other proper instrument or instruments of conveyance, assignment and transfer of the property sold; and the Receivers will assign, transfer and deliver to the purchaser of Parcel A all cash (less the sum of $300,000, which shall be retained by the Receivers and treated as part payment of the purchase price of said Parcel A), and all current assets, materials and supplies then in the possession of the Receivers.

Prior to the delivery of possession as provided in Article XIV of the Decree, the Receivers may continue to operate the properties in receivership and to carry on the business of National Radiator Corporation and to use for such purpose the cash, current assets, materials or supplies now or hereinafter in the possession of the Receivers.

12. The Receivers will, not more than 20 nor less than 10 days prior to the date fixed for the sale, file in the Primary Cause an approximate and advisory statement or statements with reference to the matters specified in Article XV of the Decree. Reference is hereby made to said Article XV of the Decree and to the statement or statements to be filed as thereby provided.

13. As provided in Article XVI of the Decree, (a) any purchaser may, within the time thereby limited, elect not to assume or adopt any contract, lease or agreement not fully performed, heretofore made or assumed by National [fol. 484] Radiator Corporation (but not any contract, lease or agreement entered into, made, assumed or adopted by the Receivers which does not expressly reserve to the purchaser the right to elect not to assume or adopt such contract, lease or agreement); and (b) any purchaser may also elect not to accept any part of the property sold to him, but such election shall not entitle such purchaser to any reduction in the amount of the bid made at the sale or in the amounts to be paid as provided in the Decree.

14. The Receivers will report the result of the sale to the Court at Room 301, in the Post Office Building in Pittsburgh, Pa., at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon on —— —, 1932, or, in the event that the sale shall be adjourned, then on the tenth day following such adjourned sale, for such further orders, judgments or decrees as the Court may deem proper and advisable, and the Court has reserved the right at said time either to adjourn the hearing upon such report of the Receivers or at said time or any other time to which said hearing may be adjourned to order the confirmation or disapproval of the sale, to order such further or other sale, if any, as may be deemed advisable, to hear complaints upon the matters referred to in Paragraph 5 of this notice, and to make such orders in the premises as it may deem proper. As provided by the decree, notice is hereby given that this cause is set for further hearing before the Court at the time and place of the making of the above directed report to the Court, and such hearing may be had without any further notice to any party.

[fol. 485] 15. All matters not determined by the Decree are reserved by the Court for future determination.

Dated —— —, 1932.

IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

RECEIVERS' SUPPLEMENTAL SCHEDULE PREPARED PURSUANT TO SECTION 53 OF THE FINAL DECREE OF SALE—Filed June 11, 1932

On January 2, 1932, Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner, Receivers of National Radiator Corporation, filed their first report and inventory of assets and property of National Radiator Corporation. The inventory was taken at book value and contained in detail the assets and property of National Radiator Corporation, as of October 9, 1931.

Subsequent to October 9, 1931, there have been acquired or disposed of by National Radiator Corporation and/or its Receivers, and only (except as hereinafter stated under Item #2) in the ordinary course of business, only inventory, supplies, cash (including cash invested in United [fol. 486] States securities under authority of court order), and accounts and notes receivable created by sales or realized by collection, and there have been no changes in the other assets and property as shown by said inventory except as follows:

Item #1. Edgewood Apartment Hotel

On Sheet 189 of the Receivers' Inventory, filed January 2, 1932, under the heading of Real Estate Investments, appeared the following:

"Edgewater Apartment Hotel, Chicago, Illinois $51,172.31"

(Property taken over to offset account of Schampel & Dougherty, Inc., Chicago, Illinois.)

This should have been called Edgewood Apartment Hotel. The acquisition of this property by National Radiator Corporation was in payment of an unsecured debt of Schampel & Dougherty, Inc., Chicago, Illinois, amounting to $51,172.31, the debtor having no other means of payment and subsequently becoming bankrupt. The deed to National Radiator Corporation was dated September 16, 1930. The property is located in Cochran's Addition to Edgewater, Chicago, Illinois. At the time of acquiring title, there was an unpaid bond issue of $170,000.00, secured by mortgage, and other liens against this property. In April, 1931, the trustee of this mortgage instituted foreclosure proceedings. National Radiator Corporation has only an equity of redemption in this property for a period of one year from the date of foreclosure sale. Approximately $208,000.00 of mortgage debt, interest, taxes and other liens come ahead of National Radiator Corporation's equity of redemption. [fol. 487] The land, building, furniture and furnishings was appraised in May, 1932, by J. L. Cochran and L. T. Kelly, Chicago, Illinois, real estate experts at depreciated replacement values of $135,893.07 and $133,000.00, respectively.

Item #2. National Steel Boiler Company

On sheet 156 of the Receivers' Inventory, filed January 2, 1932, under the heading of Regular Accounts Receivable, appeared the following:

"National Steel Boiler Works, 14th & Buttonwood Street, Lebanon, Pennsylvania ..... $83,251.15"

On October 9, 1931, National Radiator Corporation was the owner of the majority of the outstanding capital stock of National Steel Boiler Company. The plant of this Company was located at Lebanon, Pennsylvania. Prior to October 9, 1931, National Radiator Corporation had been financing the operations of said National Steel Boiler Company. As of October 9, 1931, the indebtedness of National Steel Boiler Company to National Radiator Corporation was $83,251.15. In collecting this indebtedness, the Receivers of National Radiator Corporation purchased from National Steel Boiler Company, raw materials, goods in process of manufacture and finished products at $44,751.34 and credited the indebtedness of National Steel Boiler Company in the same amount. The Receivers also took from National Steel Boiler Company a mortgage on the real estate, buildings, machinery and equipment of National Steel Boiler Company in the amount of $38,499.81 [fol. 488] and a lease of the buildings, machinery and equipment for a period of two years, at a monthly rental of $1,000.00, to be paid in the event, and only in the event, that the amount of the rental would be earned by the Receivers in their operations of such property. A payment of $2,144.71 has been paid to the Receivers by National Steel Boiler Company on account of and in reduction of said mortgage.

Item #3. Minneapolis, Minnesota, Residential Property

On April 12, 1928, Agnes T. Welter and Michael A. Welter conveyed to National Radiator Corporation all that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the County of Hennepin, State of Minnesota, described as follows, to wit:

Lot Three (3), Block Four (4), Marsh & Bartlett's First Addition to Minneapolis, according to the map and plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Hennepin County, Minnesota.

The deed for this property was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Hennepin County, Minnesota, in Book 1092 of Deeds at page 566. This same property is referred to on page 57 of the Final Decree of Sale, of the above court, dated May 31, 1932. This property was deeded to National Radiator Corporation to apply against an indebtedness of Michael A. Welter. The amount of this indebtedness had been charged off on the books of National Radiator Corporation prior to taking title to this property and [fol. 489] no record appeared on National Radiator Corporation's books covering this property at the time of the appointment of the Receivers. Consequently, the ownership of this property by National Radiator Corporation did not appear upon the books of said Corporation and was unknown to your Receivers at the time of filing their inventory on January 2, 1932. Against this property there are unpaid taxes, not including penalties and/or interest, as follows: Year 1928, $185.26; Year 1929, $176.26; Year 1930, $149.58; and Year 1931, $132.38, or a total of $643.48. There is erected on this lot a two-story frame house and garage. In 1928, National Radiator Corporation offered the property for sale for $4,000.00, but was never able to dispose of the property.

Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner, as Receivers of National Radiator Corporation.

Duly sworn to by Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner. Jurat omitted in printing.

[fol. 490] Sworn to and subscribed before me this 9th day of June, 1932. My commission expires March 7, 1933. H. A. Hershey, Notary Public. (Seal.)

[fol. 491] IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

ASSIGNMENTS OF ERROR—Filed July 23, 1932

Now, come First National Bank of Cincinnati, by Baker & Watts, its counsel, and International Heater Company, by Alter, Wright & Barron, its counsel, and jointly and severally respectfully represent unto this Court that in the records and proceedings had in the above entitled cause and in the rendition of the decree made on May 31, 1932, ordering the sale of the assets and properties of defendant National Radiator Corporation, there is manifest error for which the decree of the District Court of the United States for The Western District of Pennsylvania should be reversed, and as cause for said error, show:

I

The District Court erred in making and entering the order and final decree dated May 31, 1932, to which exceptions have been duly noted in behalf of the appellants herein, said decree and the said exceptions being made part hereof by reference thereto as the same appear in the record of this case.

II

The District Court erred in holding that at the time of the filing of the bill National Radiator Corporation had no means at hand with which to meet, pay or satisfy the interest charges on the debentures. (Decree, Article IV, paragraph 26.)

[fol. 492]

III

The District Court erred in failing to hold that the insufficiency of the cash and other readily realizable assets of National Radiator to pay the indebtedness of National Radiator Corporation now payable is due to the voluntary default of National Radiator Corporation in the payment of the interest charges on the debentures.

IV

The District Court erred in holding that the unity of the property of National Radiator Corporation and its integrity as a whole as now held and operated constitute an important element of value. (Decree, Article IV, paragraph 26.)

V

The District Court erred in holding that the properties and assets of National Radiator Corporation if sold under separate levies, would in all probability net an amount wholly inadequate to pay and satisfy its obligations. (Decree, Article IV, paragraph 26.)

VI

The District Court erred in holding that continuation of the receivership cannot produce results sufficiently favorable to justify its continuance, and in failing to hold that the operation of the active plants of the Corporation as conducted by the receivers resulted in an operating profit before cost of maintaining idle plants. (Decree, Article IV, paragraph 26.)

[fol. 493]

VII

The District Court erred in holding that the interests of the creditors of National Radiator Corporation would best be served by the speedy sale of all its properties, assets and business as an entirety. (Decree, Article IV, paragraph 26.)

VIII

The District Court erred in holding that this cause was instituted or prosecuted by the Bankers Trust Company as trustee. (Decree, Article IV, paragraph 27.)

IX

The District Court erred in holding that this cause was instituted, and that the answer of National Radiator Corporation admitting the truth of the allegations of the bill was submitted, for the purpose of conserving the property of National Radiator Corporation. (Decree, Article IV, paragraph 27.)

X

The District Court erred in failing to hold that the complainants filed the bill of complaint herein for the purpose of bringing about the receivership as a step in effectuating the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization dated February 11, 1931.

XI

The District Court erred in holding that there was no evidence of collusion on the part of the complainants, of the Bankers Trust Company and of National Radiator Corporation in connection with any of the proceedings herein. [fol. 494] (Decree, Article IV, paragraph 27.)

XII

The District Court erred in holding that the complainants and the Bankers Trust Company are legally entitled to a sale pursuant to this decree of all of the property, assets and business of National Radiator Corporation as prayed for in the bill and in the intervening petition of the Bankers Trust Company. (Decree, Article IV, paragraph 28.)

XIII

The District Court erred in holding that all property and interest in property of every kind, character and description of the National Radiator Corporation and/or the receivers, including cash on hand or in bank, securities, bills and accounts receivable, and choses in action shall be sold in the manner prescribed in said decree. (Decree, Article VI, paragraph 30.)

XIV

The District Court erred in providing for the sale in the manner provided in the decree, in that the sale was prescribed in such a manner as to effectuate only the design of the complainants to obtain the property of the corporation at their own terms, and in clear violation of the rights of the creditors including these appellants.

XV

The District Court erred in holding that cash on hand or in bank, securities, bills or accounts receivable and choses in action shall be sold in the manner prescribed in said decree, [fol. 495] and in failing to hold that such assets should be retained and collected and turned into cash by the Receivers in ordinary routine. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause I.)

XVI

The District Court erred in holding that the inventory shall be sold in the manner prescribed in said decree, and in failing to hold that such inventory should be turned into cash by the Receivers in ordinary routine. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause I.)

XVII

The District Court erred in holding that the majority stock of the National Steel Boiler Company, the $86,000 claim of this corporation against said company and the mortgage securing said claim, together with the equitable rights of this corporation in respect to the Steel Boiler Company, should be sold in the manner prescribed in the decree, and in failing to make suitable provision directing a thorough investigation, under the supervision of counsel independent of the influence of the complainants and defendant, of the rights of the corporation in respect to these assets and the taking of proper proceedings for the protection of the rights of the corporation and of its creditors in respect thereof, and in failing to make provision for the separate sale in a proper manner of the interests of the corporation in such Steel Boiler Company.

XVIII

The District Court erred in decreeing that all of the assets of every description including cash on hand and in [fol. 496] bank, securities, bills and accounts receivable, choses in action, inventory, the interest of the corporation in the National Steel Boiler Company consisting of shares of stock, the $86,000 claim and the equitable rights which entitle the corporation to the complete ownership of said Steel Boiler Company, should be sold as one lot (excepting only certain real estate referred to in assignments of error Nos. XIX-XXVII) and at a sale to be conducted at New Castle, Pennsylvania, and at an upset price of $2,392,000. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause I and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

XIX

The District Court erred in decreeing that the real estate, plant, foundries, shops and dwelling house properties with the machinery, equipment, patterns, flasks and appurtenances located at Trenton, New Jersey, should be sold as one lot and at a sale to be conducted at New Castle, Pennsylvania, at an upset price of $28,000. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause II and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

XX

The District Court erred in decreeing that the real estate, plant, foundries and shops with the machinery, equipment, patterns, flasks and appurtenances located at Framingham, Massachusetts, should be sold as one lot and at a sale to be conducted at New Castle, Pennsylvania, at an upset price of $17,500. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause III and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

[fol. 497]

XXI

The District Court erred in decreeing that (a) the real estate, plants, foundries and shops located at North Tonawanda, New York, with the machinery, equipment, patterns, flasks and appurtenances; and (b) the real estate, plants, foundries and shops located at Dunkirk, New York, with the machinery, equipment, patterns, flasks and appurtenances, should all be sold as one lot and at a sale to be conducted at New Castle, Pennsylvania, at an upset price of $37,500. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause IX, and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

XXII

The District Court erred in decreeing that (a) the real estate, plants, foundries and shops with the machinery, equipment, patterns, flasks and appurtenances located at Chicago, Illinois; and (b) the real estate known as "Edgewater Apartment Hotel" located at Chicago, Illinois; and (c) the warehouse located at Chicago, Illinois, should be sold as one lot and at a sale to be conducted at New Castle,

Pennsylvania, at an upset price of $17,500. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause V, and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

XXIII

The District Court erred in decreeing that the real estate and warehouse located at Baltimore, Maryland, together with the machinery, equipment and appurtenances, should be sold at a sale to be conducted at New Castle, Pennsylvania, at an upset price of $1,000. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause VI, and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

[fol. 498]

XXIV

The District Court erred in decreeing that the real estate and warehouse located at Cincinnati, Ohio, together with the machinery, equipment and appurtenances should be sold at a sale to be conducted at New Castle, Pennsylvania, at an upset price of $2,150. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause VII, and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

XXV

The District Court erred in decreeing that the real estate and warehouse located at Richmond, Virginia, together with the machinery, equipment and appurtenances, should be sold at a sale to be conducted at New Castle, Pennsylvania, at an upset price of $1,000. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause VIII, and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

XXVI

The District Court erred in decreeing that the real estate and warehouses located at Garden City, New York, together with the machinery, equipment and appurtenances, should be sold at a sale to be conducted at New Castle, Pennsylvania, at an upset price of $1,000. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause IX, and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

XXVII

The District Court erred in decreeing that the real estate and warehouse located at Washington, D. C., together with the machinery, equipment and appurtenances, should be sold at a sale to be conducted at New Castle, Pennsylvania, [fol. 499] at an upset price of $1,250. (Decree, Schedule A, Clause X, and Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

XXVIII

The District Court erred in holding that all of the properties of the corporation of every description, that is to say, the properties mentioned in Assignments of Error Nos. XVIII-XXVII should be sold as one lot at New Castle, Pennsylvania, at an upset price of $2,500,000. (Decree, Article VIII, paragraph 38.)

XXIX

The District Court erred in failing to provide that every separate piece of real estate, that is every separate plant, dwelling house, warehouse, apartment house and office building, should be sold separately at the several places where such separate properties are situated, and in failing to make provision instructing the Receivers to advertise the sale of said properties adequately in newspapers and by other suitable means and to list the property with real estate brokers and to take all suitable and requisite steps to give reasonable assurance of competitive bidding, and in failing to decree postponement of such sales to a suitable time rather than to put it in the hands of the Reorganization Committee to bring about the sale to themselves upon mere perfunctory legal notice and at an unsuitable place and in the midst of the summer months and during a period of great depression.

XXX

The District Court erred in decreeing that the real estate situated at Trenton, New Jersey; Framingham, Massa-
[fol. 500] chusetts; North Tonawanda, New York; Dunkirk, New York; Chicago, Illinois; Baltimore, Maryland; Cincinnati, Ohio; Richmond, Virginia; Garden City, New York; Washington, D. C., and Johnstown, Pennsylvania, should all be sold at New Castle, Pennsylvana, in violation of the provisions of Section 847, Title 28, of the Judicial Code. (Decree, Article VI, paragraph 33.)

XXXI

The District Court erred in failing to make a suitable provision for appraisement of the properties provided to be sold under the decree or in taking other suitable means for arriving at a just and fair conclusion as to the amount which the assets of the corporation might be fairly expected to realize if the cash, securities, accounts and notes receivable were realized upon by the Receivers in ordinary course without public sale thereof, and the separate parcels of real estate were separately offered for public sale in a proper manner at a proper place with proper and suitable safeguards and provisions for advertising, etc., and at a proper time, and if the rights of the corporation and of its creditors had been suitably protected in respect of the Steel Boiler Company and that asset recovered and property realized upon, and in failing to fix an upset price which would surely equal the amount which could fairly be realized by a careful liquidation of the assets in normal and proper course.

[fol. 501]

XXXII

The District Court erred in so shaping the decree as to effectuate the purpose of the complainants in obtaining a mere perfunctory judicial sale for the benefit of the complainants and in fixing the upset price at which the Reorganization Committee should obtain the property at a grossly inadequate figure and at much less than could fairly be obtained for such property by the realization in regular course without judicial sale of the assets other than real estate and the conduct of separate judicial sales of the real estate in proper manner.

XXXIII

The District Court erred in so shaping the decree as to put the Reorganization Committee in a position to grant immunity to the officers of the corporation for their fraudulent acts in respect to the Steel Boiler Company and without providing any protection for the rights of the creditors, including these appellants, in respect thereto.

XXXIV

The District Court erred in so shaping the decree as to effectuate the design of the Reorganization Committee to acquire the assets of the corporation for the purposes of the Reorganization Plan, in that—notwithstanding that the decree is so designed as to effectuate the passing of the property to the Reorganization Committee at a price very much less than could fairly be realized upon the assets if liquidated in normal course—the Plan provides for the sharing by the stockholders of the corporation in fraud and [fol. 502] in violation of the rights of the creditors, including these appellants, viz., the preferred stockholders to share freely and without any additional contribution whatsoever and the common stockholders to share upon a contribution nominal in amount.

XXXV

The District Court erred in permitting the witness Robert S. Waters to answer upon direct examination, over the objection of appellant First National Bank of Cincinnati, the following questions, which with the objections, rulings of the court and exception thereto are as follows:

"Q. Mr. Waters, I am going to put a question to you presently on upset price, and so that you will have in mind what I mean by 'upset price' when I put that question to you, I am reading from the opinion of the Court in Guaranty Trust Company against Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, 15 Fed. (2d) 434, at page 442. Here is what the Court says on upset price: 'What the Court is doing in naming an upest price is merely to draw a line below which it will refuse to consider bids. It is discretionary with the Court, but quite common, to fix an upset price.' Taking the phrase 'upset price' in that sense, it fixes a line below which the Court will refuse to consider bids. Do you have in mind a figure that you would consider proper for the upset price of the property of this corporation? Just state whether or not you have the figure in mind?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. What is it?

[fol. 503] Mr. Royall: Object. Now, Your Honor, this is objectionable for so many reasons that I want to put them on record. In the first place, what Judge Wilkerson said in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul receivership has no relationship, no possible relationship to the situation we have here.

* * * * * * *

Mr. Teall: It is my purpose to follow this with the further question, asking the witness to explain how he arrives at the figure he is expressing, what is the basis of his opinion * * * it is simply to give the Court such light as we can, that is all.

Mr. Royall: I press my objection, Your Honor.

The Court: Go ahead for what it is worth.

Mr. Royall: My objection is noted, Your Honor, and I press it very seriously.

The Court: I note you an exception.

Mr. Royall: I think this is very highly objectionable, Your Honor.

The Court: I do not see any other way of getting at it.

A. I arrive at the total of $2,195,695, arrived at in this manner: * * *"

[fol. 504] XXXVI

The Court also erred in admitting, over the objection of the appellant First National Bank of Cincinnati further testimony by the witness, Robert S. Waters, elaborating the details and explanations of the witness in answer to the main question set forth in Assignment XXXV, and in admitting similar testimony from the witnesses R. B. Flershem, John H. Waters and William G. Heiner.

Wherefore, and in order that the foregoing Assignments of Error may be and appear of record in this cause, said intervening defendants jointly and severally present the same to this Court and jointly and severally pray that disposition may be made thereof in accordance with law and the statutes of the United States in such case made and provided; and said intervening defendants jointly and severally further pray that the decree for the sale of the properties and assets of the defendant corporation, entered May 31, 1932, be reversed and that a decree be entered in accordance with and for the protection of the rights of these said intervening defendants and as may be for the best interest and protection of all creditors of said defendant corporation.

IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

PETITION FOR APPROVAL OF PLAN AND AGREEMENT, DATED FEBRUARY 11, 1931, FOR THE REORGANIZATION OF NATIONAL RADIATOR CORPORATION—Filed July 29, 1932

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court:

Your petitioners, Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters and Frank B. Cahn, as the Reorganization Committee constituted under the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization [fol. 506] of National Radiator Corporation (hereinafter called the "Plan and Agreement"), respectfully allege and show to this Court as follows:

1. Your petitioners are constituted a Reorganization Committee by the Plan and Agreement and as such represent holders of all classes of securities issued by the defendant National Radiator Corporation (hereinafter called "National Radiator") and are the complainants in this cause.

2. Your petitioners, as the Reorganization Committee under the Plan and Agreement, in furtherance and for the purposes of the Plan and Agreement propose to bid or to cause designated purchasers to bid on their behalf at the sale of the property of National Radiator and/or its Receivers, directed to be sold by the Final Decree of Sale made and entered in this cause May 31, 1932 (hereinafter called the "Final Decree") and to that end desire to obtain the approval of this Court of the Plan and Agreement as fair and equitable to the creditors and stockholders of National Radiator and an adjudication that said Plan and Agreement provides an equitable and timely offer of participation in the Reorganization of National Radiator thereby proposed to all persons and corporations interested in National Radiator and its property.

3. A copy of the Plan and Agreement, marked Schedule B, is annexed to and made a part of the Bill of Complaint in this cause and your petitioners pray leave to refer to the same with the same force and effect as if herein set forth at length.

[fol. 507] 4. The Plan and Agreement has been declared operative and no substitute plan has been adopted in its stead and it has not been modified or amended, except that by letter dated September 16, 1931, directed to the security holders of National Radiator, the Reorganization Committee acting under the Plan and Agreement has augmented said Plan by the supplementary provisions to Article III thereof set forth in said letter. A copy of said letter is annexed hereto and made a part hereof as Exhibit 1.

5. There have been deposited under the Plan and Agreement approximately 96% in principal amount of the outstanding 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of National Radiator and more than 78% of the $7 Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock without par value and more than 38% of the Common Stock without par value of National Radiator. These constitute all classes of the outstanding securities of National Radiator, and the amounts thereof on deposit under the Plan and Agreement, to the percentage aforesaid, are shown by the affidavit of E. E. Beach, Assistant Secretary of Bankers Trust Company, the Depositary appointed by said Plan and Agreement, which affidavit is annexed hereto and made a part hereof as Exhibit 2. Said affidavit also states that, except as hereinbefore stated, there has not been deposited with said Depositary under the Plan and Agreement any assignments of claims of any general creditor of National Radiator, as is permitted by Article IX of said Plan.

[fol. 508] 6. Extensive, timely and ample notice of the promulgation of the Plan and Agreement by your petitioners as the Reorganization Committee and notice that said Plan and Agreement has been declared operative September 15, 1931, and notice thereafter that the same has been adopted and approved by the only other representatives of any substantial amount of securities of National Radiator was given at the times and in the manner shown in the affidavit of Harold F. Linder, acting Secretary of the Reorganization Committee constituted under the Plan and Agreement, which affidavit is annexed hereto and made a part hereof as Exhibit 3.

7. Deposits of securities under the Plan and Agreement are being received without the imposition of penalty and will continue to be received until instructions to the contrary are given to Bankers Trust Company, the Depositary under said Plan and Agreement.

8. So far as your petitioners are informed, whatever opposition there may be to the Plan and Agreement has been expressed to this Court by the First National Bank of Cincinnati, a party intervener in this cause, and by one Lily Clapier, the complainant in the cause pending in this Court and entitled "Lily Clapier, Complainant, against Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters and Frank B. Cahn, as the Reorganization Committee constituted under the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation and National Radiator Corporation, Defendants, in Equity No. 2597".

[fol. 509] 9. By Section 34 of Article VI of the Final Decree the tenth day following the date of the sale directed by said Final Decree, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, or if said day be a Sunday or legal holiday, then the next day not a Sunday or legal holiday, is fixed as the time when, and Room 301 in the Post Office Building in the City of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, is fixed as the place where, this Court will receive the report of the result of such sale and consider the entry of such further orders, judgments or decrees as may by this Court be deemed proper and advisable; and this Court by Section 36 of Article VIII of said Final Decree has also reserved the right at said hearing to hear complaints as to the equity of the provisions of the Plan and Agreement hereinabove referred to, affecting the respective priorities of all persons and corporations interested in National Radiator and its property, from all Debenture holders or other creditors, secured or unsecured, of National Radiator, who before the date of such hearing shall file, with leave of this Court, their petitions herein for such purpose, specifying in reasonable detail the particulars in which said Plan and Agreement is alleged by them to be inequitable.

Wherefore, your petitioners pray that at the hearing to be held upon the Receivers' Report of Sale referred to in Section 34 of Article VI of the above mentioned Final Decree this Court approve the Plan and Agreement as fair and equitable and adjudicate that said Plan and Agreement provides an equitable and timely offer of participation in [fol. 510] the Reorganization thereby proposed to all persons and corporations interested in National Radiator and its property.

Dated July 26, 1932.

Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation under Plan and Agreement Dated February 11, 1931

Rudolph B. Flershem, Chairman; Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters, Reorganization Committee. Armand Erpf, Secretary, 50 Broad Street, New York. Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb, 15 Broad Street, New York, Counsel.

New York, September 16, 1931.

To security holders of National Radiator Corporation:

The Reorganization Committee acting under the abovementioned Plan and Agreement has augmented said Plan [fol. 512] by the following supplementary provisions to Article III thereof.

In respect of the description of the 15-Year 5% Debentures to be authorized by the New Company provided for in said Plan:

(a) In the Indenture under which said Debentures will be issued the New Company will also covenant that so long as any of the New Debentures are outstanding it will not mortgage or pledge any of its property or assets to secure any funded debt as defined in the Indenture without simultaneously making provisions for securing such New Debentures by a prior lien upon such property or assets. The Indenture aforesaid shall contain clauses in this regard substantially similar to those contained in Paragraph B of Section 11 of Article IV of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, under which are now outstanding National Radiator Corporation's 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures.

(b) The Indenture under which the New Debentures are to be issued shall provide that for the purpose of defining net earnings of the New Company, out of which current and unpaid accumulated interest on said New Debentures will be payable, there shall not be deductible in excess of $300,000 for depreciation in the calendar year 1934 or in any calendar year thereafter.

(c) The Indenture aforesaid shall contain clauses substantially similar to those recited in Article V of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, under which are now out-

[fol. 513] standing National Radiator Corporation's 6½%
Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, to the effect that

(1) it shall constitute an event of default should the New Company fail in the observance of any of the covenants or agreements on its part to be performed and the same shall not be remedied within 60 days after written notice of such default shall have been served upon said New Company by the Trustee acting under said Indenture; and

(2) default having occurred as aforesaid, the Trustee acting under said Indenture may in its discretion, and, upon request in writing by the holders of at least 25% in principal amount of the New Debentures then outstanding, shall, upon indemnification satisfactory to it, declare the principal of and interest on all said New Debentures, if not already due, to be forthwith due and payable; and

(3) nothing in said Indenture or in the New Debentures or in the coupons attached thereto shall affect or impair the obligation of the New Company to pay the principal and interest of the New Debentures to the respective holders or registered owners thereof as in such Debentures and coupons stated nor affect or impair the right of action at law of such holders to enforce such payment by virtue of the contract contained in the New Debentures and not by virtue or availing of any provision of the Indenture.

[fol. 514] (d) The Indenture aforesaid shall also provide that it shall be an event of default should the net current assets of the New Company, computed according to standard accounting practice, be at the end of any calendar year commencing with the calendar year 1934, less than 55% of the principal amount of the New Debentures at the time outstanding. In the event of such default, the remedies of the Trustee acting under said Indenture shall be as set forth in subdivision (2) of paragraph (c) above.

In respect of the $7 Preferred Stock to be authorized by the New Company provided for in said Plan:

(e) Funds legally available for dividends shall be limited to surplus profits or net earnings arising after the organization of the New Company and in no event shall be comprised of paid-in surplus.

(f) In the calculation of surplus profits or net earnings, available for dividends in any calendar year, deduction shall first be made therefrom of the earnings during such year payable as debenture interest.

The Reorganization Plan and Agreement, as augmented by the foregoing supplementary provisions, has been approved and adopted by the Bondholders' Protective Committee constituted under the Deposit Agreement dated as of February 2, 1931. A member of said Protective Committee will become a member of the Reorganization Committee as well as of the Board of Directors of the New Company provided for in the Reorganization Plan. The Deben- [fol. 515] tures on deposit with said Protective Committee are of substantial amount and, together with the Debentures already on deposit under the Reorganization Plan, exceed 90% of the entire issue of National Radiator Corporation Debentures outstanding. Securityholders who have not as yet deposited under the Reorganization Plan should do so at once. No securityholder whose Debentures or stock certificates are not deposited under the Reorganization Plan will be entitled to participate in its benefits.

The deposit of all classes of securities should be made with Bankers Trust Company, Depositary, 16 Wall Street, New York. Transferable Certificates of Deposit will be issued by said Depositary in respect of all deposited securities. Debentures now on deposit with Empire Trust Company, in New York, or with the Chicago Trust Company, in Chicago, or with the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association, in Los Angeles or in San Francisco, will automatically participate in the Reorganization under the Reorganization Plan, without any further action by the depositors with those institutions.

By published announcement of Sepember 15, 1931, the Reorganization Plan and Agreement has been declared operative.

SCHEDULE "C"

Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation under Plan and Agreement Dated February 11, 1931

To the holders of 6½% sinking fund gold debentures, $7 cumulative convertible preferred stock, and common stock of National Radiator Corporation:

National Radiator Corporation has defaulted in the payment of the interest due February 1, 1931, on its outstanding 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, the management [fol. 524] having determined that the conservation of the cash resources of the Corporation is essential to the continuance of its business operations.

The undersigned, at the request of the management (which includes the owners and representatives of owners of substantial amounts of the Debentures and Preferred and Common Stocks of the Corporation), have formulated a Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931 for the Reorganization of the Corporation, under which the undersigned will act as a Reorganization Committee. Other holders of large amounts of the Debentures have approved this Plan.

This Plan is recommended by the undersigned Reorganization Committee to your favorable consideration and you are urged promptly to deposit your securities thereunder with the Depositary named below, to insure that the Plan may be declared operative as soon as possible.

March 15, 1931 has been fixed as the date on or before which deposits must be made and after that date no deposit will be received, except upon such terms and conditions as the undersigned Reorganization Committee may determine.

Depositors must comply with the requirements for participation set forth in the Plan and in the form of transmittal letter available for the use of security holders. The Depositary will issue in exchange for the deposited securities transferable Certificates of Deposit.

Excerpts from Bulletins of February 17 and 18, 1931

"Plan for reorganization of National Radiator Corporation contemplates a drastic reduction of fixed charges thus permitting the employment of liquid assets in the current conduct of the business. * * * The committee which presented the plan is headed by Mr. Rudolph B. Flershem, Chairman, and has as secretary Mr. Armand Erpf of 50 Broad Street, New York City. The depositary for this Committee is the Bankers Trust Company of 16 Wall Street, New York City.

"Although the Plan contemplates a rather drastic reduction of values held by present security holders, we believe that it is a logical one under the circumstances, inasmuch as it removes a burden of fixed charges from the company and places it in a condition to participate in any improvement in business. If the company is permitted thus to operate without excessive burdens of fixed charges, there is the possibility that earnings will so improve as to warrant payment of interest on new debentures. It is our suggestion, therefore, that holders of the various securities assent to the Reorganization Plan. * * *

[fol. 527] "Assent should be indicated by depositing securities at the depositary, the Bankers Trust Company of 16 Wall Street, New York. March 15th has been set as the date on or before which deposits must be made and after that date no deposits will be received except upon such terms and conditions as the Reorganization Committee may determine."

Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation under Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931

March 18, 1931.

To securityholders of National Radiator Corporation:

$6,465,000 of the 6½% Debentures of National Radiator Corporation, constituting over 60% of the total issue out-[fol. 528] standing, have now been deposited under the Plan. There have also been deposited substantial amounts of the Preferred and Common Stocks.

While highly gratified at the response to the Plan, the Reorganization Committee considers that it is imperative that a substantially greater amount of Debentures be deposited before the Plan can be declared operative. Therefore, the time has been extended within which deposits may be made to the close of business April 15, 1931. Debentureholders should recognize that it is to their best interest to effect a prompt reorganization, and their failure to deposit their Debentures may seriously jeopardize the success of the Plan.

In formulating the Plan, the Reorganization Committee has recognized the paramount rights of the Debentureholders by allotting to them under the Plan all of the new company's senior securities, having the same preferential value as the present Debentures, and, in addition, 78% of the new company's common stock. Thus, practically the entire ownership and voting control of the new company become vested in the present Debentureholders.

Serious consideration was given to the advisability of liquidating the Corporation, when the Plan was being formulated. It was and still is the considered opinion of the Reorganization Committee that liquidation under existing conditions would result in a very small payment to Debentureholders and leave nothing whatsoever for stockholders.

[fol. 529] In looking forward to a continuance of operations, it is obviously sound policy to free the new company from drains upon its working capital during the period of its rehabilitation. This makes necessary a capital structure which will not burden the new company with fixed interest bearing securities until its earning power has been reestablished. For this reason the Plan provides income Debentures (carrying interest payable out of earnings but cumulative) and Preferred Stock (cumulative after three years). By virtue of their ownership of the senior securities and of the new common stock, practically all earnings of the enterprise will accrue to the benefit of the present Debentureholders.

The radiator and boiler industry has been passing through the most serious depression in its history. The difficulties arising from this depression were further aggravated, in the case of the Corporation, by the problems entailed in integrating six separate organizations into one effective unit. The Corporation's present management assumed control of its affairs February 1, 1930. This is the same management which had active charge of the old National Radiator Company of Johnstown, Pa., prior to its merger into the present Corporation in 1927, and was responsible for building up that Company over a period of years to the second largest earner in the industry. During 1930 this management has effected a substantial reduction in overhead expenses, has maintained for the Corporation a strong working capital position, and has developed new and improved products of great promise, including, [fol. 530] among others, steel boilers, gas boilers, oil condensing sections, and concealed cast-iron radiators. It is believed that, with an increase in the volume of business, such as may be reasonably expected with a moderate improvement in economic conditions, the new company will be able to earn a profit; and it is hoped that when normal conditions are restored, earnings will be sufficient to support the payment of interest and dividends upon the new securities.

Prompt deposit of securities is urged so that the reorganization may be effected expeditiously. Delay can only prove disadvantageous in continuing the present period of uncertainty, with consequent disadvantage to securityholders. The deposit of all securities should be made with Bankers Trust Company, Depositary, 16 Wall Street, New York City. Transferable Certificates of Deposit will be issued in respect of all deposited securities.

Copies of the Reorganization Plan and Agreement and of the letter of transmittal, which should be used in making deposits, may be obtained from the Depositary or from the Secretary of the Reorganization Committee.

[fol. 537] New York, September 16, 1931.

To security holders of National Radiator Corporation:

The Reorganization Committee acting under the above-mentioned Plan and Agreement has augmented said Plan by the following supplementary provisions to Article III thereof.

In respect of the description of the 15-Year 5% Debentures to be authorized by the New Company provided for in said Plan:

(a) In the Indenture under which said Debentures will be issued the New Company will also covenant that so long as any of the New Debentures are outstanding it will not mortgage or pledge any of its property or assets to secure any funded debt as defined in the Indenture without simultaneously making provisions for securing such New Debentures by a prior lien upon such property or assets. The Indenture aforesaid shall contain clauses in this regard substantially similar to those contained in Paragraph B of Section 11 of Article IV of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, under which are now outstanding National Radiator Corporation's 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures.

(b) The Indenture under which the New Debentures are to be issued shall provide that for the purpose of defining net earnings of the New Company, out of which current and unpaid accumulated interest on said New Debentures will [fol. 538] be payable, there shall not be deductible in excess of $300,000 for depreciation in the calendar year 1934 or in any calendar year thereafter.

(c) The Indenture aforesaid shall contain clauses substantially similar to those recited in Article V of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, under which are now outstanding National Radiator Corporation's 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, to that effect that

(1) it shall constitute an event of default should the New Company fail in the observance of any of the covenants or agreements on its part to be performed and the same shall not be remedied within 60 days after written notice of such default shall have been served upon said New Company by the Trustee acting under said Indenture; and

(2) default having occurred as aforesaid, the Trustee acting under said Indenture may in its discretion, and, upon request in writing by the holders of at least 25% in principal amount of the New Debentures then outstanding, shall, upon indemnification satisfactory to it, declare the principal of and interest on all said New Debentures, if not already due, to be forthwith due and payable; and

(3) nothing in said Indenture or in the New Debentures or in the coupons attached thereto shall affect or impair the obligation of the New Company to pay the principal and [fol. 539] interest of the New Debentures to the respective holders or registered owners thereof as in such Debentures and coupons stated nor affect or impair the right of action at law of such holders to enforce such payment by virtue of the contract contained in the New Debentures and not by virtue or availing of any provision of the Indenture.

(d) The Indenture aforesaid shall also provide that it shall be an event of default should the net current assets of the New Company, computed according to standard accounting practice, be at the end of any calendar year commencing with the calendar year 1934, less than 55% of the principal amount of the New Debentures at the time outstanding. In the event of such default, the remedies of the Trustee acting under said Indenture shall be as set forth in subdivision (2) of paragraph (c) above.

In respect of the $7 Preferred Stock to be authorized by the New Company provided for in said Plan:

(e) Funds legally available for dividends shall be limited to surplus profits or net earnings arising after the organization of the New Company and in no event shall be comprised of paid-in-surplus.

(f) In the calculation of surplus profits or net earnings, available for dividends in any calendar year, deduction shall first be made therefrom of the earnings during such year payable as debenture interest.

[fol. 540] The Reorganization Plan and Agreement, as augmented by the foregoing supplementary provisions, has been approved and adopted by the Bondholders' Protective Committee constituted under the Deposit Agreement dated as of February 2, 1931. A member of said Protective Committee will become a member of the Reorganization Committee, as well as of the Board of Directors of the New Company provided for in the Reorganization Plan. The Debentures on deposit with said Protective Committee are of substantial amount and, together with the Debentures already on deposit under the Reorganization Plan, exceed 90% of the entire issue of National Radiator Corporation Debentures outstanding. Security holders who have not as yet deposited under the Reorganization Plan should do so at once. No security holder whose Debentures or stock certificates are not deposited under the Reorganization Plan will be entitled to participate in its benefits.

The deposit of all classes of securities should be made with Bankers Trust Company, Depositor, 16 Wall Street, New York. Transferable Certificates of Deposit will be issued by said Depositary in respect of all deposited securities. Debentures now on deposit with Empire Trust Company, in New York, or with the Chicago Trust Company, in Chicago, or with the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association, in Los Angeles or in San Francisco, will automatically participate in the Reorganization under the Reorganization Plan, without any further action by the depositors with those institutions.

4. On June 11, 1932, said date being not more than 2 weeks after the entry in this cause of the Final Decree, your Receivers, pursuant to Section 53 of the Final Decree, filed in this cause their schedule setting forth specifically and in reasonable detail all the property and assets of the Corporation, to the extent not fully itemized in the schedule attached to their First Report filed herein January 2, 1932, and of such as since the date of said First Report has been disposed of.

5. On July 30, 1932, said date being more than 24 hours prior to the offering by your Receivers of any property for sale under the Final Decree as hereinafter in paragraphs 8 [fol. 547] set forth, G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, deposited with your Receivers, in order to qualify themselves to bid for all the property to be offered for sale under the Final Decree, both when offered in separate parcels and when all of said property should be offered for sale as an entirety as Parcel K, and as a pledge that they would make good their bid or bids in case of the acceptance of the same, a certificate dated July 27, 1932, of Bankers Trust Company, a trust company organized under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal office and place of business in said State at 16 Wall Street, in the City of New York, a trust company acceptable to your Receivers, which certificate stated that said trust company held subject to the order of your Receivers the below-mentioned Debentures and appurtenant coupons:

$1,000,000 principal amount of 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of National Radiator Corporation, in bearer form and accompanied by the coupons thereto appertaining due February 1, 1931, and all subsequently maturing coupons.

Said deposit of Debentures and coupons was sufficient under the provisions of Section 37 of the Final Decree to qualify the aforesaid G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, to bid for all the property to be offered for sale under the Final Decree, both when offered in separate parcels and when all of said property should be offered for sale as an entirety as Parcel K. The aforesaid certificate of said deposit has been deposited by your Receivers and is now [fol. 548] held by your Receivers on deposit with the Mellon National Bank, a national bank, having its principal office and place of business at 514 Smithfield Street, in the City of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, subject to the order of this Court.

6. On July 30, 1932, and prior to the offer by your Receivers of any property for sale under the Final Decree as hereinafter in paragraph 9 set forth, G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common filed with your Receivers in accordance with Section 36 of the Final Decree a statement that they proposed to bid on behalf of and for the benefit of a corporation or corporations organized or to be organized with the intention that such corporation or corporations shall become the owner or owners of the property to be sold under the Final Decree or some part thereof or some beneficial interest therein, pursuant to a Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation, as augmented by the provisions set forth in a certain letter dated September 16, 1931, issued by the Reorganization Committee constituted under said Plan and Agreement and made a part thereof, and that on July 29, 1932, there had been filed with the Clerk of this Court and entitled in this cause a petition duly verified for the approval by this Court of said Plan and Agreement, as so augmented, together with a complete copy of said Plan and Agreement as so augmented and a complete statement of what notice had been given of the same by publication and otherwise to persons and corporations interested in [fol. 549] National Radiator Corporation and its properties. A copy of said statement, together with a copy of said Plan and Agreement as so augmented, is also filed herewith marked Schedule B and hereto attached is made a part of this Report.

7. On August 1, 1932, and prior to the offer by your Receivers of any property for sale under the Final Decree as hereinafter in paragraph 9 set forth, the following persons, respectively, qualified as bidders for the following parcels, in accordance with Section 36 of the Final Decree, by filing with your Receivers, on July 25, 1932, a statement of each of said persons that he did not propose to bid for any of said property pursuant to or for the purpose of any plan and agreement or reorganization of National Radiator Corporation and by depositing with your Receivers, on and prior to August 1, 1932, pursuant to Section 37 of the Final Decree, the following securities and cash as pledges that they, respectively, would make good their bid or bids:

8. On August 8, 1932, at 11:30 o'clock A. M., Eastern Standard Time, on the steps at the main entrance of the Courthouse of Lawrence County, in the City of New Castle, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, being the time and place fixed by or as provided in the Final Decree and being at the County Courthouse of the County of Lawrence wherein the greater part of the real estate owned by National Radiator Corporation and/or its Receivers and to be sold is situated, your Receivers personally attended, and, with William G. Heiner, one of said Receivers, acting as auctioneer, offered for sale at public auction in the manner prescribed in the Final Decree and as hereinafter in paragraph 9 set forth and subject to all the provisions of the Final Decree the property by the Final Decree directed to be sold.

9. Mr. Heiner first read the notice of sale, including the description of the property to be sold therein contained, and for a fuller description of said property referred those [fol. 551] present to Schedule A annexed to the Final Decree. Sidney J. Watts, Esq., of Baker and Watts, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, solicitors for First National Bank of Cincinnati, Intervenor in this cause, who was present, orally requested your Receivers to postpone the sale to some later date because of an appeal taken by said Intervenor and International Heater Company, also an intervenor in this cause, from the Final Decree. Counsel for your Receivers inquired of Mr. Watts whether he had any further reason to adduce for the postponement requested by him, and Mr. Watts replied in the negative. Counsel for your Receivers then inquired further of Mr. Watts whether said Intervenors had filed a supersedeas bond in their said appeal, to which inquiry, also, Mr. Watts replied in the negative. At this point G. Franklin Ludington, Esq., of New York, said that he, the said G. Franklin Ludington, and Carl E. Resley had qualified as bidders for all the parcels to be sold, had come from a distance for the purpose of bidding thereon, and desired the sale presently to proceed as directed by the Court. On advice of their counsel, your Receivers refused to accede to the request of Mr. Watts and proceeded with the sale as directed to be held in the Final Decree. Thereupon

(a) Mr. Heiner first offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel A described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel A, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants [fol. 552] in common, and was $2,392,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

(b) Mr. Heiner next offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel B described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel B, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $40,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

(c) Mr. Heiner next offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel C described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel C, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $25,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

(d) Mr. Heiner next offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel D described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel D, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $40,000 and your Receivers [fol. 553] noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

(e) Mr. Heiner next offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel E, described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel E, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $32,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

(f) Mr. Heiner next offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel F described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel F, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $3,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

(g) Mr. Heiner next offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel G described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel G, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $5,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

[fol. 554] (h) Mr. Heiner next offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel H described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel H, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $5,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

(i) Mr. Heiner next offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel I described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel I, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $3,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

(j) Mr. Heiner next offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcel J described in the notice of sale. The highest bid for said Parcel J, when offered separately, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $5,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree;

(k) Mr. Heiner finally offered for sale separately and as an entirety, under and subject to the provisions of the Final [fol. 555] Decree, all of the property comprised in Parcels

A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I and J, inclusive, as Parcel K. The highest bid for said Parcel K, when offered separately and as an entirety, was made by G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, and was $2,550,000 and your Receivers noted said bid as provided in the Final Decree.

The bid noted for the property comprising Parcel K when offered separately as an entirety equalled the aggregate of the highest bids for said property when offered for sale in the separate Parcels A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I and J. Your Receivers, therefore, in accordance with the provisions of the Final Decree, cancelled and rejected the bids noted for said Parcels A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I and J, and accepted the bid noted for said Parcel K, and Mr. Heiner thereupon on behalf of your Receivers struck off and, subject to the provisions of the Final Decree and to confirmation by order of this Court and of the ancillary courts having jurisdiction in this matter, sold as an entirety all of the property comprised in Parcel K to G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, for the aforesaid sum of $2,550,000, they being the highest bidders therefor.

10. At the conclusion of the sale G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, executed a Memorandum of Sale, which is filed herewith, a copy thereof being attached hereto marked [fol. 556] Schedule C and made a part of this Report.

Dated New Castle, Pa., August 8, 1932.

Respectfully submitted.

Robert S. Waters, William G. Heiner, as Receivers and Ancillary Receivers.

EXHIBIT "A" TO PETITION

Assignment of bid, dated August 17, 1932, between G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley (hereinafter called [fol. 562] the "Purchasers"), parties of the first part, and National Radiator Corporation (hereinafter called the "Grantee"), a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maryland, party of the second part:

Whereas, at a sale (hereinafter called the "sale") held pursuant to a Final Decree of Sale (hereinafter called the "Final Decree") made and entered in the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania (hereinafter called the "Pennsylvania Court") May 31, 1932, in the cause therein pending entitled "Rudolph B. Flershem and others, as a Reorganization Committee, etc., Complainants, against National Radiator Corporation, Defendant, No. 2558 In Equity" (hereinafter called the "receivership cause") and pursuant to ancillary final decrees of sale made in causes ancillary to said receivership cause, the Purchasers, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, were the successful bidders, subject to the provisions of the Final Decree and subject to the confirmation of the sale by the Pennsylvania Court and by the other courts having jurisdiction of the causes ancillary to the receivership cause, for all the property in and by the Final Decree directed to be sold, in one parcel as an entirety, for the sum of $2,550,000; and

Whereas, said bid was made on behalf and for the benefit of the Grantee, pursuant to and for the purposes of the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation; and [fol. 563] Whereas, the Purchasers desire to assign their successful bid at the sale to the Grantee;

Now, therefore, this indenture witnesseth:

That for good and valuable considerations the Purchasers have transferred, assigned and set over and hereby assign, transfer and set over unto the Grantee all their right, title and interest in and to the property of every kind, character and description purchased by them at the sale; their right to receive a deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer of said property; their successful bid at the sale under the Final Decree; their rights and interests under

That the Grantee hereby for itself, its successors and assigns, covenants and agrees with the Purchasers, and [fol. 564] with each of them, that the Grantee will enter its appearance in the above entitled cause and will take over and perform, or cause to be performed, the bid and purchase of the Purchasers and will, as part of the purchase price for said property, assume and pay all obligations of the Receivers under existing executory contracts, leases and agreements entered into, assumed or adopted by the Receivers, to the extent that the same shall not have been performed by the Receivers and are required to be assumed by the Purchasers; and will indemnify and forever hold harmless the Purchasers, and each of them, and the survivor of them, and each and every of the heirs, executors and administrators of the Purchasers and of either of them, from and against any and all loss, damage, expense and liability whatever which may have been incurred, or which may hereafter be incurred, by the Purchasers, or either of them, or the survivor of them, or the heirs, executors and administrators of the Purchasers, or of either of them, by reason of the failure of the Grantee to perform its undertaking herein contained.

In witness whereof, G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley have hereunto set their hands and seals, and National Radiator Corporation, the Maryland corporation, [fol. 565] has caused this Assignment of Bid, evidencing also its undertaking herein contained, to be executed by its President or one of its Vice Presidents and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed and attested by its Secretary or one of its Assistant Secretaries, all as of the day and year first above written.

IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

ANSWER TO PETITION FOR APPROVAL OF PLAN—Filed Aug. 17, 1932

And Now, to wit, August 18th, 1932, come the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, by Ehrich, Royall, Wheeler & Walter and Baker & Watts, their Counsel, and the International Heater Company, by Miller & Hubbell and Alter, Wright & Barron, their Counsel, and, in answer to the petition filed by the complainants in the above action praying [fol. 566] that this Court approve the plan and agreement of reorganization referred to in said petition as fair and equitable and adjudicate that said plan and agreement provide an equitable and timely offer of participation in the reorganization thereby proposed to all persons and corporations interested in National Radiator and its property, respectfully submit as follows:

One. That it already appears by the pleadings and evidence before this Court that said plan is not fair and equitable.

Two. That if this Court thinks that it does not now sufficiently appear from the pleadings and evidence already introduced that said plan is not fair and equitable, then it certainly is true that there has never been any hearing for the purpose of determining that question, and if it is the intention of this Court to pass upon that question, then the parties interested are entitled to present their evidence upon that point, and a time should be fixed for a hearing, at which the evidence can be taken, so that this Court can pass upon said question intelligently.

Three. That many of these inequitable and unfair features of the plan of reorganization have already been clearly expressed in a printed circular letter of a Bondholders' Protective Committee, of which Mr. Frank B. Cahn, now a member of the Reorganization Committee, was one. There is attached to the petition herein a modification of the reorganization plan correcting some of the unfairness pointed out in this letter, but no copy of the letter is attached to the petition for the information of this [fol. 567] Court, and the most important elements of unfairness pointed out in said letter still remain unchanged. A copy of said letter is hereto attached and made a part hereof.

Four. That the plan of reorganization outlined in the petition for the approval thereof is unfair, and such petition contemplates the abuse of the powers of this Court in Equity for the mere purpose of effectuating the proposed plan of reorganization in fraud of the rights of non-assenting creditors, including these answering respondents. The said plan is also unfair in that it accomplishes the turning over of the property of the defendant corporation to the Reorganization Committee at a grossly inadequate price, and in that it makes provision for the preferred stockholders of the old corporation granting them rights unconditionally, and for the common stockholders conferring rights upon them upon their making contributions wholly inadequate and trivial in amount, notwithstanding that the accomplishment of the plan will bring about the turning over of the property of the corporation for the benefit of the stockholders at a price not only grossly inadequate, but also insufficient to pay but a small percentage of the claims of the dissenting creditors.

Five. The final decree of sale herein dated May 31st, 1932, was made in contemplation of the complainants' plan of reorganization and this suit was brought as a mere step for the purpose of effectuating such plan. These respondents hereby reassert all of their exceptions and assignments of error, heretofore filed, to the chief decree, which is the final decree of sale dated May 31st, 1932, and hereby [fol. 568] incorporate all of such exceptions and assignments of error as though herein again fully set forth.

February 28, 1931.

To the holders of the above bonds:

The undersigned Committee has carefully considered the Plan of Reorganization, dated Feruary 11, 1931, sponsored by the present management of National Radiator Corporation and has unanimously decided that this Plan should be opposed by the Debenture holders. You are, accordingly, urged not to deposit your Debentures under said Plan.

[fol. 570] A summary of the reasons leading to the above conclusion is herewith presented:

(1) Loss of First Mortgage Position.—The Debentures are now equally as good as first mortgage bonds. The Company owes only a negligible amount of indebtedness in addition to the Debenture debt. There is no other funded debt. Under the present Indenture no mortgage or pledge of the Company's properties is permitted except after securing these Debentures as a first and prior lien. The Plan of the management removes this safeguard and permits the future mortgage or pledge of the Company's properties without reserving for the proposed new debentures a prior first mortgage position.

(2) Loss of Income from Debentures.—The Debentures now require a fixed payment at the rate of 6½% per annum. The Plan removes this requirement and makes the payment of your interest contingent upon earnings. For the first three years, only 40% of these earnings are made available for the interest on the new debentures. For three years past, there have been no earnings. If you had held a debenture such as the Plan proposes to give you, instead of the one you now hold, you would not have received a dollar of income from your investment for three years past.

(3) Reduction of Coupon Rate.—Not only are you asked under the Plan of the management to make your Debenture interest contingent upon earnings, but, should there be earnings, you are then asked to accept 5% interest instead of [fol. 571] 6½%. Thus, not only are you asked to make sacrifices during lean periods, but even assuming the Company should enjoy prosperous years, your income from the new debentures would remain limited to 5%.

(4) Elimination of Sinking Fund.—Under the present Indenture the Debentures have the benefit of a generous sinking fund under the operation of which all but $537,000 of the outstanding Debentures would have been paid off before their fixed maturity. Under the Plan of the mangement, the sinking fund is eliminated. No matter how substantial the earnings in excess of 5% might be, there is no requirement that the new debentures be paid off before maturity. Under the Plan, on March 1, 1946, there would be outstanding $5,500,000 of the new debentures. Under the present Indenture, only $1,531,000 of Debentures would be outstanding on that date. In the meantime, $9,185,000 of your Debentures would have been retired at a premium, under the existing Indenture.

(5) Reduction in Principal Amount.—Not only are you asked to give up your first mortgage position and your fixed income and the benefits of the sinking fund, and to reduce the coupon rate, but even that reduced interest rate is again cut in half by the reduction of your principal debt by 50%. You are asked to take a $500 bond for every $1,000 bond now held by you. Even if the 5% were payable as a fixed charge instead of out of income, the 5% on $500 would [fol. 572] only be equal to 2½% on the $1,000 Debenture now held by you. You would therefore be consenting to a reduction of coupon from 6½% to 2½%—payable only if earned.

(6) Loss of February 1, 1931, Coupon.—No provision has been made under the Plan for the interest which matured February 1, 1931. This represents a loss of a half year's interest on all outstanding Debentures.

(7) No Correction in Management.—The Plan completely fails to deal with the most vital question of management. The majority of the present Board of Directors were on the Board of Directors when these Debentures were sold to you in August, 1927. Practically ever since that time, the management of this Company has been unable to produce any earnings. The Plan itself shows a consistent and continuous record of substantial loss, in comparison with consistent substantial earnings of the constituent companies which were merged, for three years prior to the merger. During the last three years, competitor companies, under better management, have earned substantial profits. Adverse industrial conditions therefore afford no proper alibi to the management of this Company for their consistent record of failure, year after year. Do you wish to perpetuate such a management? That is what the Plan will do. Are you willing to sacrifice 50% of your principal and 4½% out of your 6½% coupon, so that such management may have a larger fund, free from any lien in your [fol. 573] favor, to mismanage and fritter away? Assets have dwindled from $19,374,000, exclusive of good will, as of December, 1926, to $12,800,000, exclusive of good will, in December, 1930, a loss of $6,574,000. Are you willing to permit the balance of these assets to be mismanaged down to a zero?

We believe that the foregoing presents sound and sufficient reasons why you should not deposit your Debentures under the Plan sponsored by the present management, which proposes no remedy for its incompetence.

This Committee realizes that criticism alone will not remedy the conditions complained of. It does not intend to limit its activities to criticism. It intends to present a definite, constructive program to the Debenture holders, after a careful survey, study and analysis of the condition of the Company and the conditions which have brought about the present sad plight of these Debentures. In line with that intention, this Committee has retained the eminent engineering firm of Coverdale & Colpitts and the well known accounting firm of Barrow, Wade, Guthrie & Co. to aid it in arriving at well grounded conclusions as to the course best designed to conserve the interests of the Debenture holders.

To accomplish these purposes in the interests of the Debenture holders, this Committee needs your immediate support. Passive acquiescence in the above views is neither fair to the many Debenture holders who have already deposited their bonds nor will it result in the most effective [fol. 574] representation of your interests by us. This Committee represents only Debenture holders. It does not represent any other security holders. Its sole objective is the preservation of your interests. It is entitled to your immediate full and unqualified support. That support will best be evidenced by refusing to deposit your Debentures under the Plan of the management and by promptly forwarding them to any of the depositaries above named. A letter of transmittal is enclosed for your convenience.

Act promptly in your own good.

Objections to Receivers' Report of Sale and to Confirmation Thereof—Filed Aug. 17, 1932

And now, to wit, this 18th day of August, 1932, come the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, by Ehrich, Royall, [fol. 575] Wheeler & Walter and Baker & Watts, their Counsel, and International Heater Company, of Utica, New York, by Miller & Hubbell and Alter, Wright & Barron, their Counsel, Interveners, and file the following objections to the report or return of sale filed by the Receivers herein, and submit the same as their reasons why the Court should refuse to confirm the sale set forth in said report, n:

One. The sale was merely a formal and perfunctory step, carried out in accordance with the final decree of sale dated May 31, 1932, and as contemplated by such decree, and was designed for the mere purpose of effectuating a transfer to the complainants of the assets of the defendant. These respondents hereby reassert all of their exceptions and assignments of error heretofore filed herein to the chief decree, viz.: the final decree of sale dated May 31, 1932, and hereby incorporated all of such exceptions and assignments of error as though herein again fully set forth.

Two. The price bid at said sale by the Reorganization Committee is grossly inadequate.

Three. The sale was conducted without appraisal and without other adequate or suitable steps properly to inform the court as to the fair and just value of the assets of the defendant corporation or as to the best manner of realizing on the same for the benefit of creditors.

Four. The said sale was conducted without competitive bidding.

[fol. 576] Five. The decree of sale was so designed as to exclude rather than to bring about competitive bidding.

Six. The place and time of sale were designed so as to prevent bids by parties other than the Reorganization Committee.

Seven. The advertisements of the notice of said sale were merely technical and not designed to bring bidders to the sale.

Eight. The Receivers made no effort, such as the proper performance of their duty required, to promote the sale in such a way as to bring about competitive bids.

Nine. The said sale included therein property described in the said bill as Parcel "G", consisting of the warehouse of the National Radiator Corporation in the City of Cincinnati, County of Hamilton, State of Ohio, which said property by the laws of the State of Ohio can be validly sold at judicial sale only after a preliminary appraisal. (See Code of the State of Ohio, Sections 11672-5—Throckmorton's Annotated Code of Ohio, 1930.)

Ten. The said sale included therein property described in the sale bill as Parcel "E" consisting of plants, foundries, shops and warehouse of the National Radiator Corporation in the City of Chicago, County of Cook, State of Illinois, as well as another property situate in said City, County and State, known as Edgewood Apartment Hotel, and no provision is made by the terms of said sale for preserving and protecting on behalf of creditors of National [fol. 577] Radiator Corporation the equity or redemption in said Chicago properties provided for by the Statutes of the State of Illinois.

Eleven. The sale reported as aforesaid by the Receivers is invalid and illegal because held at New Castle, Pennsylvania, but includes real estate situate in various states and Federal Districts other than in Lawrence County in the Western District of Pennsylvania.

Twelve. The said Receiver's Report of Sale is inaccurate and not comprehensive in that it fails to set forth that the bidders mentioned by name in the seventh paragraph thereof did at said sale by their authorized Attorney in Fact, V. C. Baldwin, decline to bid at said sale after and because Counsel for these objecting respondents had requested the Receivers to adjourn said sale until after the disposition of the appeal from the Decree of sale taken by these objecting respondents to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Thirteen. The matter of confirmation of the sale should be postponed and held in abeyance, pending the decision by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit of the appeal which has been taken herein by the undersigned interveners from the final decree of sale herein, dated May 31, 1932.

SUPPLEMENTAL OBJECTION TO PLAN OF REORGANIZATION—Filed Aug. 19, 1932

And now, to wit, August 19, 1932, come the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, by Ehrich, Royall, Wheeler & Walter and Baker & Watts, their Counsel, and the International Heater Company, by Miller & Hubbell and Alter, Wright & Barron, their Counsel, and supplement their answer heretofore filed to the petition for approval of the plan of reorganization as follows:

Six. The plan is discriminatory, in that it contemplates and makes provision for the payment of some unpreferred and unsecured general creditors in cash in full, while contemplating and providing that others of such unpreferred and unsecured general creditors shall receive a dividend in cash, constituting but a small percentage of the face of their [fol. 579] claims, or be relegated merely to the acceptance of the securities offered by the committee.

COLLOQUY

Mr. Teall: This is a hearing on the reorganization plan and confirmation of sale which was held pursuant to decree on the 8th day of August at New Castle.

The property was bid in as a whole, as one parcel, by Messers. Ludington and Resley, who stated that they were bidding for the Reorganization Committee under the plan and agreement of reorganization that is on file in the case. The price at which the property was bid was $2,550,000.00, which is $50,000.00 in excess of the up-set price. The receivers have filed a report of the sale which sets forth all the details, but a summary of it is simply to say that the property was bid in on behalf of the Reorganization Committee at $2,550,000.00 and the sale held in all respects as directed by the decree.

[fol. 581] The purchasers, Ludington and Resley, have on file a petition praying for the confirmation of the sale. There is also on file a petition by National Radiator Corporation, a new corporation, organized under the laws of the State of Maryland, stating that it has taken over the bid of Messrs. Ludington and Resley and requesting that the deed for the property be made direct to it, and also asking confirmation of the sale.

Pursuant to the decree, a petition was filed on behalf of the Reorganization Committee requesting that the reorganization plan be considered by the Court and adjudicated to be fair and equitable.

We are here this morning at the time fixed in the decree, at the place fixed in the decree, of which time and place everybody has had notice, for a hearing on the confirmation of the sale and on the fairness of the plan of reorganization, and at this time under the petitions that have been filed we ask that the sale be confirmed.

Mr. Watts: If the Court please, on behalf of the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio and the International Heater Company of Utica, New York, both parties who have been permitted to intervene in this suit by orders of Court, I present first a paper entitled "Objections to Receivers' Report of Sale and to Confirmation thereof", and another paper in the nature of an answer to the petition of the complainants in this suit praying an order of the Court declaring the plan of reorganization fair and equitable, and ask that these papers be marked filed with the court.

[fol. 582] Mr. Palley: If your Honor please, I appear at this time first on behalf of the preferred stockholder Edward J. Ramsey, who objects to the confirmation of the sale and to the proposed plan and who also objects to the jurisdiction of this court, and who by the submission of these objections does not waive his objections to this court's jurisdiction but specifically reserves them. Mr. Ramsey is the owner of five hundred shares of preferred stock. I appear on behalf of Amy Arzt, a holder of $71,000.00, principal amount of debentures, who appears and files specifications of objections to the confirmation of the sale and to the proposed plan, and who specifically declares and recites in such specifications that this court has no jurisdiction in the matter, and she specifically reserves the objections to this court's lack of jurisdiction. I also appear in behalf of Josephine Ramsey, the owner of $50,000.00, principal amount, of bonds of the National Radiator Corporation, who also submits and files specifications of objections to the confirmation of the sale and to the approval of the reorganization plan upon the same grounds as that set forth in the specifications of Amy Arzt, reserving specifically the objection to this Court's exercise of jurisdiction. I ask that the Court permit me to file those.

Mr. Watts: Now, as a part of the purely formal matters here, I make application to your Honor for an extension of thirty days of the return day of citation granted by this Court upon our joint appeal from the decree of sale of May 31st.

[fol. 583] Mr. Teall: The only objection I have to it is I don't know when it means the case will be argued. If the return day remains as it is, the case would be on for argument in the October Term, and it is obviously for the best interests of all parties concerned that the case should be disposed of at the earliest possible date. I don't know what the reason for the application is.

Mr. Watts: We desire to cooperate to the fullest extent in securing the prompt disposal of this appeal, but we were somewhat concerned in respect to the possible necessity of a second appeal from the order of confirmation and felt that if there is a record to be printed, it should be a record that would be applicable to such a second appeal, and that if the matter is to be put before the District Court of Appeals, it should be argued at one time only and not successively.

(Discussion between counsel on the granting of extension.)

The Court: I will reserve that ruling until we get further information.

Mr. Teall: I think the Receivers' report of sale and petition for confirmation to which I have referred presents the situation for confirmation and if there are objections to the confirmation, I suppose that the time is ripe for the objectors to go ahead.

[fol. 584] Mr. Royal: We want to make it quite clear that we reassert and urge again everything which we urged before your Honor in respect to the making of the main decree, and we wish to refer your Honor to the written exceptions and assignments of error which we have filed herein to that decree and to reassert each and every one of them. It would seem it was unnecessary to make any argument here as the matter of confirmation would seem in effect to be predetermined by the decree, unless the Court feels that this is an occasion where the Court would wish to reopen and reconsider the Court's previous determination, but in that case, your Honor, we must frankly submit that we have nothing substantially to add here by way of argument upon the propriety of the main decree beyond the things which were submitted to your Honor previously.

The Court: Do I understand your exceptions relate back to the decree of sale rather than to any imperfection or impropriety in the sale itself?

Mr. Royal: Broadly speaking, that is precisely our position. We wish it on the record we are opposing these further steps, and out of super-caution, to prevent any possible indication we have surrendered any of our positions, we intend to appeal from these purely formal and perfunctory decrees which we assume will follow as the result of this hearing.

(Discussion off the record.)

[fol. 585] The Court: Let the record show that no testimony has been offered on behalf of either of the contending parties in relation to the methods of sale.

Mr. Watts: Ought we not to have a stipulation of record that the contents of the Receivers' return or report of sale be considered as before the Court as far as their evidentiary value is concerned?

The Court: They are filed and part of the record in this case and, of course, they are to be considered.

Mr. Watts: On the other hand, in our exceptions we make reference in two places—one to the law in the State of Ohio and the other to the law in the State of Illinois, and I think it might be agreed that the Court either knows or will take judicial notice of the law of those two states.

Mr. Teall: I understand the law of a foreign state has to be proven as a fact. The law of this state is judicially known to the Court.

Mr. Royal: If that objection is to be pressed, I ask leave of your Honor to file by way of photostatic copies from the Official Reports the statutes that we have as sufficient evidence.

The Court: We will allow you to submit the copies of the statutes, or reference to the book will be sufficient, and con- [fol. 586] sider it as in evidence here so that there may be no question about that phase of it.

Mr. Teall: We object to the competency or relevancy or materiality of any state statute, this being altogether a matter controlled by the Federal Statutes since the sale is pursuant to a decree of the Federal Court.

The Court: We will allow the statutes to be offered and overrule the exception for the time being and pass upon it later.

Mr. Hubbell: May I say a word as to the position of the International Heater Company? The International Heater Company owns none of these debentures and, therefore, the Bankers' Trust Company does not represent us in any way. We hold some promissory notes which were given for a third interest in a company, and the assets of that company consisted largely of merchandise. Under this proposed plan all merchandise creditors were to be paid in full. What we turned over was substantially merchandise; so I was in some doubt as to whether we were merchandise creditors or were not, and being in doubt I went to Mr. Teall and he tells me that the International Heater Company is not to be paid, and there is nothing to that effect in the record. If it could appear in the record in some way that that is so, why then, so far as I know, we are the only general creditor that is left out and not paid in full. We are simply told to take some of these debentures at fifty cents on a dollar, which we don't want at any price. We [fol. 587] would take our fair percentage in bankruptcy or any other method of administering the assets under the statutes, but we don't want any of these debentures, and I would like to have the opportunity to have it appear on the record what Mr. Teall says is the fact, that we are not to be paid; that we are simply given an opportunity to take some of these debentures, and then I would like to file an objection to that, and if the Court would like to hear testimony as to the general fairness of the plan, why then I would like to produce testimony that such a plan of paying all the creditors except one is not a fair plan, and point out many other inequities in this plan. Your Honor will appreciate this is the first opportunity I have had to appear in the court or in the proceeding in any way except to file a formal notice of intervention. When the hearing was held before I didn't know anything about it until it was all over and neither did the International Heater Company, of course, so that the proceedings were all taken and then we are given an opportunity to take something we don't want and not much opportunity so far to do anything else.

Mr. Teall: In the first place, I am surprised to hear Mr. Hubbell say that the indebtedness owing to International Heater Company was for merchandise, because it is my understanding that these notes were given for stock in a certain corporation.

Mr. Hubbell: I so stated to the Court.

[fol. 588] Mr. Teall: Then I don't see how that can be for merchandise.

The Court: Let us not argue that matter on the record. State your position simply in regard to this.

Mr. Teall: Those obligations held by the International Heater Company are promissory notes given for the consideration just stated and they are of the same class of indebtedness as the debentures. The reorganization plan permits the International Heater Company to come in on exactly the same basis as the debenture holder, and the consideration for these notes as I understand the matter, and as I understand Mr. Hubbell to agree, is the stock in a certain corporation. It is true, as Mr. Hubbell states, that the reorganization plan does not propose to pay Mr. Hubbell's client one hundred cents on the dollar on his notes, any more than it proposes to pay the debenture holders, but it does place his client exactly on the same basis as the debenture holder. Am I right in that statement?

Mr. Hubbell: Yes, you are right in that statement. Will you tell me this additional fact; is there any other creditor outside the debenture holder that is not to be paid in full?

Mr. Teall: Yes. There are a number of people with claims for rent on leases that may not be paid at all. It is [fol. 589] a serious question that this Court may ultimately have to determine whether those people can get anything or not. As to the merchandise creditors, relative small amounts, averaging only approximately $150,000.00, the reorganization plan proposes the Reorganization Committee or the new corporation or somebody will pay them, but there is only about $150,000.00 of those altogether.

Mr. Hubbell: If Your Honor please, the facts being as Mr. Teall has stated them and if they propose to go into the fairness of the plan and have Your Honor adjudicate this is a fair plan, then I would like an opportunity to file an objection to that, and if Your Honor desires to try it out, then I would like an opportunity to produce witnesses and introduce considerable proof as to whether it is a fair plan or not, thus to treat one creditor.

Mr. Teall: May I make a correction? I stated these merchandise creditors that were to be paid in full were approximately $150,000.00. Mr. Bennett states that is wrong; that the merchandise creditors to be paid in full under the reorganization plan are only about $50,000.00, instead of $150,000.00.

Mr. Hubbell: I don't desire, of course, to cause any unnecessary delay because I am eager to have it disposed of, but it wouldn't delay anybody to give me three or four days to file this objection, and as to whether further testimony is taken, I am willing to acquiesce in the decision of the Court.

[fol. 590] The Court: I take it you have had notice of this proposed hearing for some considerable time?

Mr. Hubbell: Yes, we have but I didn't want to bring a lot of witnesses here without knowing what would be heard or gone into. I haven't any desire to attack the formalities of the sale except the objections that are set forth, the objections which are largely a matter of law, but if it is the intention of Your Honor to pass upon this plan and say it is a very fair and equitable plan, I think we ought to have a hearing on it.

The Court: This was the day fixed for that and if you had notice, the opportunity was given to be here today for that purpose. I will allow you to file any formal objection that you may want in the future as of today and introduce any testimony you may desire in connection with it at this time, but I do not see any particular advantage to anybody in continuing the matter.

(Recess taken until 1:30 P. M.)

1:30 P. M.

Afternoon Session

(Discussion by counsel on extension of time for appeal.)

The Court: I will give you until the 15th of September.

[fol. 591] Mr. Teall: If the Court please, I am in a little quandary about how to proceed. This morning I went on the assumption that the first matter to be taken up was any objection to the confirmation of the sale and then the question of any objections to the reorganization plan. I think when we get to the latter that probably I should outline it briefly. Is it Your Honor's wish the confirmation of the sale point be disposed of first?

The Court: That is what I suggested this morning, and I think the record should show whether or not the various counsel propose to offer any testimony in connection with the question of the sale.

Mr. Palley: On behalf of the three parties I represent the position we take is this Court has not the jurisdiction, and our reason for coming into this Court is because this Court through the representation of a corporation forces us to come in here and protest to the exercise of jurisdiction.

The Court: First of all, do you propose to offer any testimony at this time in regard to objections to the confirmation of sale?

Mr. Palley: I do. I offer in evidence a notice sent by the National Radiator Corporation, dated February 2, 1931, which reads as follows:

"National Radiator Corporation, Johnstown, Pa.

To the holders of National Radiator Corporation 6½% sinking-fund gold debentures:

[fol. 592] National Radiator Corporation will omit payment of the coupon due February 1, 1931, on its 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures. This action was deemed advisable to conserve its cash resources. The management has requested a Committee consisting of Messrs. Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters to formulate a plan of Reorganization. The Committee expects to be able to announce a plan shortly.

National Radiator Corporation. John H. Waters, President."

I offer in evidence the petition of the Reorganization Committee for the approval of the reorganization plan which is on file in this court, and to which are attached other documents except the one I have just offered in evidence.

(Notice marked Ramsey & Arzt Exhibit [illegible])

Mr. Palley: Mr. Teall, will you concede this notice, Exhibit No. 1 of Ramsey & Arzt was sent to all bond holders of the National Radiator Corporation on or about February 2, 1931?

Mr. Teall: I will stipulate that was sent to all debenture holders whose names and addresses were then known to the company.

Mr. Palley: This, together with the facts which appear in the petition for the approval of the plan, shows that this [fol. 593] Court did not acquire jurisdiction of the cause out of which this litigation proceeds and out of which the sale proceeds because it violates Section 7 of the United States Judicial Code.

The Court: You have introduced all the testimony you desire in connection with the sale feature?

Mr. Palley: Yes. I also protest against the sale on this ground.

The Court: You have already protested formally and we will allow you to protest at length verbally when the time comes but the time is not yet.

Mr. Palley: There is one ground I have not stated and that is in so far as the order of sale directed the sale of the cash on hand at the direction of the Receivers, the order is improper.

The Court: If you want to add that to your exceptions, you may do so.

Mr. Palley: I do so add it.

The Court: Is there any other testimony in connection with the sale feature?

Mr. Royal: I thought we had indicated to Your Honor we have no testimony. I wish an opportunity to make a [fol. 594] motion to the Court before we leave the subject, but as far as testimony goes not on the subject of the confirmation.

The Court: There being no further testimony in regard to the sale feature, does counsel for the complainants desire to offer any testimony in respect to it?

Testimony of David M. Palley

David M. Palley, a witness called on behalf of the complainants, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Mr. Palley, do you have any personal ownership interest in any of the bonds that your petition-s filed this morning?

A. I have not.

Q. Do you know when Mrs. Arzt became the owner of the seventy-one bonds which her petition states she owns?

A. Miss Arzt was assigned those bonds for the purpose of consolidating various claims of people interested in those bonds very recently.

Q. How recently?

A. Well, within the last, probably, week or two.

Q. Has anybody else ever brought a suit against the National Radiator Company on those same bonds, or any of them?

A. On some of them, yes.

Q. Who?

[fol. 595] A. Miss Berger.

Q. Whereabouts?

A. In New York State.

Q. Who was Miss Berger?

A. Miss Berger was an employee in our office.

Q. Is Miss Arzt an employee in your office?

A. She is.

Q. State whether or not, if you know, whether the eleven bonds stated in the Clapier suit to be owned by Mrs. Clapier are included in the seventy-one bonds stated in today's petition as belonging to Miss Arzt.

A. They are not.

Q. I understood you to say that Miss Arzt's bonds were lately assigned to her for the purpose of consolidating the claims of various bondholders to be asserted in this cause.

A. They are numerous bond holders whom I have represented who have bonds, and instead of filing separate petitions in behalf of them all it was agreed we have them assigned to Miss Arzt and have her sign the specifications in behalf of all of them.

Q. Will you give us the names of those various bondholders and the bonds held by each?

A. I can't do it because they come from one source. I know the number of bonds but who the individuals are I don't know.

Q. What source do they come from?

A. The Bondholders' Protective Committee.

Q. Who are the Bondholders' Protective Committee?

A. Mr. A. R. Perpall is one of the officers.

[fol. 596] Q. Who are the other members?

A. I don't know.

Q. So far as your knowledge goes, you have no knowledge as to who are the beneficial owners of these seventy-one bonds stated to be owned by Miss Arzt?

A. I do not, except I know they are from the Bondholders' Protective Committee.

Q. This Bondholders' Protective Committee to whom you refer was formed subsequent to the Reorganization Committee under the plan of reorganization?

A. Not as I understand. I didn't organize it but that corporation has been in existence a number of years.

Q. It is a corporation?

A. Yes, it is a corporation.

Q. What is the corporate name?

A. I think "Bondholders' Protective Committee, Inc."

Q. Was the name "Bondholders' Syndicate of America"?

A. Yes, I think that is it.

Q. Are you an officer or director of that corporation?

A. I am not.

Mr. Teall: That is all the testimony for the complainants.

COLLOQUY

Mr. Watts: Your Honor will recall this morning I made some reference to the effect of the sale and our exceptions [fol. 597] thereto. Perhaps it should appear here as admitted of record that the part of our exceptions which relates to the refusal to bid by the attorney in fact for the bidders listed in full in paragraph 7 of the return of sale correctly sets forth what actually transpired at the sale; said exception being No. 12.

Mr. Teall: At the request of Mr. Watts I am willing the record shall show that I was present at the sale on August 8th and that one Vincent C. Baldwin, whom I believe to be an attorney at law of Chicago, Illinois, appearing to represent three different bidders who had qualified for different parcels, not including Parcel "A", not including Parcel "K", made the statement early in the proceedings at the sale that his clients would not be bidders and that he stated as his reason that there was an appeal pending from the final decree of the sale entered by this Court on May 31, 1932.

Mr. Watts: Is it not a fact, Mr. Teall, he also referred to my request for an adjournment?

Mr. Teall: I didn't hear him.

Mr. Watts: And is it not also a fact that Mr. Heiner requested him to produce his written powers of attorney?

Mr. Teall: I am not on the witness stand.

[fol. 598] Mr. Watts: Won't you admit that Mr. Heiner asked him to produce his written powers of attorney?

Mr. Teall: Yes, he produced his written powers of attorney and filed them with the Receivers, which written powers of attorney authorized him to bid.

Mr. Watts: On behalf of the principals?

Mr. Teall: Yes.

Mr. Watts: We desire also that it appear of record that there were no other bids submitted at the sale than those made by Mr. Resley and Mr. Ludington on behalf of the Reorganization Committee.

Mr. Teall: That is correct. Complainants have no testimony in answer to what has just been offered by Mr. Watts.

Mr. Caplan: I want it to appear of record, if your Honor please, the amount of cash and Government bonds that the Receivers had on hand on the day of sale and which were offered for sale as part of the assets of this company. I understand from Mr. Heiner that on July 31, 1932, which was eight days before the sale, the Receivers had on hand cash of $504,469.53, Certificates of Deposit in several banks amounting to $50,000.00, and United States Government [fol. 599] bonds of $980,000.00 par value, on which the accrued interest was $17,156.25, making the total of cash and securities $1,551,615.78, and that the figures with respect to these items were approximately the same—perhaps $5,000.00 less—on the date of the sale, August 8, 1932.

The Court: Is there a stipulation to that effect on the record now?

Mr. Teall: We agreed to that.

Mr. Palley: May I at this time offer in evidence the summary statement which was contained in the report of the receivers which was filed, I believe, on January 2, 1932, which sets forth a summary of the assets and liabilities of the company as of October 8, 1931. I understand such a report is on file in the Clerk's office.

Mr. Teall: I suppose it is not necessary to offer it in evidence as it is a part of the evidence in the case.

The Court: If you desire, it may be offered in evidence.

Mr. Royal: Before we leave the sale, your Honor, I wish to make this formal request upon the record that any order to be made herein confirming the sale should contain a provision postponing the transfer of title to the Committee or [fol. 600] the new corporation pending the hearing and decision on the appeal which has been taken by the intervenor for whom I speak from the final decree of sale made May 31, 1932.

Mr. Teall: If the Court please, we of course oppose such a motion. The Statutes and Rules of Court prescribe exactly how he can stay this matter and that is by filing a supersedeas bond, and to make these creditors run the risk of substantial loss by the delay here without the filing of any bond to protect anybody I think would be most unusual.

The Court: The motion will be considered when we consider all the other matters of the case.

Mr. Teall: If your Honor please, I have a witness here by whom I should expect to show, if your Honor wants to hear him, that the cost of this delay to the estate would be approximately $50,000.00 a month, and if that motion is being pressed and is to be considered at some time during the proceeding, I would like to offer evidence on that.

The Court: We will allow you to call your witness.

[fol. 601] TESTIMONY OF BARRETT B. RUSSELL

BARRETT B. RUSSELL, a witness called on behalf of the complainants, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Russell?

A. Johnstown.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. Industrial engineer.

Q. You also are informed on matters of accounting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your present employment?

A. Statistician and industrial engineer with the National Radiator.

Q. That is to say, you were in the employ of the company and you now are in the employ of the Receivers?

A. Yes.

Q. State whether or not you have worked out from the books of the company and your knowledge of its affairs the possible loss that might accrue through the continuance of the present receivership.

A. I have.

Q. How did you go about that?

A. I estimated the sales with the best information we have and then proceeded to figure how much it would cost to get those sales into the company in the way of cash discount and bad debts, took the accounts receivable, added to [fol. 602] those figures the net return on the sales, figured the collection percentage; then added to that the cash on hand and the marketable securities; then took the inventories as they would probably be from time to time at the present production rate and figured what the decrease in current assets would amount to at that rate through the year. I figured approximately eleven months at this rate.

Q. Do you have a tabulation of that?

A. I have.

(Paper marked Complainants' Exhibit No. 1.)

Q. Mr. Russell, I show you a paper marked Complainants' Exhibit No. 1, and ask you whether that is the tabulation that you have prepared.

A. That is the tabulation I prepared.

Q. You have based that, as I understood you a moment ago, on current production and current experience generally? Is that correct?

A. Yes, that is the current condition.

Mr. Teall: We offer Exhibit 1 in evidence.

Mr. Royal: I object to it, your Honor. It is a most unusual method of procedure. I could understand an expert being called and having it contended he was familiar with the operations of the receivership, and asked to analyze the actual operations, show what they have been, and then indulged, if you please, upon speculation that the past operations were a fair indication of what the ensuing months might produce, but there is nothing of actualities in here as I see it. It is a pure speculation, based upon it does not [fol. 603] appear what, of what it ought to be without any reference to what the actualities of operation have been. Why can't we come at this in a more direct and sensible way? Let us find out what the receivership has made or lost and then we will know something.

Mr. Teall: It is just an effort, if the Court please, to estimate what the expense of delay would be.

The Court: We will admit it for what it is worth and note an exception.

Mr. Royal: I object to it. It is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and on the grounds it is purely a speculation.

The Court: That objection is overruled and exception noted, and we will later pass upon its effect.

Mr. Hubbell: I don't know whether the other parties have the benefit of that exception, but I would like to object to its reception in evidence for the International Heater Company unless there is also made a proposed computation of what they are not going to lose under the action of the Receivers.

The Court: I understood Mr. Royal was representing all these interests and I think it was placed upon record, so you have the benefit of that exception.

[fol. 604] Mr. Royal: I want to correct that statement, if your Honor please. I represent merely the First National Bank of Cincinnati and no one else. Because of the Judiciary Code Provision in taking the appeal any parties to the record are similarly situated and must appear jointly. In this way is the International Heater Company with us. To comply with that rule we have joined in the appeal, but my retainer and my representation is for the First National Bank of Cincinnati and no one else.

The Court: If there is any question, let the other objection be received under the same terms and same ruling.

Cross-examination.

Mr. Royal:

Q. Have you made any examination of the actual result of the operation of the receivership during recent months?

A. I see the statements from month to month, yes.

Q. Are the operations of the receivership in the black or in the red?

A. They are at a loss.

Q. Are the actualities of the loss consistent, so far as average rate goes—consistent with this average rate you have tried to speculate about in this exhibit, Complainants' No. 1?

A. I couldn't say. I haven't compared them.

[fol. 605] Q. You haven't attempted to check the soundness of your speculation by comparison with the actualities of the operation?

A. No.

Q. You have just speculated without attempt at verification by comparison with the actual experience which the receivers have had and which are accessible to you in their books?

A. The experience of one month does not check with another month in this business. It is not a consistent matter.

A. I didn't say it was, but I suppose there would be such a thing of averages, wouldn't there? The receivership has been operating how many months?

A. I couldn't say.

Q. I thought you testified you are employed by the receivers as an accountant upon their books?

A. I was employed by the National Radiator before that.

Q. And since then you have been employed by the receivers?

A. Yes.

Q. Don't you know how long you have been acting for the receivers on their books?

A. I couldn't say.

Q. Will you give the Court any impression how long you have been working on the books of the receivers?

A. I haven't worked on the books. I have had the use of them in other examinations.

Q. Can you give the Court any impression for how long a period you have been acting for the receivers in whatever [fol. 606] capacity you have been acting for the receivers?

A. About ten months I would say.

Q. Do you think you have been acting for the whole period of the receivership?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. It is just a question you don't know how long the receivership has been then?

A. Yes, exactly.

Q. Let us refresh you on that then. I believe the date of the receivership counsel for the Committee say was October, 1931, and now you say you have been employed for the receivers continuously from October, 1931, to date. Is that it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, then, there is such a thing, isn't there, of computing the monthly averages of the receivers' operation—the profit and loss side of it—for the period from October to date?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You made no attempt to do that?

A. I have compared with other figures but not with these.

Q. Are you in a position, since you are guessing, to guess whether or not your purely speculative computation as to the future shows a greater or less rate of loss than would be indicated by a computation of the average of the actual experience of the receivership?

A. My impression would be it would be a less loss.

Q. You think you have indicated a less loss than the actual loss?

[fol. 607] A. Yes, up to the present.

Q. I don't understand you. Perhaps you mean just the opposite from what I think you mean. State carefully what your impression would be as to a comparison of the actualities with these speculations of yours.

A. My belief is that the future loss will be less than the loss in the past, due to increased sales.

Q. Well, then, do you think this receivership in the past has been losing money at the average rate of more than $50,000.00 a month?

A. I couldn't say offhand. I would have to look at the records.

Q. You have indicated here as speculation the future loss of $50,000.00?

A. Yes.

Q. As I understand you, the indicated future rate is less than the actual rate the receivership has been operated under?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, I ask you have the operations up to date been conducted at an average loss of greater than $50,000.00 a month?

A. My belief is from the first of the receivership to the first of this year it would be less than $50,000.00, and from the first of this year to the present time probably more than $50,000. That is my estimate. It makes a difference what period of the year you are talking about.

Q. I was taking the average. We have had a period of more than a year, which would carry us through all the seasons, and we are talking about the average loss. Your an[fol. 608] swer I understood is this: that up to the first of this year the receivership was operated at a rate of something more than $50,000.00 loss?

A. Up to the first of the year less.

Q. How much less?

A. I couldn't say.

Q. You have come here to testify upon this subject. I wish you would give your best knowledge to the Court upon that question.

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know how much the actualities of the receivership operation have shown as a loss? Is that what you want to say?

A. Yes.

Mr. Royal: Now, I move to strike this exhibit and this witness's direct testimony out. It appears he doesn't know anything about the actualities but nevertheless comes here with a speculation about what the future loss is to be.

Mr. Teall: I understood the witness to say he had based his estimates on current sales and current inventories and all that as actualities. I think possibly he means he hasn't computed what the actual loss has been, but the bases of his computation are actualities, as I understood them.

Redirect examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Let us take those figures for sales, Mr. Russell, for these various months. Where did you get those?

[fol. 609] A. Those sales figures are taken from the current rate of sales as shown by an increase since the first of the year.

The Court:

Q. Is that the total amount of actual sales?

A. The standing at the present time; along the same rate we seem to be increasing at the present time since the first of the year.

Q. You are adding to the actual sales a certain percentage of increase? Is that it? Estimated?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Teall:

Q. That rate of increase, if I understand you, is the rate of increase which has actually obtained over the past few months?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, this "Less Cash Discount (4.2%)." Where did those figures come from?

A. That is our average cash discount at the present time. What it is costing the company for cash discount, actual figures, four per cent of sales.

Q. What is "Less Reserve for Bad Debts (1%)?"

A. That is the reserve we are making at the present time. One per cent of the sales is the reserve for bad debts.

Q. That is an actuality?

A. Yes, actuality.

Q. And "Net Collectibles." Where did those figures come from?

A. That is the substraction of the two preceding figures [fol. 610] from the figure—cash discount and bad debts substracted from sales, giving you Net Collectibles.

Q. And "Notes & Accounts Receivable Less Reserve." What is that figure?

A. That is starting with the present figure on the books, adding the net collectibles to the present figure and deducting the collections, which comes below that. Just the way it occurs on the books of the company.

Q. To take another one—"Less Expenditures." Where does that expenditure figure come from?

A. That is an estimated figure from the amount of production.

Q. Actual production or expected production?

A. Present rate of production that we are getting at the present time; actual expenditures of operation at the present rate of production.

Q. "Cash on Hand." Where did that figure come from?

A. That is subtraction of the expenditures from the amount of money you had above there—from the collections and cash—what you have left over.

Q. In other words, that is a computation on two actual figures?

A. You have two figures there on that sheet, yes.

Q. "Marketable Securities at Cost." Is that an actuality?

A. That is an actuality.

Q. State whether or not it is true to say that the various elements of this computation are actualities based on [fol. 611] figures as they are at the present time and actual operations of the business. If that is not correct, state wherein it is not correct.

A. That is based on actualities. The only figures which are not actual are estimates of what sales will be. The rest of it is as it will work out from those sales.

Q. That is, the only thing you have actually estimated as distinguished from the actual figures is the probable sales?

A. Probable sales.

Recross-examination.

Mr. Royall:

Q. Will you point out to me any place in this set of figures where there is indicated your amount or rate of loss from operations?

A. The rate of loss isn't there. That is the decrease in amount of assets.

Q. I thought this was put forward as a computation to justify some statement that counsel made that the prospect was you would lose $50,000.00 a month here if you continued operation. Isn't that what it is all about?

A. You have got it wrong.

Q. Well, what is it that this document is intended to show? What do you think it is intended to show?

A. It is intended to show the decrease in the current assets of the company, which is different from the loss.

Q. You put this forward as a computation of accumulative decrease in current assets that you expect to incur?

[fol. 612] A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do you include as current assets for that purpose?

A. Cash, inventory, your investments, accounts receivable.

Q. You have in here in constructing that an item, "Less Reserve for Bad Bebts (1%)," applicable to your receivables?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that in your opinion a proper figure to take?

A. That is not on receivables. It is on sales.

Q. Well, don't sales translate themselves into receivables?

A. There is a difference.

Q. When you sell goods you create a credit, don't you?

A. Yes.

Q. You create a receivable, don't you?

A. You create a receivable, yes.

Q. So aren't we talking at cross purposes when you take exception to that as a reserve against receivables?

A. I misunderstood you. I thought you meant accounts receivable.

Q. Do you consider one per cent to be a proper reserve against accounts receivable?

A. Not against accounts receivable; against sales.

Q. Any way you want to express it. Against debts. You use the term "Bad Debts."

A. That is a figure that has been used over since I have been with the company.

[fol. 613] Q. I asked you if you consider it a proper figure.

A. I believe so.

Q. You approached this as an expert, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You intended to use elements in here for the purpose of this computation which in your opinion as an expert were proper and correct and correctly taken?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as such an expert you do testify then that this one per cent reserve is, in your opinion, the proper percentage to apply?

A. I believe it is the proper percentage to apply at the present time.

Q. Do you know to what extent the receivables of the receivership are precisely that? That is, receivables as distinguished from old receivables as of the date of the receivership. That would be October 1, 1931. Can you give the Court some opinion as to how that breaks itself up?

A. I cannot.

Q. Will you give the Court any opinion whatsoever as to what the extent of the uncollected accounts receivable as of October 1, 1931 was?

A. I can't give you any figures, no. I haven't them with me.

Q. Well, without giving details, do you know enough of the general situation to advise the Court in round percentages how that is broken up?

A. You mean?

Q. To what extent do you think that the old receivables [fol. 614] as distinguished from the receivables created by the receivers themselves, expressed in percentages roughly?

A. I can't give it to you. I never figured it and it wouldn't come to my notice. It wouldn't come to me.

Q. I ask you as to the inventory. What, in round percentages, is the inventory now in the hands of the receivers and inventory created by them as distinguished from the remains of an inventory taken over by them in October, 1931, from the corporation? Are you able in round percentages to indicate to the Court that break-up?

A. Roughly, seventy-five to eighty per cent I would say.

Q. You would say seventy-five or eighty per cent were inventories created or manufactured by the receivers?

A. You say created by the receivers?

Q. I am asking you. You say seventy-five to eighty per cent. What does it apply against?

A. The present inventory as against the inventory when the receivers took charge.

Q. Then you say of the inventory now in the hands of the receivers it is your belief that seventy-five or eighty per cent of it is inventory which they made or manufactured?

A. No, I wouln't say that.

Q. What do you say?

A. It is the current inventory against the inventory when the receivers took charge.

Q. You are just comparing the bulk amount?

[fol. 615] A. Yes.

Q. You are not intending to indicate at all whether there is any part of the present inventory which is the left-over of on hand stuff on October 1, 1931? You don't know that?

A. Actual physical pieces, I suppose thirty per cent.

Q. Thirty per cent is what—old stuff?

A. Maybe, yes.

Q. And seventy per cent is new stuff? Is that what you want to say?

A. I am estimating it at that, yes.

Q. You mean by "old stuff" stuff on hand when the receivers were appointed, and you mean by "new stuff" stuff that the receivers manufactured?

A. I would like to raise that a little. I would say forty per cent rather than thirty per cent.

Q. But you are not able at all to give any estimate of the comparative break-up of the receivables?

A. No.

Q. Have you got any data in court here that would enable you to do that with reasonable speed?

A. I don't know.

Mr. Teall: I don't like to object but I don't see how that is cross examination. If we can stipulate the receivership is doing business at a substantial loss at the present time and has been, that is all I want to get on the record.

Q. Mr. Russell, you describe the business of making and selling of radiators such as this corporation conducts as a seasonal business?

[fol. 616] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the late months in the summer and early months of the fall is the season of activity in sales. Isn't that so?

A. September, October and November will net you most of your sales.

Q. September is a big month?

A. Pretty good month.

Q. September and October are the two big months?

A. Yes.

Q. The reasonable prospect, therefore, is that during September and October a great part of this inventory now in the hands of the receivers will be realized on? Isn't that so?

A. A considerable lot of it will, yes.

Q. And would you say that considering that and estimating the consequences up to, we will say, the first of November that every prospect is that there will be a large increase in cash and receivables over the present cash and receivables by a continuation of the operation of the receivership up to November?

A. Cash and accounts receivable but less inventory. Current assets decreased.

Q. I am asking you about cash and accounts receivable, and there will be a corresponding decrease in inventory?

A. Yes.

Mr. Palley:

Q. Mr. Russell, will you kindly look at this photostatic copy of a statement and state whether, if you can, this statement correctly reflects the financial condition of the Na- [fol. 617] tional Radiator Corporation for the twelve months ending September 30, 1931, and September 30, 1930?

Mr. Teall: I don't get the propriety of this question at all.

The Court: What is the purpose of it?

Mr. Palley: The purpose is to show the difference between the operation of the company prior to receivership, and during receivership and also to show the condition of the company as of those days, as to the period immediately before the receivership in 1931 and in 1930. They have a bearing upon the entire matter.

The Court: We have that generally in testimony that has been taken here before. Go ahead.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Russell?

A. I have no way of checking these figures. I don't know anything about it.

Q. Did you in or about September 30, 1931, issue an operating statement and assets and liabilities statement?

A. Personally, no.
Q. Did the company?
A. I don't know.
Q. Weren't you in charge of the books of account?
[fol. 618] A. No.

(Statement marked Arzt & Ramsey Exhibit No. 2.)

Mr. Teall:

Q. You don't keep the books and are not in charge of the accounting end?
A. No.

Mr. Teall: Does that close the evidence on the confirmation of sale?

The Court: Unless there is something more offered it does.

(Discussion off the record.)

Mr. Teall: Attached to the answer filed today by the First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, and the International Heater Company is a photostatic copy of a printed circular letter addressed to holders of the National Radiator Corporation debentures and signed by four persons, among them Frank B. Cahn, called a committee. I will concede that the letter just referred to is a true copy of a letter that was sent out by that committee, subject to the proviso that the bonds controlled by this committee subsequently came into the present reorganization plan, withdrawing their objections thereto, and subject to the further proviso that we have no knowledge whether Mr. Cahn, a member of the present committee and a member of the committee [fol. 619] writing this letter, ever saw this letter.

Mr. Royal: You are conceding Mr. Frank B. Cahn, who purports to be one of the promulgators of this letter, is the same Frank B. Cahn of what we may describe as the Flershem Committee?

Mr. Teall: That is conceded.

Mr. Bennett: We do not stipulate he knew about the letter before its going out.

Mr. Royal: I take it for granted Mr. Cahn knew about it, whether you concede it or not. I don't presume these gentlemen are having things go out over their signatures that they don't know about.

Mr. Bennett: That is an improper remark. You don't know anything about it.

Mr. Royal: As to the question of further testimony I suggested this morning that I felt the record should show here the relationship of the management of the promulgators' plan to the corporate stock ownership of the corporation, especially as the plan preserves an interest for the old stockholders. Perhaps a statement could be put on the record by the other side as to what the facts are.

[fol. 620] The Court: In connection with the matters which are before the Court here, do you question the right of the Court to consider the testimony taken at the prior hearing? The reason I ask that is that I think all those matters were brought out in the original testimony.

Mr. Royal: I don't question that at all, your Honor. I suppose we would all assume that that testimony would be considered here and I don't care to be repetitious in the least.

The Court: Doesn't that all appear?

Mr. Royal: Not very adequately. There is enough there to show that the proponents of the plan are interested stockholders, but it does not show any detail about it. I think perhaps it is enough for my arguments that they were, but I would like to have the record show to what extent they were the owners of the preferred stock of the company, and I would like my friends to furnish that information.

Mr. Teall: You don't want us to prove your case for you?

Mr. Royal: I can call witnesses, if you like.

[fol. 621] TESTIMONY OF JOHN H. WATERS

JOHN H. WATERS, a witness called on behalf of the intervenors, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

Mr. Royal:

Q. What office in the National Radiator Corporation do you hold?

A. President.

Q. You were an officer and stockholder of a previous corporation also known as National Radiator Corporation, or was that previously known as Company?

A. National Radiator Company.

Q. To what extent do you own or have you owned since the promulgation of this plan at any time owned the preferred stock of the present National Radiator Corporation?

A. Since the present proposed reorganization?

Q. Yes. Say during the period of the last two years.

A. What amount of preferred stock?

Q. Yes.

A. I think I have owned during that period $50,000.00 of the preferred stock.

Q. Now, then, is the preferred stock owned to any extent during that period, or was it, by other members of your family?

A. Some of it, yes.

Q. And to what extent?

[fol. 622] A. I wouldn't be able to tell you that offhand; probably owned jointly half as much as I do.

Q. Is that the amount of stock that the family interests received of preferred stock as part of the consideration of turning over the old National Radiator Company in the merger of 1927, out of which the present defendant came into being?

A. That was accepted in lieu of cash. They could either have had cash or stock.

Q. But the amount of preferred shares that you have referred to represent all of the preferred shares that you or your family received in 1927?

A. So far as I am concerned, it does. I don't know—some of my family may have disposed of part of theirs.

Q. To what extent did you receive them in the first instance? To the extent of the figures you have just given me.

A. I received $50,000.00, yes.

Q. And some other members of your family received an aggregate of somewhat less an amount?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you please describe the amount of your holdings in the common stock of National Radiator Corporation?

A. I have today in the neighborhood of 60,000 shares.

Q. As your family shares other than yours?

A. Yes.

Q. To a large extent?

A. Well, they probably hold jointly, I should say, ten or twelve thousand shares. I am not prepared to say the exact amount.

[fol. 623] Q. Round figures would be satisfactory.

A. Yes.

Mr. Palley:

Q. Mr. Waters, when for the first time was the matter of the reorganization of the National Radiator Company first taken up?

A. The reorganization of the National Radiator Company or Corporation?

Q. The corporation.

A. Oh, I presume that was in the latter part of 1930 it was discussed.

Q. And who participated in that discussion?

A. Well, some of the bankers who were interested.

Q. Well, particularly, which bankers?

A. The Bankers Trust Company. They were largely interested.

Q. And what other bankers, if any?

A. Seligman & Company. They were largely interested.

Q. And was this particular plan discussed or considered before the default in the payment of interest?

A. No, not this plan. This plan was all promulgated afterwards, quite some time afterwards.

Q. But substantially a plan like this was considered? Is that right?

A. No.

Q. Well, now, was there any conclusion reached prior to February 1, 1931, that the company should be reorganized?

[fol. 624] A. It was discussed quite a number of times but just when or to what extent I can't recall at this date.

Q. Now, before February 1, 1931, when the installment of interest became due, was it at that time decided that the company would be reorganized?

A. No.

Q. When you sent out the notice on February 2, 1931, that is in evidence here as Exhibit 1, didn't you know at that time the company would be reorganized?

A. Well, it is possible no doubt there had been discussions to that effect.

Q. Did you consult with the Bankers Trust Company prior to default in the payment of interest.

A. Consult them with reference to what?

Q. That there would be a default in the payment of interest?

A. I presume so.

Q. Don't you know whether you did or not?

A. Well, I rather apprehend we did, but I can't just recall what conversation there might have been.

Q. Did they acquiesce in default of payment of interest?

A. I presume so, yes.

Q. And prior to October 1, 1931, was there an agreement they would act as depository under a reorganization plan?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Who is Mr. Cornell?

A. Mr. Cornell is president of the Cornell, Linder & Company who are engineers and make a specialty of assisting in reorganization of companies under similar conditions.

[fol. 625] Q. Who suggested his name as a member of the reorganization committee?

A. I am not prepared to say who that was.

Q. What is your best recollection in the matter?

A. I really wouldn't be able to say who.

Q. Would you say the Bankers Trust Company suggested his name?

A. No, I wouldn't say so.

Q. Was he ever affiliated with the Bankers Trust Company?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Now, the plan was declared operative on September 16, 1931. Is that correct, Mr. Waters?

A. That is all a matter of record. I can't say.

Q. The record shows the plan was declared operative on September 15th or 16th, 1931.

A. That must be correct.

Q. Was any demand made by your committee, by yourself and fellow complainants, for the payment of interest which became due on February 1st and August 1st, 1931?

A. I am not prepared to say but I presume so.

Q. Was there anything agreed between the company and the committee that the interest would not be paid on demand? Was there a demand made upon the company for the payment of interest, Mr. Waters, prior to the bringing of this suit and the receivership?

A. I am not prepared to say whether there was or was not.

Q. Weren't you consulted in the matter?

A. I may have been.

[fol. 626] Q. Don't you recall?

A. Whether there was a demand made for the payment of the interest?

Q. Yes.

A. I presume there was.

Q. Upon whom was this demand made?

A. I think that you will find as a matter of record too. It is impossible for me to recall all these incidents. I think that, however, you will find as a matter of record.

Q. There was one demand made by the Bankers Trust Company some time around October 8, 1931? Is that correct?

A. I presume that is a matter of record too. It is impossible for me to remember all these dates.

Q. You know there was a suit started in New York County City Court, New York State, to recover interest coupons? That is, the action was brought against your company. Is that correct?

A. I believe there was.

Q. And you signed an answer in that case, didn't you, Mr. Waters?

A. Presumably did.

Q. And didn't you request the Bankers Trust Company after that suit was started to make demand upon your company for the payment of the interest?

A. I, personally? I would say no.

Q. Let me show you a copy of a letter sent to your committee by the Bankers Trust Company, and see if this will refresh your recollection.

A. Well, if it is a matter of record, I should say that is all that is required. You directed this to me personally.

[fol. 627] Q. This is a copy of a letter from the Bankers Trust Company to your committee.

A. I should say that anything that is a matter of record such as that is is better evidence than anything I might tell you from memory.

Mr. Palley: Will you concede, Mr. Teall, these are copies of letters sent and evchanged between the committee and the Bankers Trust Company and Chairman Wilcox?

Mr. Teall: These are no communications between Mr. Waters as president of the company and the Bankers Trust Company but between the complainants in this suit and Bankers Trust Company, and I suggest to save time and also for competence you should introduce in evidence those whole papers.

Mr. Palley: Papers on appeal in a case which was brought by Rae Berger against the National Radiator Corporation in the City Court in the City of New York and which was appealed on order of that court to Supreme Court, Appellate Term, First Department, and these are papers on appeal.

The Court: Very well.

(Paper marked Arzt and Ramsey Exhibit No. 3.)

Q. Now, Mr. Waters, is it not a fact that request was [fol. 628] made to the Bankers Trust Company to institute suit in this court for the recovery of interest coupons for the periods of February 1st and August 1st, for the purpose of using same as a defense in the Berger action?

Mr. Teall: If the Court please, I think that is going too far in this proceeding. I object.

Mr. Palley: It shows collusion in this case and if there is collusion, your Honor cannot either confirm the order of sale or confirm the reorganization plan.

The Court: I do not see the effect of that now.

Mr. Palley: The Bankers Trust Company is an intervening party.

Mr. Teall: Whether their motives were to have a defense to the Berger suit or whether their motives were to get their money, or as much as they could get, seems to me immaterial. These judgments have been entered of record and I submit it is going too far afield to inquire into this Berger suit in New York.

Mr. Palley: I have the right to prove the facts which would show there has been collusion in this suit and, therefore, this Court has no jurisdiction.

[fol. 629] Q. (Question read.)

A. That also I presume is a matter of record and was done, whatever it was, on the advice of our attorneys.

Q. But if the fact, Mr. Waters, is that that judgment was used as a defense in that action, then it was done for that purpose? Is that correct?

A. I am not prepared to say that. I presume that was the necessary course of procedure and, if it was, we followed it, but I am not competent to act in matters of that kind. Those are matters for the attorneys to handle.

Q. The Bankers Trust Company was very friendly in this entire matter, was it not?

A. Not wholly so.

Q. They were in favor of the reorganization plan, were they not?

A. To a degree.

Q. But as to the plan as finally formulated and obtaining the plan and agreement, were they not acceptable to that plan—finally?

A. Finally, I presume they were.

Q. And that was some time in February, 1931?

A. If it is so recorded, it is correct.

Q. And after that coordinated and cooperated with your committee in trying to put this plan into effect?

A. I wouldn't say it was a whole-hearted co-operation. That happened so. It was largely through interest of our own organization and other friends who solicited bondholders and stockholders to come in has succeeded in securing about ninety-six per cent.

[fol. 630] Q. They were the depositories for these other securities.

A. Yes, naturally, and trustees for the bonds.

Q. And the suits instituted in this court, one for the recovery of the interest and the other for the recovery of the principal on the bonds, were instituted at the request of your committee?

A. If it is so recorded. I am not prepared to say.

Q. Who handled these matters between the Bankers Trust Company and your committee?

A. That would be handled by our committee under the advice of our attorneys.

Q. Did you have a conference with any members of the Bankers Trust Company—any of the officials?

A. With regard to what?

Q. With regard to the plan?

A. Yes.

Q. And did they at that conference finally approve that plan?

A. I would say not. Not at one conference.

Q. Now, prior to the bringing of this suit in which the receivers were appointed, was there any discussions at which you were present, discussions at which the other members of the reorganization committee were present?

A. Prior to the bringing of the suit in the Pittsburgh court?

Q. Yes. The suit in which you are one of the complainants.

A. I presume there was some discussion.

Q. Well, were you present at any conferences?

[fol. 631] A. I have heard matters of that kind discussed.

Q. Will you answer my question, Mr. Waters? Were you present at any conferences at which the matter was discussed?

A. I presume. In fact, I would say I have been present at conferences when these matters were discussed.

Q. Who else was present at the conferences?

A. I couldn't say.

Q. Was any representative of the Bankers Trust Company present?

A. I don't think so. I don't think there was ever any representative of the Bankers Trust Company present.

Q. When you were present in what capacity were you present—as an officer of the National Radiator Corporation or a member of the Reorganization Committee or both capacities?

A. I would say as a member of the Committee.

Q. Was anybody representating the corporation?

A. I represented the corporation. If there was any representation needed, I was there to represent it, yes.

Q. At the time the Committee announced the adoption of the plan you were present at that meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. And you accepted that plan in behalf of your company? Is that correct?

A. Not on behalf of the company; on behalf of the security holders.

Q. And also on behalf of the company?

[fol. 632] A. I wouldn't say the company. That was out of the hands of the company.

Q. But the company was agreeable to the plan as put through?

A. There was no objection. In fact, they were quite favorable to it.

Q. And then it was agreed this suit would be started? Is that right?

A. Just when that was agreed upon I am unable to say.

Q. That was agreed some time before October 5, 1931, when the bill was filed. Is that correct?

A. I would say so, yes.

Q. And the reason for filing this bill was because certain bondholders had started suit upon their coupons? Is that correct?

A. I don't know it is correct but I presume it would be.

Q. Did you read the Bill of Complaint in this cause?

A. Well, if it is a matter of record, I don't believe it would be necessary for me to discuss it further.

Q. Don't you know as a matter of personal recollection whether that is so or not?

A. If you had attended as many meetings of our committee and various meetings, I don't believe you would be able to pretend to give the dates of them on the witness stand.

Q. Where was this last conference at which it was finally decided to bring this suit—where was that held—in New York or Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh or Johnstown, or where?

[fol. 633] A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. Were you present at the time when it was decided that the Reorganization Committee make demand upon the corporation for the payment of interest?

A. I would have to refer to the records to tell you.

Q. Is there any record in court here that would help you to refresh your recollection?

A. I presume there might be a minute.

Q. Then will you please look at the records and refresh your recollection on that point?

A. I don't have any records here.

Q. Is there a set of minutes of the Reorganization Committee meetings?

A. Yes, there were minutes kept.

Q. Are they in court?
A. I don't think so.

Mr. Palley: May I offer them in evidence? I offer them in evidence and ask that copies of those minutes be produced for the record.

The Witness: I think the minutes you are asking for are the National Radiator Corporation minutes.

The Court: Why didn't you give them notice to produce it in a timely way?

Mr. Teall: Everything that was requested on behalf of counsel was here in court.

[fol. 634] Mr. Palley: Your Honor, I didn't know there were minutes kept of the proceedings of the Committee. I learn now for the first time that there were. I learn now for the first time this witness could answer my questions that are asked him if those minutes were here. This Committee comes in and asks for approval of its plan. I say the minutes conducted by them on their plan and the promotion of that plan and the acquisition of bonds for that purpose are essential, and if I offer them carte blanche, sight unseen, I am taking the chance, not them, and I ask they be produced for the record.

The Court: They may be relevant or entirely irrelevant and immaterial in so far as any issue involved here is concerned, and it is a new practice with me to offer something that is not in sight at all or for consideration at all. They certainly need to be proven as the minutes by somebody before they can be received.

The Witness: I might say this: our Committee meetings were invariably held in the office of our attorney. Practically everything that was determined required a legal decision, and I would say that there were not complete minutes kept of these meetings at all times; simply memoranda, and the attorneys proceeded to do whatever was decided upon at that meeting.

[fol. 635] Mr. Palley: Will your Honor rule on my decision?

The Court: You undertook to offer certain minutes which were not produced and not identified in any way. I say you cannot do that. I sustain an objection to that if it was made, and I understood it to be made.

(Discussion off the record.)

The Court: It appears that there are minutes of the meetings, whether complete or not, and we will give them a reasonable opportunity to examine them. We will continue the hearing, until tomorrow morning.

(Adjournment taken until Friday, August 19, 1932, at 10:00 o'clock A. M.)

Friday, August 19, 1932.

Morning Session

JOHN H. WATERS RESUMED

JOHN H. WATERS resumes the stand.

Direct examination (continued):

Mr. Palley: If your Honor please, I presume I may consider as a part of the record various applications made by the receivers for leave of this Court to invest surplus funds of the corporation in Government and other securities, and [fol. 636] that the report as to such investments and the applications shall be deemed as part of this proceeding.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Palley (to opposing counsel): May I have the minute book of the corporation?

Mr. Royal: Might I interject at this point, your Honor, that I rather object to having the record unnecessarily encumbered, as far as it affects me here? I am not making this record, but I do not see occasion for throwing in all this——

The Court: We will let counsel have it for purposes of argument, and we will have to regulate it in case of appeal.

Mr. Palley: I offer in evidence at this time a copy of the minutes of the National Radiator Corporation of the meeting held on January 31, 1931, marked Exhibit No. 4, Artz and Ramsey.

I wish to offer in evidence just one paragraph of the minutes of the proceedings of the Executive Committee of the National Radiator Corporation held at Johnstown, Pennsylvania, January 10, 1931; and if I may read that into the record it will probably save time: "The Secretary reported that small amounts of debentures had been bought from [fol. 637] time to time under a resolution of the committee passed at its meeting on July 14, 1930, and at this date there was an unfilled order in New York City for $5,000 principal amount to be purchased at 14¼ or better. In view of the probable re-arrangement of the corporation securities, the committee decided that no further purchases of debentures should be made for the present, and the Secretary was instructed to cancel immediately any unfilled orders."

Mr. Palley:

Q. Mr. Waters, Mr. Flershem was a representative of the banking interests on the board of directors of your company. Is that correct?

A. No, I would say he was not a representative of the banking interests; he was not so considered.

Q. Was he a stockholder of the corporation?

A. No, I don't think he had any stock.

Q. Was he a bondholder of the corporation?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And although the record does disclose that fact—I am not familiar with it—will you tell me what office or offices he held in the corporation?

A. He was chairman of the executive committee.

Q. And a director of the corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. And at whose suggestion or recommendation was he elected a director and made a member or chairman of the executive committee?

A. I believe that I was the party that recommended Mr. Flershem for that position, although I am not sure. It was discussed at different times, but as to who originally sug- [fol. 638] gested it, I don't recall. I believe, though, that I did myself.

Q. Now, prior to the meeting on January 28th, and the adjournment to January 31, 1931, had there been any conferences with any representative of the Bankers Trust Company with regard to the proceedings to be taken at that meeting?

A. I am unable to state that, whether there was or was not. When you say conferences, what do you refer to?

Q. Well, whether it was communications of any kind, written or oral, or communications by any member of the board of directors, if you personally have knowledge of it.

A. I haven't any doubt but what I conversed with them at times, but to what extent I couldn't say.

Q. Well, did you discuss with them the matter of omission of payment of interest on November 1, 1931?

A. In all probability I did.

Mr. Palley: I presume, your Honor, from time to time, if necessary, I may consider as part of this proceeding, also, any testimony taken in any other proceeding in this cause. Am I correct?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Now, was an indemnity agreement given to the Reorganization Committee when they agreed to act pursuant to the resolution of the board of directors at the meeting held on January 31?

A. Was what?

Q. Was any indemnity given—Will you kindly look at [fol. 639] this last resolution (Exhibit No. 4), and state what if anything was done pursuant thereto?

A. I know of nothing beyond the resolution as it is recited there.

Mr. Palley: Now, may I have the minutes of the meetings of the proceedings of the Reorganization Committee?

Mr. Teall: If the Court please, on leaving court yesterday afternoon we communicated with New York by telephone, and have here this morning the minutes of the meetings of the Reorganization Committee, as requested by Mr. Palley. The only way to have these papers here this morning, to be sure they would be here. was to have them brought by special messenger, which has been done at the cost of at least $50. We believe that it is only proper to ask the Court to direct Mr. Palley to file in court here, when he has the necessary information, a statement of who owns the bonds covered by the petition of Miss Artz and the dates when those bonds were acquired by the beneficial owners of them.

(No ruling made on above request.)

Mr. Hubbell:

Q. Mr. Waters, under this reorganization plan your committee was given absolute discretion to pay claims in full or of settlement either out of the funds of this defendant corporation or out of the new corporation. Now, will you tell us what your committee has done in that regard? Has it paid claims in full?

[fol. 640] Mr. Teall: If the Court please, I object to that, as immaterial, with whom the committee has settled. I don't think that has anything to do with this proceeding at all.

Mr. Hubbell: If your Honor please, here is a plan submitted as fair, which gives them the opportunity to treat creditors just as they see fit, instead of coming in as in bankruptcy or any other proceeding and treating every creditor fairly and equally; they can treat them arbitrarily, placing the money wherever it would do the most good, and leaving one creditor out without any standing in court——

The Court: What are you quoting from?

Mr. Hubbell: I am referring to page 10 to 19 of the plan, and asking him what has been done in that regard. The particular portion reads: "The Reorganization Committee shall have power, to be exercised in its absolute discretion, to consent to or arrange for the adjustment by payment, settlement or purchase of any and all claims and charges of every nature whatsoever which in the opinion of the Reorganization Committee shall be adjusted in connection with the consummation of this plan."

The Court: Go ahead and ask your question. We will overrule the objection.

[fol. 641] Q. (Question read.)

A. It would be impossible for me to say just what has been paid and what has not. The claim that you refer to, however, under advice of counsel, was one that we should not pay, hence did not pay.

Q. The one I refer to—do you mean by that the International Heater Company's claim?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, I mean——

A. Well, you referred to one and I naturally thought it was the one you were representing.

Q. You were a member of this committee from the very beginning?

A. Yes.

Q. And don't you know whether you have settled and paid claims or not?

A. Some of them I said were, and others were not, probably, for reasons due to advice of counsel. Many claims have not been settled.

Q, You say some were and some were not?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, which ones, if you can recollect, were paid in full?

A. It would be impossible for me to state here on the witness stand, without records before me.

Q. Do you have any record in court that would refresh your recollection?

A. I don't imagine so.

Q. Well, where is there any such record?

A. It would be in our office in Johnstown.

Q. The office of this Reorganization Committee is in Johnstown?

[fol. 642] A. The Reorganization Committee really has no office; we meet on call.

Q. Its records are in Johnstown?

A. With regard to the payment of claims, that is a matter that has been done on the advice of counsel by the corporation.

Q. I understood you a minute ago to say they were in Johnstown. Now, are they or are they not in Johnstown?

A. Yes, they are; I said so.

Q. And who is the person that has charge of them in Johnstown?

A. Mr. Resley.

Q. Mr. Carl Resley.

Mr. Teall: Just a minute. I don't know whether the witness knows you are talking about payment of claims by the Reorganization Committee instead of by the Receiver. That is a bit confused. I would like to have you make that plain, if you will.

Q. Mr. Waters, you have heard what Mr. Teall has said?

A. Yes.

Q. Which did you refer to, the Committee or the Receivers?

A. Well, some of these claims were settled previous by the Committee or on the advice of the Committee, previous to the time the company was placed in the hands of a receiver. After that everything was done under the direction of the Receivers.

Q. Now, as I understood it—I am trying to find out how [fol. 643] I can find out who these creditors were that were paid off by the Committee.

A. Well, that would be found out only from our records.

Q. And the records you say are in the possession of Mr. Carl Resley at Johnstown?

A. Yes.

Q. This provision to which I call your attention also provides that they can be settled in the absolute discretion of your committee, either out of the funds of this defendant corporation or the new corporation. Now, those that you paid off in full, I suppose the money was taken from the National Radiator Corporation?

A. That is what I say.

Q. Are there claims that your committee intends to pay in full out of the funds of the new corporation or out of this million and a half dollars that you get out of this——

A. I am not prepared to say they will all be paid in full. That is a matter of adjustment.

Q. Now, I call your attention to the fact that the petition states that out of all the claims of general creditors against this company not one of them has been filed under this plan. Is that true?

A. Not one has been filed under this plan?

Q. That is right. Would you like to see the petition? I call your attention to the petition, and the words, after stating how many of the various securities have been filed, "that there has not been deposited with said depositary under the plan and agreement any assignment of claim of any general creditor of National Radiator Corporation, as is [fol. 644] permitted by Article 9 of said plan"—although I do not see that Article 9 does permit it. But the question is, do you know if that fact is true, that no general creditors filed an assignment of claim to participate in this plan?

A. I don't know whether any have or not. You refer now to a claim similar to your own——

Q. No; any general creditor.

A. I am asking you that question. You mean any person holding a claim similar to yours, whether they filed an agreement to accept securities of the new corporation for their claim? That is what you mean?

Q. Yes, but I mean any general creditor. I don't mean whether you consider it similar to ours or not, I mean any general creditor.

A. I can't recall that any have. There may be, but I don't know.

Q. Now, I suppose this record at Johnstown would also show what claims have been settled or purchased by your Reorganization Committee?

A. They would.

Q. And were there some settled and purchased—settled or purchased?

A. Beg pardon?

Q. Were there some claims settled or purchased?

A. Yes.

Q. And that record is also in the possession of Mr. Resley?

A. It would be in the office, I am sure.

Q. Now, your Committee is also given discretion under this agreement to permit creditors to participate in this plan. What creditors have you permitted to participate in this plan?

[fol. 645] A. None have been refused, as far as I know.

Q. What notice have you given to them that they may participate in the plan?

A. I am unable to say whether there was any formal notice sent to the creditors on that or not.

Q. What notice have you given the International Heater Company that they can participate in this plan or whether you in your discretion have determined that they are shut out of the plan?

A. Mr. Flershem, the Chairman of the Reorganization Committee, wrote the International Heater Company advising them that they could participate in this plan.

Q. Have you a copy of the letter?

A. I have not.

Q. Is that also in Johnstown?

A. No, sir; that would be in Mr. Flershem's office.

Mr. Teall: We have them right here, Mr. Waters, the whole correspondence (handing same to witness).

A. There is quite a bit of correspondence here.

Q. Well, do you want to put all the correspondence in evidence?

Mr. Teall: I think that would be helpful.

A. This letter is dated February (blank), 1931, addressed to the International Heater Company: "This is to confirm the arrangement made with you covering your participation in the abovementioned plan of reorganization. [fol. 646] International Heater Company is the holder of the following promissory notes of National Radiator Corporation, all bearing the date December 31, 1928, and bearing interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from their date and due upon the respective dates mentioned below: Principal amount $20,000, due December 31, 1931, another $20,000 due December 31, 1932, and another $20,000 due December 31, 1933. No interest has been paid on any of said notes. The amount of the interest accrued on said notes up to August 1, 1930, is $5700. International Heater Company, in respect of said notes, will participate in the abovementioned plan of reorganization upon the same basis as the holders of the 6½ per cent debenture bonds"—I can read further, if you want me to, but I think that is enough——

Q. I would like to see from what you are reading. (Witness hands paper to counsel.) This from what you are reading does not seem to be either dated or signed. Do you know personally that any such thing was sent?

A. I know very well——

Q. Do you know personally, not from what somebody told you?

A. I know that Mr. Flershem was directed to send such a letter, and he did.

Q. Did you see him?

A. No, I didn't see him mail it.

Q. Well, do you know otherwise than from some statement of somebody else that one was sent?

A. No; his own statement to that effect.

Q. Is he in court?

A. No, he is in Europe.

[fol. 647] Q. Now, Mr. Waters, do you know whether or not any notice at all was given to the International Heater Company that a sale of this property was going to be applied for, so that we had any opportunity to appear here in court and oppose such a sale?

A. I know of no notice other than the published notice that was given in probably twelve or fifteen papers throughout the United States. Did you receive any of those notices?

Q. Wasn't that of the sale? That wasn't of the application to this Court, was it?

A. No, that was notice of the sale.

Q. Yes. Now, what I am asking you is if your committee or, so far as you know, the receivers or anybody else give this International Heater Company any notice that you were going to apply to sell out all of these assets, that we might come here to the Court and present our reasons why we thought that ought not to be done?

A. I don't know of any direct notice having been made to them.

Q. Now then, on the question of the fairness of the plan, if your committee determined that in its absolute and uncontrolled discretion a claim should not be paid, and that the holder of it should not be permitted to participate in this plan, what was that creditor to do?

A. I think the plan discloses that any creditor may participate, and your company had that opportunity.

Q. Do you think that my printed copy of this plan differs from the others? That is, is there anything about this copy [fol. 648] that I have that seems to be different from the one your own counsel has? (Handing same to witness.)

A. I wouldn't imagine that. Your company, however, had direct notice to that effect through Mr. Flershem, the Chairman of the Committee.

Q. Now, I call your attention to the language in paragraph 9 of this agreement that "In its discretion the Reorganization Committee, as provided in the plan, may arrange for the participation in the plan and under this agreement of any such claims or charges"——. Now, that is the language in the agreement, isn't it?

A. It would seem so, if you have read it correctly.

Q. Well, you read it and see if I have read it correctly.

The Court: Well, we will assume that you have.

Q. Now, is it true that all undisputed claims other than that of the International Heater Company have been paid or will be paid in full?

A. I am unable to say.

Q. You don't know of any that are to be not paid in full?

A. Yes, there are a number of disputed claims.

Q. I mean undisputed claims. Do you know of any undisputed claim that is not to be paid?

A. No, I don't recall any.

Mr. Teall: Well, all the debentures are undisputed claims.

[fol. 649] Mr. Hubbell: Of general creditors.

Mr. Teall: Well, they are general creditors, too. There is no mortgage.

Q. Well, other than the debentures then?

A. I do not.

Q. Now in the letters that you sent out, they state that it was the design to give fair treatment to all classes of securities. Was the question of claims outside of securities discussed, or was it the intention not to give fair treatment to those?

A. Naturally they were discussed, and it is in evidence, or at least I have so stated, that many of them have been paid.

Q. Now, what was the reason that this International Heater Company is the only general claim that is in this situation, not to be paid?

A. I am not prepared to say that it is the only one. On advice of counsel we were instructed not to pay that claim, that the only way that they could participate would be the same as the security holders, the bondholders.

Q. Now, isn't the real reason it was not to be paid that you were already in a controversy with the International Heater Company and in settlement of that we had already scaled down our claim about fifty per cent?

A. There was no controversy with the International Heater Company, so far as I recall, after final settlement was made with them, and I wouldn't call that a controversy previous to that time; it was just a matter of arriving at [fol. 650] some equitable basis for a settlement. Your company, as I recall, owned about one-third of the capital of these merged companies—or, if I recall correctly, two-thirds—and the stock was purchased. It wasn't a purchase of merchandise, as you stated yesterday; a big percentage of it was equipment and accounts, and all that sort of thing; it wasn't merchandise that was immediately turned into cash. I am not prepared to say what percentage, but I think a very large percentage of that was equipment, which had no marketable value.

Q. Let us go into that and see if we don't agree more exactly. The Lincoln Radiator Company was situated at Utica?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was a corporation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. A very profitable corporation—had shown profits from the very month it was organized. Is that your understanding?

A. I don't recall that; I had nothing to do with that.

Q. Do you think it was unprofitable?

A. I don't know that the profits were very great. In fact, I wasn't connected with it and had no knowledge of what they were doing.

Q. Well, you have already just told us that the National Radiator Company owned two-thirds of this stock——

A. No, no, not the National Radiator Company. That was the Utica Heater Company and the Continental Heater Company, and those companies were merged into the [fol. 651] National Radiator Corporation, and shortly after that there was an effort made by the Utica Heater Company—or the International—to either buy the National Radiator Corporation's interest or we buy theirs, so there was a merger along that line.

Q. Then after the merger of these plants the National Radiator Corporation owned two-thirds of the stock of the Utica?

A. I believe that is the proportion.

Q. And the International Heater Company owned one-third?

A. I believe that is correct.

Q. And you as the owners of two-thirds determined or decided to move that plant from Utica into one of the plants of the National Radiator Company at Tonawanda. Is that right?

A. That is correct, after we were unable to come to anything like a favorable lease with the Utica Heater Company, or the International; their demands were so excessive we couldn't agree to them.

Q. And you, in control of the board of directors, decided to move the plant to Tonawanda?

A. We did.

Q. That was against the advice of the disinterested manager of the Lincoln Radiator Company, who was not interested in either company, was he?

A. I am not prepared to say that it was; and I wouldn't consider that he was competent to judge.

Q. Well, the manager who had carried on the company successfully you feel was not competent to judge?

[fol. 652] The Court: Aren't we getting a little wide of the mark here?

Mr. Hubbell: Very well, your Honor, I will shorten it up.

Q. To make it brief, Mr. Waters, in order to get something for our stock, we sold out for these notes. Is that right?

A. In order to get something—what do you mean by that?

Q. Well, in order to get payment for our stock—some payment for it?

A. Yes; in addition to that there was quite an amount of equipment that the Lincoln Company had installed in the Utica plant, the International Heater Company, that was left there, for which they made no payment whatsoever, very valuable.

Q. Now, as to the question of whether this was merchandise or not, the Lincoln Radiator Company owned no real estate, did it?

A. No.

Q. Most of its equipment was left in the plant at Utica when it moved?

A. No; a great deal was left there, but all the equipment for manufacturing radiators and boilers, loose equipment, was moved. Cupolas and floor ovens and things of that kind that Utica had installed there were left, and practically no allowance made for them——

Q. That is what I say, they were left?

A. The Lincoln Radiator Company fared very well on that.

[fol. 653] Q. That is what I say. They were left at Utica, they were not moved to Tonawanda?

A. No; but that was a small part of the equipment. The machinery and the patterns and flasks, all of the loose material which was of great value—or of value—was moved to North Tonawanda.

Q. And these accounts receivable that you spoke of as turned over, were accounts receivable for merchandise sold?

A. Yes.

Q. And merchandise that was unsold was moved to Tonawanda or sold and changed into bills receivable?

A. Yes.

Q. Or accounts receivable. Now, did you also sell the Utica Heater Company plant, one of the plants of this merger?

A. Yes.

Q. How much did you get for that?

A. I am unable to say.

Mr. Teall: If the Court please, I object to this, as irrelevant. It is taking us away off.

Mr. Hubbell: If the Court please, the point of that is we are contending here these plants should be sold separately. Now, I desire to show that this one plant, which was a relatively small plant, was sold for about as much as this whole organization of these larger plants, if you count out this cash and equivalent of cash.

[fol. 654] Mr. Teall: That was years ago.

Mr. Hubbell: Not years ago.

Mr. Teall: 1928.

The Court: Well, hurry it along, it doesn't seem to be material to this case you have here.

A. Do you want an answer to that?

Q. Yes.

A. I am unable to say the amount it was sold for. It was sold, however, when plants were in demand.

Q. Do you know approximately?

A. I think it was around $700,000.

Q. And that sale did not include the Utica smokeless boiler and its patents, did it?

A. No.

Q. And it did not include the merchandise either, did it?

A. Yes, it included a considerable amount of merchandise, I believe. The hot air furnace business was taken over entirely, the merchandise, equipment, and so forth.

Q. And since that time have you sold other plants separately?

A. I think not. We have been trying for three years to sell, but have not been able to get an offer from anyone.

Q. You have not sold the Niagara plant?

A. No.

[fol. 655] Q. Mr. Waters, who were the board of directors at the time the management decided—the management requested you to become a reorganization committee, you and your associates?

A. Well, it was a large board; I couldn't name them all from memory.

Q. How many were there?

A. I think there were fifteen at that time.

Q. Fifteen?

A. Fifteen, I believe. Probably Mr. Resley has a list of that—Mr. Resley has a list of members.

Q. Is Mr. Resley here?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Cornell a member—a director?

A. No.

Q. All of these papers repeat that the management requested you to act as a committee. Whom does that mean?

A. Well, that means the board of directors and the management, the executive committee.

Q. Both the directors and the executive committee, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. You were a director, were you?

A. Yes.

Q. And your son was a director?

A. Yes.

Q. Any of the rest of your family directors?

A. My brother.

Q. Now, was this the only possible plan besides liquidation?

A. We knew of no other at the time. We discussed it [fol. 656] at great length and for quite some time, but could arrive at no other conclusion that was possible. We were suffering, and the payment of the bond interest would very soon liquidate the company itself if we continued to pay it.

Q. If the creditors had liquidated the company, would the stockholders have received anything?

A. Not a dollar.

Q. This agreement provides that $90,902 to be paid by the common stockholders, if they take warrants, shall be paid to your Reorganization Committee. What becomes of that?

A. I think you will find that is shares, Mr. Hubbell, and not dollars. Does that not refer to shares and not dollars?

Q. Well, it provides for each share, if they want a warrant, they shall pay into your Reorganization Committee one dollar, which would mean $90,902.

A. That gives the common stockholders the option to subscribe for that.

Q. Yes; and if they do, and if they pay to your committee—if each one does subscribe, takes his warrant and pays, it would make a total of $90,902. Now, what becomes of that money?

A. That goes into the company.

Q. What?

A. That is an asset of the new company.

Q. The new company?

A. Yes.

Q. Not the old?

A. No.

Q. In other words, the creditors of the old company get no benefit from that?

[fol. 657] A. No.

Q. Now, this agreement provides that your committee, again in its discretion, shall fix its own compensation and shall pay the Bankers Trust Company and its counsel, and various other things. Have those amounts been fixed?

A. Not yet.

Q. Now, it says in this agreement, page 9, that that can be taken out of the sales—of the old company in some way, out of the defendant. Now, is it your intention to pay out of this sales price the Bankers Trust Company for bringing this suit, and its counsel, and to pay your committee out of this purchase price of the property?

A. It stipulates in the order for sale that all debts of the company will be paid by the new organization.

Q. Well, this agreement says it can be paid out of the old. Now, has that been definitely decided by your committee, that you are not going to make any claim on this purchase price?

A. That agreement was prepared before the company was in the hands of a receiver. And if a reorganization had been effected without a receiver's sale, I presume that is the way it would have been done.

Q. Now, it provides that you have a lien on the assets for your payment. What do you understand that lien is on now?

A. You mean for this committee?

Q. Yes, for the expenses of the committee and for paying the Bankers Trust Company and its counsel, and any other expenses that your committee decides you will pay. [fol. 658] A. I think you will find in the agreement that the committee has the right, if they so elect, to pay or to call upon the security holders for payment of these expenses.

Q. What I refer to, Mr. Waters, is this statement that all of these expenses to which I have referred shall be paid by the corporation or be assumed and paid by the new company. Now, I want to know which you are going to do? Are you going to take it out of this purchase price or are you going to have the new company pay it?

Mr. Bennett: What part are you reading from, Mr. Hubbell?

Mr. Hubbell: At the end of paragraph 9, on page 20.

A. Now, what is the question?

Q. These expenses of the committee and the Bankers Trust Company and its counsel, and all these other expenses, for advertising and printing, and legal expenses, and various other things, your Reorganization Committee is given absolute power to pay and given power to take it either out of the National Radiator Corporation or the new company. Now, I am asking you which you are going to do?

A. In the event of the same being confirmed, I would say that the expenses you refer to will be paid out of the assets of the new corporation.

Q. Has your committee decided that, or are you just giving us your guess on what you think ought to be done? [fol. 659] A. No, I am taking it from the statement set forth in the Reorganization Committee's reference to that, that that is the way it will be done.

Q. At any rate, you think personally that is the fair thing to do, don't you?

A. Yes.

Q. Although, of course, your committee under this agreement is given absolute discretion to modify it in any way you see fit, and at any time. That is so too, isn't it?

A. Just as it sets forth.

Q. Now, in a circular attached to this petition sent out to induce the security holders to deposit their securities, you and your associates say the corporation's present management assumed control of its affairs February 1, 1930. What does that mean?

A. Just what it says.

Q. Well, you had been chairman of the board right straight along, hadn't you, from the organization of the committee?

A. I was chairman of the board but not supposed to be active in the management.

Q. What change was there in the management that took place on February 1, 1930?

—. ——.

Q. Would you mind speaking a little louder? We can't hear you.

A. Mr. Norris, the man who had been selected to act as president and be the active president, and in the management of the affairs of the company—that was the only condition in which I would assume the office of chairman—took sick immediately before the consolidation was effected, and [fol. 660] while he made a desperate effort to function, he was in the hospital and confined to his home and hotel, he wasn't able to act, and we were without a president during that period, and he finally resigned, I think——

—. ——.

A. I say Mr. Norris resigned on or about March, 1928, and we were without a president for a considerable period, and Mr. Pierce was brought in to act in that capacity.

Q. That is, this change, Mr. Norris going out, was away back in 1928?

A. Yes.

Q. What I am trying to find out is, what change took place in 1930, when you tell these bondholders——

A. That is when Mr. Pierce, if I recall correctly, was brought into the organization as president, Mr. Flershem as chairman of the board, and they were active in charge of the business there of the corporation from that on, for the period stated there.

Q. This says, "This is the same management which has had active charge of the old National Radiator Company at Johnstown?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Flershem never had anything to do with the National Radiator Company at Johnstown?

A. No.

Q. So it can't mean that?

A. Not wholly so, no.

Q. And Mr. Grant Pierce was an American Radiator Company man, wasn't he?

A. Yes.

Q. So he didn't have anything to do with the National—— [fol. 661] A. What date is that you are referring to?

Q. February 1, 1930. Would you like to look at the whole statement?

A. Well, that refers to the National Radiator Company. This is the National Radiator Corporation. That is the old company that was located at Johnstown, and not the Corporation. That refers to the National Radiator Company, an organization which had nothing to do with the present corporation.

Mr. Hubbell: For the purpose of the record, I am referring to Schedule "E".

Q. I understand that. But what I am trying to find out—You are sending out a letter to these security holders to induce them to deposit their securities, and you have sent them statements as to how bad the company has been in the past, that is, as to its losses. Now, you say the present management assumed control of its affairs February 1, 1930.

A. Yes.

Q. Now, who was it that came into the company February 1, 1930?

A. Well, Mr. Hubbell, that would refer particularly to the management of the old National Radiator Company, and not the National Radiator Corporation. The National Radiator Corporation was a consolidation of some six different companies, and took the name of National Radiator Corporation. The company with which I was identified, and my associates, in Johnstown, before that consolidation, was known as the National Radiator Company, and that refers to the people who had charge of the old National Radiator Company, and so states.

[fol. 662] Q. I understand perfectly what the old National Radiator Corporation was——

A. No, no, that is "Company."

Q. Well, maybe not perfectly but still enough for our purposes. Now then, the ones connected with the old National Radiator Corporation, its principal officers had been the officers of this new corporation since its organization, hadn't they?

A. Not active in the management of it, however, as I explained to you.

Q. Why didn't you put Mr. Resley, for instance, who was one of your officers of the old National Radiator Company—You could have made him president of the Lincoln Radiator Company, couldn't you?

A. Why did we?

Q. No, not why did you, but did you?

A. I rather think we did.

Q. And he was active in the old National Radiator Corporation?

A. Old National Radiator Company—Please make that distinction there.

Q. Excuse me. And he became an officer and active in the management of the National Radiator Corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were the head of the old National Radiator Company?

A. Yes.

Q. And you became the chairman of the board of directors of the new National Radiator Corporation?

A. I did.

[fol. 663] Q. Mr. Norris was practically to try to assist you, as a younger man, but a subordinate. Isn't that true?

A. I was not to be in active charge of the company's affairs, and that was the only condition on which I accepted the office of chairman of the board, that I would not be called upon to look after the details and the general business of the company; and when Mr. Norris, as I stated before, became ill and was not able to carry it out, the company in effect drifted for a matter of about six months, until Mr. Pierce came in.

Q. Now, your son Robert Waters, one of the receivers, was active in the management of the National Radiator Company?

A. Yes.

Q. And he became executive vice president of the National Radiator Corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. And he didn't become that on February 1, 1930, but became that on the merger, didn't he, or shortly after?

A. I can't recall just when he became so.

Q. Well, it was long before February 1, 1930?

A. Well, it probably was.

Mr. Teall: If the Court please, I would like to object to further testimony along this line. I don't see it has any pertinency at all to the fairness of the reorganization plan, which is the matter to which we are now addressing our[fol. 664] selves. I object to it, as irrelevant and immaterial. The only purpose of my objection is to save the time of all concerned.

Mr. Hubbell: I don't expect it will, if your Honor please. My purpose in calling attention to it is that a great deal is said about ninety-six per cent of these securities are in; I am trying to show how they got in, by statements and representations of this sort, that cannot be justified on the stand.

The Court: Well, such weight as is to be given to them is, of course, to be considered; but the fact itself, speaks, doesn't it? You have gone all over that phase now.

Q. How many of these debentures did you personally own, Mr. Waters?

A. Around $1,000,000; I presume somewhat in excess of that. I don't recall the exact amount, but it was slightly in excess of a million dollars.

Q. Have they been deposited under the plan?

A. Yes.

Q. And has your preferred stock been deposited under the plan?

A. It has.

Q. And your common stock?

A. Not yet.

Q. Now, I notice, under this plan that anybody can become a party to this arrangement, this plan, and not deposit their securities. Do you know of anybody that has become such a party and has not deposited their securities? [fol. 665] A. Can become a party to the plan and not deposit their securities?

Q. Yes. Would you like to see that provision? It is in paragraph 3, on page 14: "The Reorganization Committee may, in its absolute discretion, permit the holder of any debenture and/or shares of preferred stock and/or common stock of the corporation and/or any creditor of the corporation to become a party to the plan of this agreement, without the actual deposit of their securities or claim." Now, do you know of anybody that has done that?

A. I do not. I don't think anyone has been given that permission. I presume that referred to the fact there might be some security holders who were not able to produce their securities at the time but declared their intention of depositing them. There were some security holders in Europe, some in Canada.

Q. Now, while the company defaulted on the interest on its debentures when it had ample funds, it continued to pay dividends on the preferred stock after it had no earnings, didn't it?

A. No, I don't think there were any dividends paid after there were no earnings.

Q. Are you sure about that?

A. I said I didn't think so.

Q. They were to be continued to be paid until August, 1928—or '29, is it?

A. I might say, in explanation of that, the radiator business is a seasonable business, and for the first six months or seven months of the year it is very seldom any money is made, the money is made in the afterpart of the year, and many companies pay their obligations out of previous [fol. 666] earnings or cumulative assets.

Q. A company in this business may run along during all of the first months of the year, up to September, showing a constant loss, and by the end of the year make a very large profit?

A. Yes.

Q. That has frequently happened in years past?

A. Yes. It has not been the case in the last two or three years.

Q. Well, this wasn't a favorable time to conduct a sale, was it—just before this boom period in the plants?

Mr. Teall: Boom period, did you say?

Mr. Hubbell: Relatively.

Q. But that is so in normal times, isn't it, Mr. Waters?

A. I will make this statement: That the committee had nothing to do with setting the date of the sale.

Q. You say, had nothing to do. You were the plaintiffs in the suit, weren't you?

A. I think the Court directed the sale.

Q. But the Court doesn't do it without the application of somebody?

Mr. Teall: If the Court please, I object to this arguing.

The Court: Yes, that gets us nowhere except to occupy time.

[fol. 667] Mr. Hubbell: I haven't any desire to occupy time, if your Honor please, but there are certain facts I would like to have on the record.

The Court: Well, it is on the record, I imagine, time and time again.

Q. Does any corporation of which you are a stockholder own stock or debenture in the National Radiator Corporation?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. It appears in the year 1928 that, from this plan in evidence, the company had a loss of $1,343,491. Is that right?

A. If that is taken from the books, it is correct, yes; and I presume it is.

Q. And it also appears that you continued to pay dividends until August 1, 1928. Now, what I was getting at was whether you desire to offer any explanation of that, and you have given it, but if there is any further correction counsel wants made——

Mr. Bennett: Simply the date.

Mr. Hubbell: In view of the fact your Honor does not desire me to take any more time, I will leave a lot I desired to ask.

The Court: Do not misunderstand me. I do not want you continually to be going over matters which already appear on the record. I do not want to be unreasonable [fol. 668] in my curtailment at all, but I want you also to make as much speed as you can conveniently.

Mr. Hubbell: I appreciate also that other counsel desire to be heard.

Mr. Royall:

Q. Mr. Waters. you said in answer to a question or two put by Mr. Hubbell that you knew of no notice having been given to the International Heater Company of the making of the application herein for the decree of sale. You so testified, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know of any such notice having been given to any creditor of any class or type of the defendant corporation, of that application?

A. I do not know of any notice other than those published in the papers.

Q. What notices do you refer to as published in the papers—notices that were given after the decree of sale was made?

A. Yes.

Q. I am not talking about notices given after the decree of sale was made; I am talking about notices before the decree of sale was made, of the intention to come to this court to obtain such decree.

A. I will have to ask our attorney if such a notice was published.

Mr. Royall: Do you wish to make a statement whether you gave a notice to anybody, Mr. Teall, of the application on which the decree is based?

[fol. 669] Mr. Teall: I do not wish to make any statement. We published a notice of the sale all over the country.

Mr. Royall: I am not talking about that. I wish to have the record show what I understand to be the fact: that no notice whatsoever was given to anybody of the application that was made in this court for the obtaining of the so-called final decree of sale.

Mr. Hubbell: I think, if your Honor please, I would like to state what actually happened with me in that regard. I had asked the firm of Alter, Wright & Barron, who I understand is a prominent local firm, to keep watch of this and give me any notice there was of any application to sell this property, so that we could come here, and be here, and the first that I heard of it was that someone connected with my clients said that I couldn't be watching very carefully, that they understood there was a proceeding, and I immediately communicated with Mr. Wright, and he said he would find out about it, and told me I had better come on here directly, and found out there had been a hearing and it was all over; and I was supposed to be representing my client, and had never known a thing about it. So that I feel sure no notice was given to Mr. Royall, or to me, or to the International Heater Company, or anybody else.

[fol. 670] Mr. Teall: Well, whatever the facts are, we as much as anyone want them to appear clearly on the record. Notice of the hearing was given to every person who was a party to the record. No notice of that hearing was mailed to the many, many persons who were not parties to the record, and I know of no requirement why it should have been done. There has been all the way through this proceeding, as I think my friends will agree, a very considerable newspaper publicity in financial papers and papers of general circulation, about this receivership.

(Informal discussion off the record.)

Q. You don't know of any notice? You have answered my question, have you?

A. I believe I answered that.

Q. And you said you didn't know of any such notice?

A. No.

Mr. Royall: Upon this subject of notice, I think I shall state upon the record my client's relationship to this, and my own, upon the subject of notice. I was retained by the First National Bank of Cincinnati even before the receivership, soon after the promulgation of the plan. And I called upon the attorneys for the Reorganization Committee—Mr. Bennett—and told him that we represented the First National Bank of Cincinnati. Conferences followed, some of which my client, Mr. Rowe, the president of the bank, sat [fol. 671] in, some of which Mr. Waters sat in, and some of which Mr. Bennett sat in, in various places, some in Cincinnati and some in New York, upon this whole subject matter.

Mr. Rowe urged that the plan, from his point of view, was conceived because the company's records showed nothing but losses and should be liquidated, and that the bondholders had better take their licking then, rather than wait a little while and get a worse one, and urged that view. I asked the gentlemen that when the time came that they would apply for receivership, that they should let me know. They did let me know that they had obtained the receivership. I then had an intervening petition, the one which is on file here, verified back in December of last year or January of this year—filed here to intervene. Whereupon I called upon Mr. Bennett and told him that I had this intervening petition, that this whole thing boiled down to one proposition, and that was a question of upset price, that the representatives of a great majority—presumably the majority—wanted the reorganization to go through, depending upon the fairness with which dissenters would be treated with respect to upset price; that rather than go down to Pittsburgh and have hearings upon upset price, I would rather talk it over man to man with them and consider the figures fairly, and arrive at what seemed like a reasonable thing. And I told him I would withhold, and I did withhold, the filing of my intervening petition while those discussions were going on. Those discussions were [fol. 672] delayed and delayed and delayed, because of the absence of Mr. Cornell, and this and that, and finally we did have a conference, when Mr. Bennett said, "Well, there is no use our talking any more." I said, "There is no use our talking any more, we can't get anywhere talking about it; there is nothing for me to do but file my intervening petition." Within a day or two I sent down the intervening petition to my associates, Baker & Watts, whom I had then retained for that purpose, and found that they were about to apply—the receivers and the other side, the Reorganization Committee, were about to apply for a final decree of sale. Our intervening petition, or return of the application, opposing our intervention, if your Honor will remember, was made returnable this very day this application was made by them. Although they knew all the while that we wanted to be here, we had no opportunity given to us——

Mr. Teall: All the way through you were informed.

Mr. Royall: We would not have been informed; we would have been in the same position Mr. Hubbell found himself in——

The Court: I think there is too much controversy. If it is not an accepted statement, I think you had better not have it in the record in this way. I know, as a matter of fact, you were heard, of course, in the matter fully, which is perhaps one of the main features here.

[fol. 673] Mr. Royall: By accident we were here and had that hearing in that way, at the last moment.

Mr. Teall: I do not want to get into a dispute about this matter——

The Court: It is a little irregular; and I am willing you put a stipulation in, but I do not want controverted matter put in in that way.

Mr. Bennett: The challenge to my integrity I think warrants my saying at least this: As soon as Mr. Teall and I arranged the time of hearing, at which the hearing would be brought up, I immediately got in touch with Mr. Teall and reminded him of our agreement to notify Mr. Royall of such hearing, and I understood such notice was given to counsel of record here.

Mr. Teall: I did; I called Mr. Baker as soon as the day for this hearing was fixed, pursuant to an oral understanding with Mr. Baker; I called him and notified him of the date, and he thanked me for my courtesy in doing so, although he was not at that time a party to the record.

The Court: Well, let us get on.

Mr. Royall:

Q. Mr. Waters, I call your attention to the circular letter [fol. 674] of your Committee, of March 18, 1931, addressed to the Security Holders of the National Radiator Corporation, which may be identified as Schedule "E" attached to the petition for the approval of the plan, and I direct your attention to these words: "During 1931 * * * the management has developed new and improved products of great promise, including among others steel boilers." Was that a correct representation?

A. It was.

Q. Are the steel boilers referred to there the product of the Steel Boiler Company, which has been testified to in the previous hearings in this matter?

A. They are.

Mr. Palley:

Q. As I understand it, under the reorganization plan, the common stock of the new corporation is valued at $20. Is that correct?

A. Not at that time.

Q. I mean at the present time, under the plan.

A. No.

Q. Well, if a person, common stockholder, wanted to convert one of his warrants into common stock of the new company, he would be required to pay $20 to the new company. Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That would put a valuation of $20 per share upon the common stock of the new company, wouldn't it?

A. I would hardly think so.

Mr. Palley: I wish to offer in evidence letter which says: "Letter to be written by Mr. Erpf," dated March blank, [fol. 675] 1931, marked Exhibit No. 5, Arzt and Ramsey.

I wish to offer in evidence copy of settlement agreement dated September 15, 1931, between the Reorganization Committee and the Protective Bondholders Committee, of which Mr. Cahn was a member, as Exhibit No. 6, Arzt and Ramsey.

I now wish to offer in evidence letter sent by the Bankers Trust Company to Armand Erpf, Secretary of the Reorganization Committee, dated October 2, 1931, as Exhibit No. 7, Arzt and Ramsey.

I now wish to offer in evidence minutes of the Reorganization Committee, approving the agreement of settlement between the Reorganization Committee and the Cahn committee, dated September 17, 1931, as Exhibit No. 8, Arzt and Ramsey.

I wish to offer in evidence minutes of meeting of the Reorganization Committee held October 1, 1931, as Exhibit No. 9, Arzt and Ramsey.

I wish to offer in evidence minutes of a meeting held October 31, 1931, of the Reorganization Committee, as Exhibit No. 10, Arzt and Ramsey.

I wish to offer in evidence minutes of the meeting of the Reorganization Committee held on October 28, 1931, as Exhibit No. 11, Arzt and Ramsey, the same consisting of eight pages.

I will stipulate that copies of the exhibits marked contained in the minute book of the Reorganization Commit-[fol. 676] tee may be substituted in lieu of the copies in the minute book. Is that agreeable, Mr. Teall?

Mr. Teall: Yes.

Mr. Wright: If the Court please, Mr. Teall and I have agred to facts which seemed to have been in controversy a little while ago, and I will state it for the record, if your Honor will permit. Mr. Hubbell and I knew about the receivership long before the hearing, but neither of us had any notice or any knowledge of the fact there was a hearing until after it was over, and neither of us conferred with Mr. Teall until March 18, 1932.

Mr. Teall: And the record will show what date their petition to intervene was filed on. I don't know that.

The Court: Is there anything further?

Mr. Teall:

Q. Now, Mr. Waters, let us get this business of management straightened out. "Management" is a rather loose term. Up to February, 1930—if I may put it this way—who was the active boss of the company?

A. The active man in charge from the time of the consolidation up until either February or March was Mr. Norris.

Q. Of what year?

A. The year 1927, in September, up until 1928. Mr. Norris resigned on account of illness.

[fol. 677] Q. Well, he was the head up to that time?

A. He was the head.

Q. Actively in charge?

A. Actively in charge.

Q. All right. Now, who was the next boss?

A. Well, there was Mr. Reed, who came to the organization from the Continental Heater Company; he was with us about a year following that as the general manager of plants and manufacturing. My son was—well, he was one of the vice presidents and took part in the management, too.

Q. Now, that carries us up to when?

A. That carries it up to nineteen—When did Mr. Pierce come into the organization, Mr. Resley?

Mr. Resley: September 1, 1928.

A. Well, that practically took care of things until September 1, 1928, when Mr. Pierce was made president and in active charge of the company's affairs.

Q. And how long did he continue president and in active charge?

A. He continued until some time in the early part of 1930.

Q. Up to that time, from the organization of the company to February or early in the year 1930, what had been your position with the company?

A. My position was chairman of the board.

Q. Now then, early in the year 1930 did your position change in any way?

A. Well, I don't—I am not sure, I believe I was a member of the executive committee. Mr. Flershem came in [fol. 678] and became chairman of the executive committee——

Q. Just a moment. I am going to cut you short, for purposes of brevity. You were president of the company at the time of the receivership?

A. Yes.

Q. The active head of the concern?

A. Yes.

Q. How long had you been in that position?

A. I had been in that position, I believe, since February, 1930.

Q. That was the time when you come back as president and active head of the concern?

A. Yes.

Q. And you so remained until the receivership?

A. Yes.

Q. Laying aside questions of what the word "management" means, and all that, you have been the active head of the concern since February, 1930, down to the date of the receivership?

A. Yes.

Mr. Hubbell:

Q. Mr. Waters, by Mr. Norris you mean Edward Norris of Utica, New York?

A. Yes.

Q. While you were chairman of the board of directors, and Mr. Norris was president, did you differ as to policies of the company?

A. I don't recall any special differences. One of the statements that Mr. Norris made to me when he became president, he said "Now, the understanding, Mr. Waters, [fol. 679] is that I am going to be president and in active charge of the company's affairs." I told him that was the position I wanted him to fill.

Q. And did he get out because he couldn't be president and you continue to be president in fact, although not in name?

A. No, he got out on account of his illness.

Q. Now, didn't he want to continue these plants operating as separate plants, and not consolidate them all down at Johnstown and New Castle, and you insisted upon doing it the other way? Isn't that the fact?

A. I don't recall Mr. Norris ever having been a party to any such suggestion. I remember Mr.—Oh, the Niagara Radiator Company man, Mr.—What is his name?

Q. Mr. Andrews, do you mean?

A. Mr. Andrews, he was very positive in that direction, but I don't recall Mr. Norris having insisted on any part of it.

Q. Well, you continued to take quite an active part during Mr. Norris's presidency, didn't you?

A. He consulted with me somewhat. I went south in the winter when he was left in charge. He was at the hotel the greatest part of the time, and the men in the different departments consulted him every day, went to his home, and he finally moved to Johnstown, and when he wasn't able to be present at the office they went up and consulted with him, he would see every day people from the organization, in order to get his advice and directions.

Q. But it is true Mr. Norris resigned and got out, isn't it?

[fol. 680] Yes.

Q. Now, you say Mr. Reed came in—that is Earle Reed?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you and Mr. Reed differ as to the policy and management of the company?

A. I really don't recall of ever discussing but very little any of the affairs with Mr. Reed, who was in charge of the manufacturing and I had little or nothing to do with that.

Q. And did Mr. Reed finally get out because he wasn't permitted to run the plants in the way he thought was the proper way to run them?

A. No; Mr. Reed came to me one day and said that the job was entirely out of his ability to handle, that he had been accustomed to handling one small plant, and this was a bigger job than he could handle, and he was then interested in starting a small company for himself. He had hardly quit the employment with our company until he was engaged in the organization of another company.

Q. Was Mr. Reed afterwards a member of this committee that sent out circulars advising the security holders not to deposit their bonds because of the bad management of the company?

A. I believe he was. He, however, deposited his bonds with our committee.

Q. And by Mr. Pierce you mean Grant Pierce?

A. Yes.

Q. Was he put in at the request of the Bankers Trust Company?

A. I wouldn't say wholly. They were consulted, yes.

[fol. 681] Q. And after some change in stockholdings, did you suggest that Mr. Pierce resign?

A. Yes, I did—I don't know what you refer to by change of stockholdings.

Q. Well, didn't your interest in the company increase during that interval, when the Bankers Trust Company suggested that Mr. Pierce come in and the time when you suggested he get out?

A. Had it increased in the meantime?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes; but that had nothing to do with the request that he get out.

Q. When did Mr. Flershem become president?

A. He is not president, he is chairman of the executive committee.

Q. He never was president?

A. No.

Q. And when did he become chairman of the committee?

A. I can't recall that date.

Q. Was it the same time that you became president?

A. I believe it was. You can probably find that in the minutes.

Q. Well, we will say about that time.

A. Yes.

Q. But Mr. Flershem, who became chairman of the board and head of the company at that time, never had had any connection with the old National Radiator Company, had he?

A. No.

Q. So that, on February 1, 1930, instead of the head becoming one of the old National Radiator Company, it was a [fol. 682] man who had never had any connection with the company?

Mr. Bennett: I don't think that question is clear.

Q. Mr. Flershem became chairman of the board of directors at about the time that——

A. Chairman of the executive committee.

Q. Wasn't he chairman of the board, too?

A. No.

Q. He became chairman of the executive committee at about the time you became president, and that you say was about February, 1930?

A. Yes.

Q. And he never had had any connection with the National Radiator Company?

A. No.

Q. And on that day he became head of the National Radiator Corporation?

A. I wouldn't say so. He was chairman of the executive committee, and I was president of the corporation, and what is meant by "practically the old management" was all the active people in the company; our former sales managers and secretary and treasurer and plant managers, and all that, is what is meant by "practically the old organization."

Q. Well, wasn't the old organization—Didn't the leading men in it consist of your son Robert Waters, and Mr. Resley, the secretary of the company?

A. Yes.

Q. And who else?

A. And our sales manager, Mr. Morgan, and our district managers in charge of our different offices, our plant man-

[fol. 683] agers; that is what is referred to there, as these old men were then in active charge, which was practically the old National Radiator Company organization. Mr. Flershem was brought into the organization due to his knowledge of the sales end of the business. He had been vice president and general manager of sales for the American Radiator Company for a number of years, and sales development was one of the things we felt we needed, and Mr. Flershem was brought into the organization with a view of assisting more particularly in that direction.

Q. And that was a change of management away from the system of the old National Radiator Company?

A. I would say not. It was augmented.

Q. It was what?

A. It was augmented by getting a man with a very large experience in that direction in with us.

Q. So that the system had not been changed but was augmented?

A. Yes.

Q. The general manager of the company had been right the same one from the time of the reorganization, hadn't he?

A. The general manager?

Q. From the time of the merger—the vice president and general manager?

A. Vice president and general manager—I don't recall that title.

Q. Executive vice president and general manager.

A. Yes, executive vice president.

[fol. 684] Q. The executive vice president and general manager had been the same person, and that was your son Robert Waters, who is one of the receivers, from the time of the merger?

A. Yes, I believe he filled that position.

(Several letters marked Complainants' Exhibit No. 2, a to f, inclusive.)

Mr. Teall: Complainants offer their Exhibit No. 2, which will be given sub-letters "a" to "f," being letters and copies of letters, six in number, between February 13, 1931, and May 23, 1931, for the purpose of showing that within a very few days after the publication of the reorganization plan the attention of International Heater Company was drawn to it, and International Heater Company was expressly advised of its right to come into the plan and declined to come into it.

Mr. Royall:

Q. Just one thing to make the record a little more complete. I believe, although I am not quite sure of this, that while you were on the stand today you indicated that the Corporation had before the promulgation of the plan gone into the market and acquired some of its own debentures. Is that a fact?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you please state to what extent they have done so, how many debentures they acquired?

A. I don't recall; probably fifteen to twenty thousand of them.

Q. Rather a trivial number, comparatively speaking? [fol. 685] A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what was done with those? Were they deposited with the Committee or how were they handled?

A. I don't think they were, but I am not positive about that.

Q. Well, if they were not deposited with the Committee, how do you think they were handled?

A. I really am unable to say how they were handled, whether they were held in the treasury of the company or whether they were deposited. Mr. Resley can answer that question.

Mr. Teall: I think it appears in the bill of complaint that they were cancelled; I think it is in the bill.

Mr. Watts: If the Court please, we desire to file a supplemental objection to the plan of reorganization, adding an additional reason for the Court's action in refusing to permit it or approve it, and ask that this objection be marked filed by the Clerk.

Exceptants rest.

(Recess taken until 1:30 o'clock P. M.)

Afternoon Session

(Note.—Upon request of counsel, complainants' case is reopened for the production of an additional witness.)

[fol. 686] TESTIMONY OF WILLIAM G. HEINER

WILLIAM G. HEINER, a witness produced on behalf of complainants, having been duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Mr. Heiner, you are one of the receivers for National Radiator Corporation, the defendant in this case?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you, at request of counsel, examined your records for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of claims of general merchandise creditors that would be paid under the proposed reorganization plan?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the aggregate amount of such claims?

A. $42,712.85.

Q. Could you give us any general idea of the amounts of those various claims? Are they large amounts, small claims, or what?

A. The total number of claims applicable to that aggregate 396.

Q. To make up the forty-two thousand dollars?

A. That is right.

Cross examination.

Mr. Hubbell:

Q. You said there were forty-two thousand?

A. $42,712.85.

[fol. 687] Q. Do you know how many or the amount of the claims paid by this Reorganization Committee before the property came into the hands of the receivers?

A. No, I do not.

Q. In the preparation for this suit?

A. No, I do not.

Q. In 1930 there seems to be one item of taxes here, and other accounts accrued, $151,000. Do you know anything about that, what it was?

A. No, I do not.

Q. So that that may have consisted of creditors in a similar situation to the International Heater Company, that the Reorganization Committee paid off?

A. I couldn't tell you.

Mr. Palley:

Q. What is meant by "Payment in full for liabilities due for services"? Who comes within that classification?

A. Well, I don't know. Do you want my opinion on it?

Q. Well, are there any unpaid claims for services rendered to the corporation prior to your appointment as receiver?

A. Yes, I should say there are.

Q. And could you give us the amount of those claims, the total?

Mr. Teall: What do you mean by "service," Mr. Palley?

Mr. Palley: I will get that in the next question, I think.

[fol. 688] A. I will have to compute that from our receivers' report.

Q. Well, approximately?

A. I can't give it to you approximately.

Q. Well, give me the names of some of the persons to whom money is due for services rendered, and the amounts?

A. L. L. Carr for commissions in the amount of $40.50

Q. When did that accrue?

A. I can't tell you the date; it is not shown; but prior to the receivership.

Q. Do you know whether that claim was in existence in February, on or about February 1, 1931, at the time of the default in the payment of interest?

A. I can't tell you that.

Q. You wouldn't be familiar with that?

A. I would not.

Q. You don't know whether any of these claims for merchandise or claims for services were paid some time between February 1st and the time of your appointment as receiver?

A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. Now, will you answer this: Is there any money due to any of the Waters for services rendered?

A. I think there is a claim here for salary.

Q. Will you give us the names of which Waters and the amounts?

A. Robert S. Waters, unpaid salary, $222.20.

Q. Do you know what period of time that covers?

A. Yes, that was for the period October 1 to October 9, 1931; for the portion of the month of October, 1931, preceding the appointment of the receivers.

[fol. 689] Q. Are there any other officers—I am particularly interested in the officers and directors of the corporation—to whom there was any money due for services at the time you took possession as receiver?

A. Offhand, I don't think of any——

Q. Well, from your list?

A. Well, if you will give me the names, I will check that.

Q. Well, how about Mr. John H. Waters? Did he collect a salary or was there anything due him?

A. There wasn't anything due him, according to my report.

Q. How about Samuel B. Waters?

A. There is no claim for salary, by Mr. Samuel B. Waters.

Q. Mr. Resley?

A. There is no claim for salary by Mr. Resley.

Q. Are you familiar with the method of payment of salaries by the corporation, that is, the method which was in vogue prior to the time you took possession as receiver? I presume the same method was continued after your possession?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, how were salaries paid, monthly, bi-monthly, or weekly, or how?

A. Executive salaries, that is, administrative salaries, were paid monthly, and wages paid semi-monthly.

Q. And were they paid monthly in advance or at the end of the month?

A. At the end of the month, after the work and services are performed.

[fol. 690] Q. And you wouldn't have any information, as to what, if any, moneys were due to any of the Waters or any of the officers of the corporation after February 1, 1931?

A. I would not, unless it was the subject of a proof of claim, and that is the only one I know of.

Q. For all you know, they might have been paid?

A. They might have, for all I know.

Q. Then by "services" you understand to mean salaries due what we might call officers of the corporation, executives, or white-collar employees, and any wage earners who are given priority, I presume, under the statutes of this state?

A. Well, the decree authorized us to continue the payment of current and unpaid payroll.

Q. But you would distinguish between wages and services—liability for services—wouldn't you? You are an attorney, aren't you?

A. Yes.

Q. And wages are given priority under the statutes of the State of Pennsylvania, I presume?

A. I think they are.

Mr. Teall:

Q. Well, in that service, state whether or not there is included telephone, and water, and delivery service, and various things of that nature?

A. That is right; I would say they are also included.

Q. Under the term "services"?

A: Yes.

(NOTE.—After adjournment of the hearing in this case, the witness W. H. Heiner stated that upon further investi-[fol. 691] gation he found that the amount of $42,712.85, amount of general merchandise claims paid under the proposed reorganization plan, as given in his testimony above, is incorrect, and that the correct amount should be $40,-075.15.)

Complainants rest.

IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

MEMORANDUM—Filed Sept. 8, 1932

GIBSON, District Judge:

Prior to the order for sale in this matter, this Court heard creditors of the defendant corporation, who objected to the reorganization scheme proposed by the plaintiffs. [fol. 692] Upon consideration of the reorganization proposed, subsequent to that hearing, we felt that the obligations of the corporation were considerably greater than its tangible assets and that the reorganization proposed was proper and worthy of the approval of the Court. After the sale of defendant's properties was made and exceptions filed to the Receivers' return, we again heard creditors objecting to the reorganization and exceptions to the confirmation of the sale. Upon consideration of the testimony offered at such hearing, we have not been led to a change of opinion in respect to the good faith of the reorganization scheme, and the power and duty of the Court to approve it, as expressed in a prior opinion under this number, and also in opinion in the case of Lily Clapier v. Rudolph B. Flershem, et al., and National Radiator Corporation, at No. 2597 In Equity.

The exceptions relating to the conduct of the sale are of no weight and must be dismissed.

IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

DECREE CONFIRMING SALE AND APPROVING DEED—Filed Sept. 8, 1932

This cause came on to be further heard at this term pursuant to Section 34 of Article VI of the Final Decree of Sale made and entered herein by this Court May 31, 1932 (hereinafter called the "Final Decree"), on the Receivers' Report of Sale dated August 8 and filed herein August 12, 1932, on the petition dated and filed herein August 17, 1932, of G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley (here- [fol. 693] inafter sometimes called the "Purchasers"), and on the petition dated and filed herein August 17, 1932, of National Radiator Corporation, a Maryland corporation

(hereinafter called the "New Company"), as assignee of the Purchasers, and on all other proceedings in this cause, and upon the hearing on the aforesaid Report of the Receivers, and was argued by counsel, and thereupon, upon consideration thereof, this Court being fully advised in the premises, it is Found, ordered, adjudged, and decreed as follows:

1. Neither the defendant National Radiator Corporation (hereinafter called the "Corporation") nor anyone on its behalf nor anyone else, within 10 days after the entry of the Final Decree or at any other time, has paid or caused to be paid, in accordance with the provisions of Section 29 of Article V of the Final Decree, the sum specified in said Section 29 or any part thereof.

2. The Receivers appointed by this Court by Decree No. 1 in this cause dated October 9, 1931 (hereinafter sometimes called the "Receivers"), and in and by the Final Decree ordered in person or by their duly appointed agent to execute the sale (hereinafter called the "sale") of the property owned by the Corporation and/or said Receivers and directed by the Final Decree to be sold, have fully complied with all the directions contained in the Final Decree in naming the day and hour of sale and conducting the same as required by the Final Decree; the Notice of Sale referred to in the Final Decree was duly published as in and [fol. 694] by the Final Decree directed; the statements required by Section 54 of the Final Decree to be filed were duly filed; the sale was duly made on August 8, 1932, in all respects as provided by the Final Decree; and at said sale the Receivers duly sold at public auction to the Purchasers G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, they being the highest and best bidders at said sale, all the property in and by the Final Decree directed to be sold in one parcel as an entirety for the sum of $2,550,000, said sum being the highest bid for said property and being in excess of the minimum amount required by the Final Decree to be bid for said property when offered in one parcel as an entirety and being equal to the aggregate of the highest bids noted for the parcels comprising said property when said parcels were offered for sale separately.

3. On July 30, 1932, said date being more than 24 hours prior to the offering by the Receivers of any property for sale under the Final Decree, the aforesaid G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, deposited with the Receivers and delivered to them, as a pledge that they would make good their bid or bids and as part payment of the purchase price of said property in case of the acceptance of such bid or bids, a certificate of Bankers Trust Company, a trust company in New York, N. Y., that it held subject to the order of the Receivers $1,000,000 principal amount of 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of the Corporation, in bearer form and accompanied by the coupons thereto appertaining due February 1, 1931 and all subsequently [fol. 695] maturing coupons, and said Purchasers simultaneously filed with the Receivers their statement that they proposed to bid for said property on behalf and for the benefit of a corporation or corporations organized with the intention that such corporation or corprations shall become the owner or owners of said property or some part thereof or some beneficial interest therein, pursuant to and for the purposes of the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation, as augmented by the provisions set forth in a certain letter dated September 16, 1931, issued by the Reorganization Committee constituted under said Plan and Agreement and made a part thereof (said Plan and Agreement as so augmented being hereinafter called the "Plan and Agreement"), and being the Plan and Agreement referred to in Section 16 of Article III and in Section 36 of Article VIII of the Final Decree, which said Reorganization Committee, by its petition duly verified July 26, 1932, entitled in this cause and filed with the Clerk of this Court on July 29, 1932, has petitioned this Court to approve.

4. In the manner prescribed in Section 36 of Article VIII of the Final Decree the Receivers duly published a notice that a copy of the Plan and Agreement, under which the successful bid of the Purchasers was made, has been duly filed with this Court and might be examined by anyone wishing to do so at the office of the Clerk of this Court, and that at the time and place named in the Final Decree this Court would hear complaints as provided in the Final Decree as to the equity of the provisions of the Plan and [fol. 696] Agreement affecting the respective priorities of all persons and corporations interested in the Corporation and its property, from all Debentureholders or other creditors, secured or unsecured, of the Corporation, who before the date of such hearing should file, with leave of this Court, their petitions herein for such purpose.

5. The aforesaid G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, have duly assigned, transferred and set over unto the New Company, its successors and assigns, for the purposes of the Plan and Agreement, all their right, title and interest in and to the property described in the form of deed hereto annexed marked Exhibit A, being all of the property sold to them as aforesaid; their right to receive a deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer of said property; their successful bid at the sale under the Final Decree; their rights and interests under the Final Decree as the successful bidders for said property; and their right to receive all cash (less the sum of $300,000 to be retained by the Receivers, as in Section 43 of Article X of the Final Decree provided, as a payment on account of the total purchase price of said property sold) and all current assets, materials and supplies in the possession of the Receivers.

It is therefore ordered, adjudged, and decreed as follows:

6. The provisions of the Plan and Agreement affecting the respective priorities of all persons and corporations interested in the Corporation and its property are equitable [fol. 697] and said Plan and Agreement contains an equitable and timely offer of participation in the reorganization thereby proposed to all persons entitled thereto, of which due and reasonable notice has been given, and all complaints as to the equity of the provisions of said Plan and Agreement made at the hearing before this Court August 18, 1932, are hereby found without merit and overruled. The Reorganization Committee constituted under the Plan and Agreement, or their successors, are hereby authorized to carry out and consummate said Plan and Agreement and all persons, firms and corporations are forever barred from making hereafter any complaint in respect of said Plan and Agreement or any of the provisions thereof. If, prior to the execution and delivery of the deed or deeds by this Decree authorized, the Plan and Agreement should be modified, said Reorganization Committee, as parties complainants in this cause, shall file a copy of such modifications with this Court. Thereupon, the Receivers shall publish notice, in the manner provided in Section 36 of Article VIII of the Final Decree, of the filing of such modifications and of the hearing to be held thereon before this Court 14 days after the publication of such notice, and this Court reserves the exclusive jurisdiction at such hearing to hear complaints as to the equity of the provisions of such modifications affecting the respective priorities of all persons and corporations interested in the Corporation and its property, from all Debentureholders or other creditors, secured or unsecured, of the Corporation, who before the date of such hearing shall file, with leave of this Court, their peti- [fol. 698] tions herein for such purpose, specifying in reasonable detail the particulars in which such modifications are alleged by them to be inequitable, and this Court reserves exclusive jurisdiction to determine whether the provisions as to which such complaints are so made are equitable.

7. The Receivers' Report of Sale is hereby in all respects confirmed and the sale therein reported, namely the sale to the aforesaid G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as joint tenants and not as tenants in common, of all the property of every kind, character and description in and by the Final Decree directed to be sold in one parcel as an entirety for the sum of $2,550,000, is approved, confirmed and made final and absolute; subject, however, to all the terms and conditions of this Decree and of the Final Decree and to the rights and powers reserved to the Purchasers and to their assigns and to this Court in and by this Decree and in and by the Final Decree.

8. Upon the confirmation of the sale as to so much of the property sold as is situated within the territorial jurisdiction of the courts in which are pending the ancillary causes mentioned in Section 8 of Article II of the Final Decree, and in advance of the delivery of the deed or deeds by this Decree authorized, a further payment on account of the purchase price of the property sold to the Purchasers shall, except as this Court may by its order or decree otherwise permit, be made by the turning over to the Receivers, to be credited on account of such purchase price as provided in Section 44 of Article X of the Final Decree, Debentures [fol. 699] and/or coupons and/or assigned claims entitled to be paid out of the net proceeds of the sale on distribution thereof in the sum of $9,000,000. The Receivers may accept, in lieu of all or any part of the Debentures and/or coupons and/or assigned claims required to be turned over pursuant to this Section, a certificate or certificates of any bank or trust company in New York, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., Chicago, Ill., or Boston, Mass., acceptable to them, that it holds subject to their order, such Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims against the Corporation finally established and allowed.

9. There shall be credited on account of the total purchased price of $2,550,000 bid for the property sold at the sale

(a) The sum of $300,000 in cash, to be retained by the Receivers out of the cash in the possession of the Receivers; plus

(b) The distributive share out of the net proceeds of sale, as determined by this Court in accordance with Article XI of the Final Decree, of the Debentures and their appurtenant coupons held subject to the order of the Receivers pursuant to the certificate of Bankers Trust Company deposited with said Receivers by the Purchasers, as stated in the Receivers' Report of Sale, as a pledge that said Purchasers would make good their bid or bids in case of the acceptance thereof; plus

(c) The distributive share out of the net proceeds of sale, as determined by this Court in accordance with Article [fol. 700] XI of the Final Decree, of the Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims which (or certificates of interest in which) shall be delivered to the Receivers pursuant to Section 8 of this Decree.

No further payment shall be required on account of the total purchase price of $2,550,000 bid for the property sold at the sale until this Court shall so require, but this Court reserves exclusive jurisdiction from time to time, upon application of any holder of Debentures or coupons appertaining thereto or claims entitled to share in the proceeds of sale, to require, in accordance with the provisions in that regard of the Final Decree and the order of distribution to be entered pursuant to the Final Decree, such further payment or payments on account of said total purchase price as this Court may from time to time direct, and this Court reserves a lien and charge upon the property sold at the sale, subordinate only to the right reserved by Section 42 of Article IX and the liens mentioned in Section 32 of Article VI of the Final Decree, for the payment in full of the purchase price thereof and the right to resell such property or any part thereof, upon such notice as it may direct, at the risk and cost of the New Company, in case the New Company shall fail or omit to make any payment on account of such purchase price within 20 days after the entry of the order requiring such payment or if an appeal be taken from any such order, within 20 days after the service of written notice of the final affirmance of such order upon appeal.

10. The New Company shall take the property sold as in the Final Decree directed and shall receive the deeds by [fol. 701] this Decree authorized, subject to the express condition that it shall, as provided in the Final Decree, pay in full the purchase price thereof, including the assumption of all obligations of the Receivers which under Section 42 of Article IX of the Final Decree are required to be assumed by the Purchasers as a part of the total purchase price of said property, and in addition to the amount of the accepted bid for said property, and this Court expressly retains jurisdiction of the property so purchased, as against all other provisions of the Final Decree and this Decree, and reserves the right to retake said property or any part thereof sold under the Final Decree and apply it, to the satisfaction of said obligations in case the New Company shall fail to comply with any order of this Court directing such performance within 20 days after the service of a copy of such order, or, if an appeal be taken from any such order, within 20 days after the service of written notice of the final affirmance of such order upon appeal.

11. Upon the confirmation of the sale as to so much of the property sold as is situated within the territorial jurisdiction of the courts in which are pending the ancillary causes hereinabove mentioned in Section 8 of this Decree, and upon the turning over to the Receivers of the Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims (or certificates of interest therein) required by Section 8 of this Decree to be turned over to the Receivers in advance of the delivery of the deed or deeds by this Decree authorized, the Receivers are directed to execute and deliver to the New Company a deed of the property [fol. 702] described in the form of deed hereto annexed marked Exhibit A, and substantially in said form, which is hereby approved by this Court (or, if the Purchasers or the New Company in their stead shall, prior to the execution and delivery of said deed, elect not to take or to accept any part of the property described in said form of deed constituting Exhibit A to this Decree, and shall file with the Receivers written notice of such election, pursuant to the provisions of Article XVI of the Final Decree, then with such changes in said deed in that regard as the Receivers by their execution of said deed shall approve), and the Corporation is directed by way of further assurance to make and deliver similar deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer to the New Company (or, if the New Company shall so request, to join with the Receivers in the execution and delivery of said deed), or, if the New Company shall so request, separate deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer in lieu of a single deed, and, if the New Company shall so request, and they be authorized so to do, Robert S. Waters and Robert H. Richards, Jr., as Receivers of and for the Corporation by appointment of the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware, shall likewise join with the parties first above mentioned in the execution and delivery of said deed; thereby to convey, transfer, assign and release to the New Company the property directed in and by the Final Decree to be conveyed, transferred, assigned and released or quitclaimed by them, respectively; and shall execute and deliver to the New Company any powers [fol. 703] of attorney and authorities appropriate in connection with any instrument of conveyance or assignment and transfer or release. If, prior to the execution and delivery by the Receivers of the deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer above mentioned, the New Company shall request that the property described in the form of deed constituting Exhibit A to this Decree, or any part or parts thereof, shall be conveyed or assigned and transferred to any other corporation or corporations, the Receivers are directed to execute and deliver to such other corporation or corporations designated by the New Company a deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer, in form to be approved by this Court, of such property as the New Company shall by its request designate, and the Corporation is directed by way of further assurance to make and deliver similar deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer to the grantee or grantees so designated (or, if the New Company shall so request, to join with the Receivers in the execution and delivery of said deed or deeds), together with whatever powers of attorney and authorities are appropriate in connection therewith. If, upon or after the execution and delivery by the Receivers of the deed or deeds above mentioned, the New Company, for the purpose of facilitating the recording thereof in any state or states or in order to comply with any rule of law in any state or states, shall request that any part or parts of the property, described in the form of deed constituting Exhibit A to this Decree and [fol. 704] situated in any such state or states, shall be conveyed, assigned and transferred also by an additional deed or additional deeds relating only to such property, the Receivers are directed to execute and deliver the additional deed or additional deeds so requested of such part or parts of said property, in accordance with such request of the New Company, substantially in the form of said deed constituting Exhibit A to this Decree, and the Corporation is directed also by way of further assurance to make and deliver similar deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer to the New Company or its grantee or grantees (or, if the New Company shall so request, to join with the Receivers in the execution and delivery of said additional deed or additional deeds), together with whatever powers of attorney and authorities are appropriate in connection therewith.

12. Upon the production of the deed or deeds or other instrument or instruments of conveyance or assignment and transfer by this Decree authorized and directed to be made or of a certified copy or copies thereof, the New Company or other grantee or grantees therein named shall be let into possession of the real estate and plants and property thereby conveyed or assigned and transferred, and the Receivers in this cause shall deliver the same to or upon the order of the New Company or of such grantee or grantees, as the case may be, who shall thereupon hold, possess and enjoy the property so conveyed or assigned and transferred and every part and parcel thereof, free from any lien, charge or claim, except those subject to [fol. 705] which this Decree expressly declares said property to be sold and the obligations which by Section 10 of this Decree the New Company is expressly required to assume and pay, and free from any charge or claim in respect of the Debentures or of the coupons appertaining thereto or in respect of the indebtedness represented thereby or in respect of any other indebtedness of the Corporation and free from all claims, rights, interests or equity of redemption of, in or to the same by or of the Corporation, its successors and assigns, and by or of its creditors or stockholders or by or of any and all persons claiming by, under or through the Corporation, its creditors or stockholders, and by or of all parties to this cause, or any of them.

13. Upon the delivery by the Receivers of the deed or deeds by this Decree authorized and directed to be made, the New Company shall be entitled to have, enjoy and receive all income and revenues of the properties purchased, as well as any and all cash (less the sum of $300,000 to be retained by the Receivers, as specified in Section 43 of Article X of the Final Decree and Section 9 of this Decree) and all current assets, materials and supplies acquired by the Receivers in their operation of such properties, and the Receivers shall forthwith assign, transfer and deliver to the New Company all cash (less the sum of $300,000 aforesaid) and all current assets, materials and supplies at any time acquired by them and then in their possession. The counterpart of said deed or deeds, executed by the New Company and delivered to the Receivers, shall forthwith be filed by them with the Clerk of this Court.

[fol. 706] 14. Upon the execution and delivery by the Receivers to the New Company of a deed or deeds, substantially in the form of the deed constituting Exhibit A to this Decree, and the execution and delivery by the New Company to said Receivers of a counterpart of said deed, all obligations and liabilities of G. Franklin Ludington and of Carl E. Resley on account of the purchase of the property sold under the Final Decree and of each and every part thereof, or by reason of their successful bid at the sale under the Final Decree or the acceptance of said bid (which obligations and liabilities will have been assumed by the New Company, as in said form of deed provided), shall forthwith cease and determine, and said G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, and each of them shall be and are hereby released and discharged from all such obligations and liabilities and, thereupon, without further order of this Court, shall be dismissed as parties to this cause.

15. The Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims held subject to the order of the Receivers, pursuant to the certificate of interest deposited with the Receivers by the Purchasers G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, as stated in the Receivers' Report of Sale, as a pledge that said Purchasers would make good their bid for the property offered for sale, and the Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims represented by any certificates which may be accepted by the Receivers pursuant to the provisions of Section 8 hereof, shall remain with the banks or trust companies by which such Debentures and/or coupons and/or assignments of claims [fol. 707] are held, subject to said respective certificates, until the further order of this Court.

16. All creditors and stockholders of and claimants against the Corporation, including, but without limiting the generality of the foregoing, all holders of Debentures and coupons and all other creditors and all stockholders of said Corporation and all persons claiming by, through or under said Corporation, are hereby severally and respectively perpetually enjoined from prosecuting against G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, or against the New Company, or against any nominee or assignee or grantee of said G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley, or of the New Company, or against any other party to this cause, or against any other person or persons, corporation or corporations claiming by, under or through them, or any of them, or against any of the property sold pursuant to the Final Decree, any suit or proceeding arising out of or based on any obligation or liability of the Corporation, or otherwise to impose liability upon said G. Franklin Ludington or Carl E. Resley or upon the New Company or upon any nominee or assignee or grantee of said G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley or of the New Company or upon any party to this cause or upon any person or persons, corporation or corporations, claiming by, under or through them, or any of them, or upon any property sold pursuant to the Final Decree, in respect of any claim against the Corporation or any claim under or in respect of any Debentures or coupons issued under the Corporation's Indenture dated August 1, 1927, to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, or in respect of said Indenture, [fol. 708] or to charge said G. Franklin Ludington or Carl E. Resley or the New Company, or any nominee or assignee or grantee of said G. Franklin Ludington and Carl E. Resley or of the New Company, or any party to this cause, or any person or persons, corporation or corporations, claiming by, under or through them, or any of them, or any property sold pursuant to the Final Decree, with any liability on or in respect of any matter adjudicated by the Final Decree, except pursuant to the provisions of and in subordination to the Final Decree and this Decree; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to limit or restrict (a) the right of any such claimant whose claim, or any part thereof, is payable under the provisions of the Final Decree, as part of the purchase price of the property sold thereunder or out of the proceeds of sale of said property, or any part thereof, to take herein such proceedings in respect thereof as may be authorized or permitted by the Final Decree or by this Decree; or (b) the right of any person, firm or corporation, including the Corporation or its Receivers, to enforce the lien or charge of any lawful mortgage, pledge or other encumbrance, subject to which the property owned by the Corporation and/or its Receivers was sold.

17. As used in this Decree the term "party" to this cause is intended and shall be deemed to mean and include all holders of Debentures or coupons appertaining thereto issued under the Corporation's Indenture dated August 1, 1927, to Bankers Trust Company, Trustee, and also all creditors of said Corporation, whether or not any such creditor shall have filed proof or notice of his claim pur-
[fol. 709] suant to the orders of this Court heretofore made in this cause; and all such Debenture holders, coupon holders and other creditors are by representation parties to this cause and are bound by all the proceedings taken in this cause and each thereof.

Whenever used in this Decree the word "Purchasers" shall be deemed to include their respective heirs, executors, administrators and assigns and the words "New Company" its successors and assigns.

Whenever used in this Decree the word "person" shall be deemed to include the plural as well as the singular number and shall be deemed to include firms, associations and corporations as well as individuals.

18. The Receivers shall report to this Court their acts in carrying out the provisions of this Decree and may apply to this Court for instruction regarding their respective obligations under this Decree, to deliver the deed or deeds by this Decree authorized or to deliver possession of the property conveyed or assigned and transferred or intended to be by said deed or deeds; and all acts of said Receivers in the execution of this Decree shall be subject to supervision and control of this Court. All questions not by the Final Decree or by this Decree disposed of are reserved for future adjudication. Any party to this cause may apply to this Court for further relief with respect to questions not by this Decree or by the Final Decree disposed of.

Assignments of Error—Filed Sep. 30 1932

(On Appeal from Decree of September 8, 1932)

I

The District Court erred in making and entering the decree confirming sale and approving the Plan of Reorganization and Deed, dated September 8, 1932, to which exceptions have been duly noted in behalf of the appellants herein, said decree and the said exceptions being made part hereof by reference thereto as the same appear in the record of this case.

II

Appellants renew here their assignments of error numbered II to XXVI, both inclusive, heretofore filed herein as part of their petition for appeal from the final order of sale entered May 21, 1932, and by reference thereto make the same a part of these assignments of error.

III

The court erred in overruling appellants' objection that the price bid by the purchasers at the sale, confirmed by said decree of September 8, 1932, is grossly inadequate.

IV

The court erred in overruling appellants' objection that said sale was conducted without appraisal, and without other adequate or suitable steps having been taken properly to inform the Court as to the fair and just value of the assets of the defendant corporation or as to the best [fol. 714] manner of realizing on the same for the benefit of creditors.

V

The court erred in overruling appellants' objection that the decree of sale of May 31, 1932, was so framed or designed as to exclude, rather than to bring about, competitive bidding, and that said sale was actually conducted without competitive bidding.

VI

The court erred particularly in that portion of said decree of September 8, 1932, namely, paragraph sixth thereof, which approves the plan and agreement of reorganization in so far as it affects the respective priority of all persons and corporations interested in the National Radiator Corporation and its property. The said plan is discriminatory, in that it contemplates and makes provision for the payment of some unpreferred and unsecured general creditors in cash in full, while contemplating and providing that others of such unpreferred and unsecured general creditors shall receive a dividend in cash, constituting but a small percentage of the face of their claims, or be relegated merely to the acceptance of the securities offered by the committee.

The District Court erred in confirming said decree of sale, in that it did not require proper notice to be given to creditors before directing said sale and in that no notice was in fact given to certain creditors, including International Heater Company, and that they had no opportunity [fol. 715] to oppose the application for a sale or the terms thereof, or to introduce any evidence to the effect that no such sale should be made.

Wherefore, and in order that the foregoing assignments of error may be and appear of record in this cause, said intervening defendants jointly and severally present the same to this Court and jointly and severally pray that disposition may be made thereof in accordance with law and the statutes of the United States in such case made and provided; and said intervening defendants jointly and severally further pray that the decree confirming the sale of the properties and assets of the defendant corporation, entered September 8, 1932, be reversed and that a decree be entered in accordance with and for the protection of the rights of these said intervening defendants and as may be for the best interest and protection of all creditors of said defendant corporation.

Dated September 30, 1932.

ORDER ALLOWING APPEAL

And now, to wit, this 30th day of September, 1932, appeal allowed, citation awarded and appellants directed to file bond in the sum of $1,000.00, conditioned upon payment of costs of appeal.

Petition of Josephine Ramsey in Opposition to Confirmation of Sale of Assets by Receivers—Filed Aug. 17, 1932

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court:

The petition of Josephine Ramsey, in behalf of herself and in behalf of all other debenture-holders of the National Radiator Corporation who are opposed to and who refuse to accept the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the reorganization of the National Radiator Corporation, respectfully represents:

1. That she is the holder of fifty thousand dollars principal amount Six and One-half Percent Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of the National Radiator Corporation, to all of which are attached the February 1st, 1931 and all subsequent interest coupons.

2. That she respectfully appears herein to oppose the confirmation of the sale insofar as the same affects her as a holder of debentures who has not assented to the Plan of Reorganization of the Reorganization Committee constituted under the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of the National Radiator Corporation, on the ground that this court is and was without jurisdiction to appoint receivers of said corporation, order [fol. 723] the sale of its assets and direct the payment to non-assenting bondholders their aliquot share of the forced sale value realized upon the sale of said assets.

3. That your petitioner also respectfully represents to this court, upon information and belief, that the suit was improperly and collusively made and joined by the parties thereto for the purpose of creating an alleged cause cognizable by a Federal court of equity, in violation of Section 37 of the U. S. Judicial Code, as follows:

(a) That prior to the 1st day of February, 1931, when an installment of interest became due under the Debenture described in the complaint herein, the National Radiator Corporation conceived the plan to reorganize for the purpose of reducing and scaling its funded debt.

(b) That pursuant to said plan, a Reorganization Committee, composed of the complainants Rudolph B. Flershem; Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters, was appointed by the defendant, National Radiator Corporation, as its agent to effect said reorganization.

(c) That John H. Waters is, and at all the times stated herein was, the President and a director of said National Radiator Corporation, and Rudolph B. Flershem is, and at all the times stated herein was, an officer and director of said corporation.

(d) That pursuant to said plan, the National Radiator [fol. 724] Corporation defaulted in the payment of interest on the 1st day of February, 1931, and shortly thereafter through the Reorganization Committee submitted the plan of reorganization which is set forth in Schedule B annexed to the complaint.

(e) That on or about the 16th day of September, 1931, said Reorganization Committee declared said plan operative and in full force and effect and that thereafter, on or about the 17th day of September, 1931, pursuant to agreement theretofore made with the Bondholders' Protective Committee, the complainant, Frank B. Cahn, a member thereof, was elected a member of the Reorganization Committee.

(f) That in and by said plan, the Reorganization Committee and all the bondholders who had deposited their bonds under said Plan and Agreement, had agreed, with the National Radiator Corporation to the organization of a new company to which should be transferred the assets of the National Radiator Corporation, and had agreed to accept in payment for their claims, arising out of the debentures and unpaid and accrued interest, securities of said new corporation in full payment and discharge for said debentures and accrued interest.

(g) That the Bankers Trust Company had knowledge of and actively participated in the plans and all proceedings for the reorganization of said National Radiator Cor-
[fol. 725] poration, and at all times acted in collusion with the other parties to this cause.

(h) That by reason of the foregoing premises, there was no controversy existing between the parties to said suit at the time of the filing of the bill of complaint herein and the entry of the decree upon said bill and answer of the defendant, National Radiator Corporation.

4. That your petitioner further objects to the confirmation of the sale and to the decree entered and filed herein on May 31st, 1932, insofar as the same affects and applies to her as a non-assenting bondholder, on the ground that the plan is unfair and inequitable insofar as it permits the preferred stockholders of the National Radiator Corporation to share in any of the stock to be issued by the new corporation pursuant to the plan described in the complaint.

5. That the plan is unfair, unjust and inequitable because it does not provide for adequate compensation to non-assenting bondholders who are entitled to receive in cash the principal amount of the bonds together with the redemption premium provided in the Indenture and also accrued interest upon said bonds to date of payment.

6. That the plan is unfair, unjust and inequitable because it provides for payment in full of all liabilities of the National Radiator Corporation for services and merchandise which have not been paid at the time of the acquisition by [fol. 726] the new corporation of the assets and business of said National Radiator Corporation.

7. That the plan is unfair, unjust and inequitable because it provides for the issuance to preferred stockholders of common stock in the new company share for share without the payment of additional cash in consideration therefor.

8. That your petitioner, by appearing herein in opposition to the confirmation of the sale and to the aforesaid decree insofar as it applies to non-assenting bondholders, does not waive any objections to the jurisdiction of this court and hereby reserves any and all objections and exceptions to this court's exercise of jurisdiction in this cause, insofar as it applies to non-assenting bondholders.

Wherefore your petitioner respectfully prays that the sale be not confirmed and that the decree entered herein on the 31st day of May, 1932, be set aside and vacated as against your petitioner and the non-assenting holders of debentures of the National Radiator Corporation.

Dated New York, August 16th, 1932.

PETITION OF AMY ARZT IN OPPOSITION TO CONFIRMATION OF SALE OF ASSETS BY RECEIVERS—Filed Aug. 17, 1932

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court:

The petition of Amy Arzt, in behalf of herself and in behalf of all other debenture-holders of the National Radi- [fol. 728] ator Corporation who are opposed to and who refuse to accept the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the reorganization of the National Radiator Corporation, respectfully represents:

1. That she is the holder of seventy-one thousand dollars principal amount Six and One-half per cent Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of the National Radiator Corporation, to twenty-four of which are attached the August 1st, 1931, and all subsequent interest coupons, and to forty-seven of which are attached the February 1st, 1931, and all subsequent interest coupons.

2. That she respectfully appears herein to oppose the confirmation of the sale insofar as the same affects her as a holder of debentures who has not assented to the Plan of Reorganization of the Reorganization Committee constituted under the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of the National Radiator Corporation, on the ground that this court is and was without jurisdiction to appoint receivers of said corporation, order the sale of is assets and direct the payment to non-assenting bondholders their aliquot share of the forced sale value realized upon the sale of said assets.

3. That your petitioner also respectfully represents to this court, upon information and belief, that the suit was improperly and collusively made and joined by the parties thereto for the purpose of creating an alleged cause cogniz- [fol. 729] able by a Federal court of equity, in violation of Section 37 of the U. S. Judicial Code, as follows:

(a) That prior to the 1st day of February, 1931, when an installment of interest became due under the Debenture described in the complaint herein, the National Radiator Corporation conceived the plan to reorganize for the purpose of reducing and sealing its funded debt.

(b) That pursuant to said plan, a Reorganization Committee, composed of the complainants Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters, was appointed by the defendant, National Radiator Corporation, as its agent to effect said reorganization.

(c) That John H. Waters is, and at all the times stated herein was, the President and a director of said National Radiator Corporations, and Rudolph B. Flershem is, and at all the times stated herein was, an officer and director of said corporation.

(d) That pursuant to said plan, the National Radiator Corporation defaulted in the payment of interest on the 1st day of February, 1931, and shortly thereafter through the Reorganization Committee submitted the plan of reorganization which is set forth in Schedule B annexed to the complaint.

(e) That on or about the 16th day of September, 1931, said Reorganization Committee declared said plan operative and in full force and effect and that thereafter, on or [fol. 730] about the 17th day of September, 1931, pursuant to agreement theretofore made with the Bondholders' Protective Committee, the complainant, Frank B. Cahn, a member thereof, was elected a member of the Reorganization Committee.

(f) That in and by said plan, the Reorganization Committee and all the bondholders who had deposited their bonds under said Plan and Agreement, had agreed, with the National Radiator Corporation, to the organization of a new company to which should be transferred the assets of the National Radiator Corporation, and had agreed to accept in payment for their claims, arising out of the debentures and unpaid and accrued interest, securities of said new corporation in full payment and discharge for said debentures and accrued interest.

(g) That the Bankers Trust Company had knowledge of and actively participated in the plans and all proceedings for the reorganization of said National Radiator Corporation, and at all times acted in collusion with the other parties to this cause.

(h) That by reason of the foregoing premises, there was no controversy existing between the parties to said suit at the time of the filing of the bill of complaint herein and the entry of the decree upon said bill and answer of the defendant, National Radiator Corporation.

4. That your petitioner further objects to the confirmation of the sale and to the decree entered and filed herein [fol. 731] on May 31st, 1932, insofar as the same effects and applies to her as a non-assenting bondholder, on the ground that the plan is unfair and inequitable insofar as it permits the preferred stockholders of the National Radiator Corporation to share in any of the stock to be issued by the new corporation pursuant to the plan described in the complaint.

5. That the plan is unfair, unjust and inequitable because it does not provide for adequate compensation to non-assenting bondholders who are entitled to receive in cash the principal amount of the bonds together with the redemption premium provided in the Indenture and also accrued interest upon said bonds to date of payment.

6. That your petitioner, by appearing herein in opposition to the confirmation of the sale and to the aforesaid decree insofar as it applies to non-assenting bondholders, does not waive any objections to the jurisdiction of this court and hereby reserves any and all objections and exceptions to this court's exercise of jurisdiction in this cause, insofar as it applies to non-assenting bondholders.

7. That the plan is unfair, unjust and inequitable because it provides for payment in full of all liabilities of the National Radiator Corporation for services and merchandise which have not been paid at the time of the acquisition by the new corporation of the assets and business of said National Radiator Corporation.

[fol. 732] 8. That the plan is unfair, unjust and inequitable because it provides for the issuance to preferred stockholders of common stock in the new company share for share without the payment of additional cash in consideration therefor.

Wherefore your petitioner respectfully prays that the sale be not confirmed and that the decree entered herein on the 31st day of May, 1932, be set aside and vacated as against your petitioner and the non-assenting holders of debentures of the National Radiator Corporation.

Dated New York, August 15th, 1932.

PETITION OF EDWARD J. RAMSEY IN OPPOSITION TO CONFIRMATION OF SALE OF ASSETS BY RECEIVERS—Filed Aug. 17, 1932

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court:

The petition of Edward J. Ramsey, in behalf of himself and all other preferred stockholders of the National Radiator Corporation who are opposed to and who refuse to accept the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the reorganization of the National Radiator Corporation, respectfully represents:

1. That he is the holder of five hundred shares of preferred stock of the National Radiator Corporation.

2. That he respectfully appears herein to oppose the confirmation of the sale insofar as the same affects him as a holder of preferred stock who has not assented to the Plan of Reorganization of the Reorganization Committee constituted under the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of the National Radiator Corporation, on the ground that this court is and was [fol. 734] without jurisdiction to appoint receivers of said corporation and order the sale of its assets.

3. That your petitioner also respectfully represents to this court, upon information and belief, that the suit was improperly and collusively made and joined by the parties thereto for the purpose of creating an alleged cause cognizable by a Federal court of equity, in violation of Section 37 of the U. S. Judicial Code, as follows:

(a) That prior to the 1st day of February, 1931, when an installment of interest became due under the Debenture described in the complaint herein, the National Radiator Corporation conceived the plan to reorganize for the purpose of reducing and scaling its funded debt.

(b) That pursuant to said plan, a Reorganization Committee, composed of the complainants Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters, was appointed by the defendant, National Radiator Corporation, as its agent to effect said reorganization.

(c) That John H. Waters is, and at all the times stated herein was, the President and a director of said National Radiator Corporation, and Rudolph B. Flershem is, and at all the times stated herein was, an officer and director of said corporation.

(d) That pursuant to said plan, the National Radiator Corporation defaulted in the payment of interest on the [fol. 735] 1st day of February, 1931, and shortly thereafter through the Reorganization Committee submitted the plan of reorganization which is set forth in Schedule B annexed to the complaint.

(e) That on or about the 16th day of September, 1931, said Reorganization Committee declared said plan operative and in full force and effect and that thereafter, on or about the 17th day of September, 1931, pursuant to agreement theretofore made with the Bondholders' Protective Committee, the complainant, Frank B. Cahn, a member thereof, was elected a member of the Reorganization Committee.

(f) That in and by said plan, the Reorganization Committee and all the bondholders who had deposited their bonds under said Plan and Agreement, had agreed, with the National Radiator Corporation, to the organization of a new company to which should be transferred the assets of the National Radiator Corporation, and had agreed to accept in payment for their claims, arising out of the debentures and unpaid and accrued interest, securities of said new corporation in full payment and discharge for said debentures and accrued interest.

(g) That the Bankers Trust Company had knowledge of and actively participated in the plans and all proceedings for the reorganization of said National Radiator Corpora- [fol. 736] tion, and at all times acted in collusion with the other parties to this cause.

(h) That by reason of the foregoing premises, there was no controversy existing between the parties to said suit at the time of the filing of the bill of complaint herein and the entry of the decree upon said bill and answer of the defendant, National Radiator Corporation.

4. That the plan is unfair, unjust and inequitable because it does not provide for any compensation in cash to non-assenting preferred stockholders who, pursuant to the statutes of the State of Delaware, in which State the National Radiator Corporation was incorporated, are entitled to compensation in cash upon the reorganization of a corporation organized in said State and the transfer of its assets to a new corporation.

5. That your petitioner, by appearing herein in opposition to the confirmation of the sale and to the aforesaid decree insofar as it applies to non-assenting preferred stockholders, does not waive any objections to the jurisdiction of this court and hereby reserves any and all objections and exceptions to this court's exercise of jurisdiction in this cause, insofar as it applies to non-assenting preferred stockholders.

Wherefore your petitioner respectfully prays that the sale be not confirmed and that the decree entered herein on the 31st day of May, 1932, be set aside and vacated as [fol. 737] against your petitioner and the non-assenting preferred stockholders of the National Radiator Corporation.

PETITION FOR APPEAL OF JOSEPHINE RAMSEY AND AMY ARZT —Filed Nov. 4, 1932

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court:

Josephine Ramsey and Amy Artz, holders of debentures of National Radiator Corporation, defendant above named, who have refused to accept the Plan and Agreement dated February 11th, 1931, for the reorganization of the said National Radiator Corporation and who have appeared in this suit in opposition to the confirmation of the sale of the assets of the defendant corporation, conceiving themselves aggrieved by the Decree Confirming Sale and Approving Deed made and entered in the above entitled case on the 8th day of September, 1932, hereby jointly and severally appeal therefrom to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit for the reasons specified in the Assignments of Error filed herewith, and petitioners pray that this appeal may be allowed; that a citation be is- [fol. 739] sued as provided by law; that a transcript of the record, proceedings and papers upon which said decree was made be duly authenticated and sent to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit; and that an order be made fixing the amount of the cost bond which petitioners shall file upon said appeal.

Ramsey and Amy Arzt having been presented in open court, and it appearing to the court that the petitioners have filed their Assignments of Error, it is ordered and decreed that an appeal be, and the same hereby is, allowed the petitioners, jointly and severally, to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit from the decree entered in the above entitled case on September 8th, 1932; that a citation be issued as provided by law; that a transcript of the record, proceedings and papers upon which said decree was made be duly authenticated and sent to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit; and that an appeal bond for costs be given in the sum of $500.00.

[fol. 740] IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

ASSIGNMENTS OF ERROR—Filed Nov. 4, 1932

Now come Josephine Ramsey and Amy Arzt, by their solicitors, and having jointly and severally prayed an appeal from the Decree Confirming Sale and Approving Deed entered in this cause on September 8th, 1932, respectfully show that the said decree is erroneous, and should be reversed and set aside, for the following reasons:

1. The District Court erred in making and entering the Decree Confirming Sale and Approving Deed dated September 8th, 1932, to which exceptions have been duly noted in behalf of the appellants herein, the said decree and the said exceptions being made part hereof by reference thereto as the same appear in the record of this case.

2. The District Court erred in approving and confirming the receivers' sale of the assets of the defendant corporation.

3. The District Court erred in overruling appellants' objection to the confirmation of said sale, insofar as the same affects appellants as holders of debentures of the defendant corporation who have not assented to the said Plan and Agreement for the reorganization of the defendant corporation, which objection was based on the ground that the said District Court is and was without jurisdiction to appoint receivers for the defendant corporation or to order the sale of its assets or to order the payment to non-assent-
[fol. 741] ing bondholders of their aliquot share of the forced sale value realized upon such sale.

4. The District Court erred in overruling appellants' objection to the confirmation of said sale, based upon the ground that this suit was improperly and collusively made and joined by the parties thereto for the purpose of creating an alleged cause cognizable by a Federal court of equity, in violation of Section 37 of the United States Judicial Code.

5. The District Court erred in holding that the provisions of the Plan and Agreement dated February 11th, 1931, for the reorganization of the defendant corporation are equitable and fair, and in overruling appellants' objections to the said Plan and Agreement.

Wherefore, and in order that the foregoing Assignments of Error may be and appear of record in this case, the appellants herein present the same to this court and pray that such disposition may be made thereof as is in accordance with the law and the statutes of the United States in such case made and provided; and appellants further pray that said final decree may be reversed and vacated and the District Court be directed to enter such decree in this cause, consistent with appellants' rights, as the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit shall deem just.

PETITION FOR APPEAL OF EDWARD J. RAMSEY—Filed Nov. 4, 1932

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court:

Edward J. Ramsey, a holder of preferred stock of National Radiator Corporation, defendant above named, who has refused to accept the Plan and Agreement dated February 11th, 1931, for the reorganization of the said National Radiator Corporation and who has appeared in this suit in opposition to the confirmation of the sale of the assets of the defendant corporation, conceiving himself aggrieved by the Decree Confirming Sale and Approving Deed made and entered in the above entitled case on the 8th day of September, 1932, hereby appeals therefrom to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit for the reasons specified in the Assignments of Error filed herewith, and petitioner prays that this appeal may be allowed; that a citation be issued as provided by law; that a transcript of the record, proceedings and papers upon which said decree was made be duly authenticated and sent to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit; and that an order be made fixing the amount of the cost bond which petitioner shall file upon said appeal.

ORDER ALLOWING APPEAL

Now, to-wit, November 4th, 1932, the foregoing petition of Edward J. IN UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

ASSIGNMENTS OF ERROR—Filed Nov. 4, 1932

Now comes Edward J. Ramsey, by his solicitors, and having prayed an appeal from the Decree Confirming Sale and Approving Deed entered in this cause on September 8th, 1932, respectfully shows that the said decree is erroneous, and should be reversed and set aside, for the following reasons:

1. The District Court erred in making and entering the Decree Confirming Sale and Approving Deed dated September 8th, 1932, to which exceptions have been duly noted, in behalf of the appellant herein, the said decree and the [fol. 744] said exception being made part hereof by reference thereto as the same appear in the record of this case.

2. The District Court erred in approving and confirming the receivers' sale of the assets of the defendant corporation.

3. The District Court erred in overruling appellant's objection to the confirmation of said sale, insofar as the same affects appellant as a holder of preferred stock of the defendant corporation who has not assented to the said Plan and Agreement for the reorganization of the defendant corporation, which objection was based on the ground that the said District Court is and was without jurisdiction to appoint receivers for the defendant corporation or to order the sale of its assets.

4. The District Court erred in overruling appellant's objection to the confirmation of said sale, based upon the ground that this suit was improperly and collusively made and joined by the parties thereto for the purpose of creating an alleged caused cognizable by a Federal court of equity, in violation of Section 37 of the United States Judicial Code.

5. The District Court erred in holding that the provisions of the Plan and Agreement dated February 11th, 1931, for the reorganization of the defendant corporation are equitable and fair, and in overruling appellant's objection to the said Plan and Agreement.

[fol. 745] Wherefore, and in order that the foregoing Assignments of Error may be and appear of record in this case, the appellant herein presents the same to this court and prays that such disposition may be made thereof as is in accordance with the law and the statutes of the United States in such case made and provided; and appellant further prays that said final decree may be reversed and vacated and the District Court be directed to enter such decree in this cause, consistent with appellant's rights, as the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit shall deem just.

Adjourned Meeting of the Board of Directors Held at Johnstown, Pa., January 31, 1931

Called to Order:

Meeting was called to order at 2:00 o'clock P. M., Eastern Standard Time, at the office of the Corporation at 221 Central Avenue, Johnstown, Pennsylvania.

Attendance:

Present: Charles L. Crouse, Harry S. Endsley, Carl E. Resley, George O. Suppes, John H. Waters, Robert S. Waters, Samuel B. Waters, (7, same being a quorum).

Absent: Herman E. Baumer, Andrew B. Crichton, Rudolph B. Flershem, John Price Jones, John W. Watson (5).

John H. Waters presided and Carl E. Resley acted as Secretary.

Notice of Meeting:

The Secretary reported that this was an adjourned meeting of the one held January 28, 1931 and was called at the direction of the Chairman of the Board.

[fol. 748] Approval of Minutes:

Minutes of the Board of Directors' meeting held on January 28, 1931, were read and approved as read. Due to press of other matters, the minutes of Board meetings held on March 11, 1930 and April 12, 1930 were not read and approved; such action being deferred to a later meeting.

Debenture Interest Due February 1, 1931:

The Chairman stated that the meeting had been called for the purpose of taking formal action with respect to the payment of the interest due on February 1, 1931 on the Corporation's outstanding 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, a matter which had been the subject of serious consideration by the Directors and the Executive Committee for the past several months. In this connection, the Chairman submitted to the Board a tentative balance sheet of the Company as of December 31, 1930. The Chairman pointed out that, although the cash working capital of the Company as shown by the balance sheet was reasonably ample, it was evident that, if the Company were to do an increasing volume of business, it would require the use of all or a substantial part of this cash to carry larger inventories and receivables, and that it would also be necessary to make large expenditures for the design of new products and for equipment necessary in their manufacture. Otherwise, the Chairman pointed out it might well prove to be impossible to maintain the Company's competitive business as against other enterprises in the industry. The Chairman then referred to the fact that the management had considered the [fol. 749] advisability of a reorganization and had requested Messrs. Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters to act as a Committee to consider the matter and to formulate a Plan of Reorganization which might be submitted to the security holders of the Company. The Chairman reported that this Committee was now considering the matter of reorganization and had formed the opinion that a reorganization was advisable. The Board then proceeded to discuss at length the question as to whether it was advisable to pay the interest due on February 1, 1931 on the Corporation's Debentures.

In the course of the discussion, it was expressed as the view of all the Directors present that the continuation of the business operations of the Company required the conservation at this time of the cash resources of the Company, particularly as the outlook for the immediate future was obscure, and that, in view of general business conditions, it was not possible to forecast with any assurance an early recovery in the earning power of the Company. It was also expressed as the opinion of all the Directors that a liquidation of the Company under present conditions would be most unfortunate, as it would result in only a very small payment to Debenture holders and other creditors, and would leave nothing for the stockholders of the Company.

At the close of the discussion on motion duly made and seconded, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted by the affirmative vote of every Director present at the meeting:

[fol. 750] Whereas, in the opinion of this Board of Directors, the continuance of the business operations of this Company requires the conversation at this time of its cash resources; and

Whereas, it is further the opinion of this Board of Directors, that, to avoid a liquidation, it is advisable and for the best interests of its security holders, that this Company be reorganized with all possible expedition, upon a basis which will provide a revised capital structure with drastically reduced fixed charges and which will permit the employment of the liquid assets of the Company in the current conduct of its business;

Resolved, that it is the considered opinion and judgment of the Board of Directors of this Company that it should, for the reasons hereinabove recited, omit the payment of the interest due on February 1, 1931, upon its outstanding 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, and, accordingly the Officers of this Company are hereby directed to omit the payment of such interest;

Further Resolved, that this Board of Directors hereby ratifies, confirms and approves the action of the management of the Company in requesting Messrs. Rudolph B. Flershem, Charles O. Cornell and John H. Waters to act as a Reorganization Committtee to formulate and submit to the security holders a Plan of Reorganization of the character aforesaid.

Further Resolved, that, when and if said Plan of Reorganization shall be formulated by said Committee, all expenses of every nature whatsoever incurred by the Re- [fol. 751] organization Committee pursuant to or under the terms and provisions of said Plan, and the compensation of said Committee for services thereunder, shall be paid by this Company, and the proper Officers of this Company are hereby authorized to deliver to said Reorganization Committee an undertaking to that effect and to make payments accordingly for any and all such expenses upon receipt of bills and/or vouchers properly approved by the Reorganization Committee.

Adjournment:

No further business being presented, the meeting adjourned at 3:15 o'clock P. M., Eastern Standard Time.

(Signed) Carl E. Resley, Secretary.

First. The Reorganization Committee, in the exercise of the powers conferred upon it by the Reorganization Plan, hereby augments said Reorganization Plan by the following supplementary provisions to Article III of the Reorganization Plan:

In respect of the description of the 15-Year 5% Debentures to be authorized by the New Company provided for in said Plan:

(a) In the Indenture under which said Debentures will be issued the New Company will also covenant that so long as any of the New Debentures are outstanding it will not mortgage or pledge any of its property or assets to secure any funded debt as defined in the Indenture without simultaneously making provisions for securing such New Debentures by a prior lien upon such property or assets. The Indenture aforesaid shall contain clauses in this regard substantially similar to those contained in Paragraph (B) of Section 11 of Article IV of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, under which are now outstanding National Radiator Corporation's 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures.

(b) The Indenture under which the New Debentures are [fol. 755] to be issued shall provide that for the purpose of defining net earnings of the New Company, out of which current and unpaid accumulated interest on said New Debentures will be payable, there shall not be deductible in excess of $300,000, for depreciation in the calendar year 1934 or in any calendar year thereafter.

(c) The Indenture aforesaid shall contain clauses substantially similar to those recited in Article V of the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, under which are now outstanding National Radiator Corporation's 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, to the effect that

(1) it shall constitute an event of default should the New Company fail in the observance of any of the covenants or agreements on its part to be performed and the same shall not be remedied within 60 days after written notice of such default shall have been served upon said New Company by the Trustee acting under said Indenture; and

(2) default having occurred as aforesaid, the Trustee acting under said Indenture may in its discretion, and, upon request in writing by the holders of at least 25% in principal amount of the New Debentures then outstanding, shall, upon indemnification satisfactory to it, declare the principal of and interest on all said New Debentures if not already due, to be forthwith due and payable; and

(3) nothing in said Indenture or in the New Debentures or in the coupons attached thereto shall affect or impair [fol. 756] the obligation of the New Company to pay the principal and interest of the New Debentures to the respective holders or registered owners thereof as in such Debentures and coupons stated nor affect or impair the right of action at law of such holders to enforce such payment by virtue of the contract contained in the New Debentures and not by virtue or availing of any provision of the Indenture.

(d) The Indenture aforesaid shall also provide that it shall be an event of default should the net current assets of the New Company, computed according to standard accounting practice, be at the end of any calendar year commencing with the calendar year 1934, less than 55% of the principal amount of the New Debentures at the time outstanding. In the event of such default, the remedies of the Trustee acting under said Indenture shall be as set forth in subdivision (2) of paragraph (c) of section First hereof.

In respect of the $7 Preferred Stock to be authorized by the New Company provided for in said Plan:

(e) Funds legally available for dividends shall be limited to surplus profits or net earnings arising after the organization of the New Company and in no event shall be comprised of paid-in-surplus.

(f) In the calculation of surplus profits or net earnings, available for dividends in any calendar year, deduction [fol. 757] shall first be made therefrom of the earnings during such year payable as debenture interest.

Second. In the exercise of the powers conferred upon it by Article Sixth of the Deposit Agreement and in the performance of the duties thereby imposed, the Protective Committee has approved and adopted and hereby approves and adopts the Reorganization Plan as agumented by the supplementary provisions recited in the preceding paragraph First and upon the terms herein contained.

Third. The Protective Committee, when thereunto requested by the Reorganization Committee, will immediately file with the Empire Trust Company, at its office at 120 Broadway, New York, as the depositary named for such purpose in the Deposit Agreement, a copy of the Reorganization Plan and Agreement incorporating the supplementary provisions recited in paragraph First above, bearing written approval endorsed thereon of not less than a majority of the then members of the Protective Committee, and thereupon will give notice in form approved by the Reorganization Committee of the Protective Committee's approval and adoption of the Reorganization Plan and Agreement as so augmented and of the lodging of a copy thereof with said depositary, such notice to be given in the manner prescribed by Article Twelfth of said Deposit Agreement. Such notice shall also state that holders of Certificates of Deposit issued under the Deposit Agreement who do not elect to withdraw from said Deposit Agreement and from the Reorganization Plan [fol. 758] within 30 days from the date of the first publication of the same, shall be conclusively deemed irrevocably to have waived any right of withdrawal and to have finally assented to and adopted the Reorganization Plan. The Protective Committee will not authorize the withdrawal of any deposited Debentures after the expiration of such 30 days' period.

Fourth. Immediately upon the expiration of the 30 days' period prescribed in the preceding paragraph Third, the Protective Committee will transfer and deliver to the Reorganization Committee at the principal office of its Depositary, Bankers Trust Company, 16 Wall Street, New York, and until such transfer and delivery will hold (subject to the order of the Reorganization Committee, subject only to such right of withdrawal as any holder of a Certificate or Certificates of Deposit for said Debentures may have), all Debentures now and hereafter deposited with the Protective Committee, less only such principal amount thereof as may be withdrawn pursuant to right of withdrawal as aforesaid and said debentures shall be so transferred, delivered and held, free of any lien, charge or claim thereon, except to the extent expressly provided in the following Article Fifth, and accompanied in every instance by the February 1, 1931 interest coupon and subsequently maturing interest coupons appertaining thereto.

Fifth. In the event that the Reorganization Plan, without being consummated, is abandoned or, in the event that the Reorganization Committee shall modify the Reorganization Plan and/or the Reorganization Agreement or any [fol. 759] part thereof or shall adopt a substitute plan and any such modification or substitute plan in the opinion of the Reorganization Committee adversely affects to a material degree the holders of Certificates of Deposit for Debentures, so that the holders of Certificates of Deposit for Debentures shall be entitled to withdraw from deposit under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement any of said Debentures (or the avails thereof), the Protective Committee shall have the right upon written request to the Reorganization Committee to withdraw from deposit under the Reorganization Plan, upon the same terms and conditions as other Depositors under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement, any Debentures deposited under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement at the instance of the Protective Committee pursuant to the preceding Article Fourth.

Sixth. The Reorganization Committee, upon the transfer and delivery by the Protective Committee to the Reorganization Committee, in accordance with paragraph Fourth hereof, of the Debentures deposited with the Protective Committee and not withdrawn as aforesaid, will include among the reorganization expenses provided for in the Reorganization Plan and Agreement, as proper reorganization expenses, compensation, counsel fees and expenses of the Protective Committee in the sum of $35,000 (less a deduction at the rate of $30 for each $1,000 principal amount of Debentures withdrawn from deposit under the Deposit Agreement and, in consequence, not transferred and deposited under the Reorganization Plan). Such sum [fol. 760] shall be deemed fully paid by the deposit of the same to the account of the Protective Committee with Empire Trust Company, 120 Broadway, New York, it being understood that the Reorganization Committee is to be under no duty to see to the application of such fund.

Seventh. Except to make return to the Protective Committee of the Debentures deposited at the instance of the Protective Committee, in the event of any right arising for the withdrawal of any of the deposited Debentures, as provided in Article Fifth above, or to make the payment provided for in the preceding Article Sixth, the Reorganization Committee assumes no obligation with respect to any of the Debentures deposited under the Reorganization Plan except on the terms and conditions prescribed in the Reorganization Plan and Agreement as augmented as aforesaid. Moreover, nothing in this Settlement Agreement contained shall be taken to mean or imply that the Reorganization Committee is by this Settlement Agreement in any way obligated to the holders of Certificates of Deposit for Debentures deposited under the Reorganization Plan at the instance of the Protective Committee or to the Protective Committee or to any member thereof, except as expressly provided in this Settlement Agreement, the Reorganization Committee as enlarged pursuant hereto, hereby expressly reserving and retaining each and every power, right, immunity and discretion conferred upon the Reorganization Committee by the Reorganization Plan and Reorganization Agreement.

[fol. 761] Eighth. The Reorganization Committee undertakes:

(a) immediately upon the signing of this Settlement Agreement by the parties hereto, to add to its number as an additional member the gentleman whom the Reorganization

Committee shall designate from the present membership of the Protective Committee;

(b) to cause to be made a member of the Board of Directors of the New Company provided for in the Reorganization Plan one of the gentlemen whom the Reorganization Committee shall designate from the present membership of the Protective Committee; and

(c) in the exercise of the powers conferred upon the Reorganization Committee by Article IX of the Reorganization Plan, to cause the certificate of incorporation of the New Company provided for in the Reorganization Plan to contain a provision for cumulative voting and for a Board of Directors comprising such number of members that the aggregate number of votes which can be cast in respect of the shares of voting stock which under the Reorganization Plan are issuable in respect of the Debentures deposited at the instance of the Protective Committee under the Reorganization Plan pursuant to Article Fifth above, shall be sufficient to elect one member of such Board of Directors.

Ninth. Until such time as the Reorganization Plan may be abandoned or the Protective Committee may have the right pursuant hereto and to the Reorganization Plan and Agreement to withdraw from deposit under the Reorgani- [fol. 762] zation Plan the Debentures to be deposited thereunder by it as aforesaid, the Protective Committee, except upon the request and at the expense of the Reorganization Committee, shall not publish or circulate any advertisement or issue any notice or letter to holders of Debentures or certificates of deposit issued by it, either with respect to the affairs of National Radiator Corporation or the Reorganization Plan, it being expressly understood that the initiation or publication of any matters relating to the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation shall be the prerogative of the Reorganization Committee. The Protective Committee and each member thereof will, however, without additional compensation gladly cooperate with the Reorganization Committee in promoting the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation, and, at the request and expense of the Reorganization Committee, will issue or join in any notice or letter to its security holders. The member of the Protective Committee who accepts membership on the Reorganization Committee herewith agrees to give his best efforts toward the consummation of the Reorganization Plan and to serve as such member of the Reorganization Committee without compensation. In the event that the Reorganization Plan is consummated, all expenses of issuance and distribution of the new securities to the holders of certificates of deposit issued by the Depositary for the Protective Committee shall be borne by the Reorganization Committee.

Tenth. All of the undertakings and commitments on the part of the Reorganization Committee and the Protective [fol. 763] Committee under this Settlement Agreement are made by them respectively solely in their capacity as the Reorganization Committee constituted under the Reorganization Plan and as the Protective Committee constituted under the Deposit Agreement and no one of the individuals constituting the Reorganization Committee and/or the Protective Committee shall incur any personal liability whatsoever under this Settlement Agreement. The liability of the Reorganization Committee hereunder is expressly limited to such funds as shall properly come into the hands or under the control of the Reorganization Committee by reason of the Reorganization Plan.

In Witness Whereof, the parties hereto have signed and sealed this Settlement Agreement as of the day first above written.

National Radiator Corporation Reorganization Committee

Minute

The Reorganization Committee constituted under the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931 for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation, acting by a majority of its members, whose signatures appear below, hereby takes the following action:

A Settlement Agreement in form and terms approved by this Committee, as such approval shall be evidenced by the signatures to said Settlement Agreement of a majority of its members, to be made with the Protective Committee constituted under the Deposit Agreement dated as of February

2, 1931, is hereby authorized. In the opinion of this Committee, the claims asserted by said Protective Committee are claims which should be settled in connection with the consummation of the Reorganization Plan and Agreement. The compensation, counsel fees and expenses of said Protective Committee up to the amount of $35,000, less a deduction at the rate of $30 for each $1,000 principal amount of Debentures withdrawn from deposit under the aforesaid Deposit Agreement and, in consequence, not transferred and delivered to this Committee, are, in the opinion of this Committee, proper reorganization expenses to be assumed and paid by the New Company provided for in the Reorganization Plan.

[fol. 766] By virtue of authority conferred by Section 16 of the Reorganization Agreement, this Committee adds to its number as an additional member, when and as of the date the above-mentioned Settlement Agreement shall be signed and delivered, Frank B. Cahn.

EXHIBIT No. 9—ARTZ & RAMSEY

Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation under Plan and Agreement Dated February 11, 1931

Minutes of a Meeting of the Above-mentioned Reorganization Committee Held October 1, 1931, at 1:00 o'Clock P. M., in the Offices of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb, at 15 Broad Street, New York, N. Y.

Present: Messrs.. Rudolph B. Flershem, Chairman; Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters.

Mr. Cahn telephoned his inability to attend. Mr. Bennett and Mr. Ludington were also present and, in the absence of [fol. 767] the Secretary, Mr. Ludington acted as Secretary of the meeting.

Mr. Bennett disclosed to the meeting the pendency in the City Court for New York County of the action instituted by Rae Berger, plaintiff, v. National Radiator Corporation, defendant, by Messrs. Netter, Palley & Netter, attorneys, with offices at 521 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. This action was for the recovery of interest payable in respect of coupons due February 1 and August 1, 1931, appertaining to 24 of the Debentures of National Radiator Corporation. He stated that he had been informed that this same firm of lawyers proposed bringing a further action upon coupons appertaining to 30 to 36 additional Debentures of the same issue. He also stated that Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee under the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, under which these Debentures had been issued and were outstanding, would be required on request of this Committee, representing in excess of one-fourth in principal amount of these Debentures, to institute an action for the entire interest due and unpaid February 1 and August 1, 1931 upon the entire issue of these Debentures outstanding at said dates. He suggested, therefore, that it was in order at this time for this Committee to determine what course should be pursued not only to forward the purposes of the Reorganization Plan but also to prevent a multiplicity of suits against National Radiator Corporation, with consequent wasteful strife and controversy.

[fol. 768] After lengthy discussion, in the course of which Mr. Cahn, at his office in Baltimore, Maryland, was consulted by telephone, the Reorganization Committee unanimously approved and adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, that written request be made to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee under the Indenture dated August 1, 1927, for the 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of National Radiator Corporation and as Depositary under the Reorganization Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, to demand of National Radiator Corporation payment of the entire amount payable for interest represented by the coupons due February 1 and August 1, 1931, in respect of the aggregate principal amount of said Debentures now on deposit with said Depositary.

Further resolved, that by reason of the default of National Radiator Corporation in payment of interest due February 1 and August 1, 1931 in respect of its Debentures on deposit with this Committee and upon its refusal to pay such interest after demand duly made therefor, Messrs. Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb be and hereby are authorized and requested to cause to be filed in the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania a Bill of Complaint on behalf of this Committee against National Radiator Corporation, alleging its default as aforesaid and praying for the sale of its properties and the appointment of a receiver or receivers thereof and therefor and for such further relief as may be appropriate. [fol. 769] Further resolved, that ancillary to the Bill of Complaint filed in the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania, Messrs. Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb be and hereby are authorized and requested to cause to be filed against National Radiator Corporation Ancillary Bills of Complaint in the several jurisdictions where its several plants and properties are located and in Delaware, the State of its incorporation.

Further resolved, that local counsel to represent this Committee be selected by Messrs. Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb, in consultation with Mr. John H. Waters of this Committee.

Further resolved, that Mr. Charles O. Cornell or any other member of this Committee be and hereby is authorized to sign or verify any Bill of Complaint or other document required for or incidental to the judicial proceedings instituted by and on behalf of this Committee.

The Chairman stated that the foregoing resolutions, unanimously approved and adopted by a majority of the members of said Reorganization Committee at a meeting duly held, constituted the valid act of the Reorganization Committee. The meeting deferred for later action any request upon Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, to act. No further business appearing, the meeting was thereupon adjourned.

Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation under Plan and Agreement Dated February 11, 1931

Minute.

The undersigned Reorganization Committee hereby determines to borrow of Bankers Trust Company, New York, up to $10,000 and for its loan to give this Committee's promissory note, in form specified by said institution, secured by the pledge of all the Debentures which are now or may hereafter from time to time be on deposit with it as Depositary, or with any successor Depositary, under the above-mentioned Reorganization Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, and all proceeds or avails thereof which may at any time be on deposit with or under the custody or control of the Reorganization Committee.

The proceeds of the aforesaid loan may be drawn against upon the written order of any member of the Reorganization Committee and Bankers Trust Company is hereby au- [fol. 771] thorized and directed to honor and make advances from time to time of the proceeds of the aforesaid loan upon such written order.

The proceeds of said loan may be applied by any member of this Committee drawing against the same to the payment of the expenses of this Committee and the disbursements of its Secretary and, in particular, to the payment in full of the loan, in the amount of not exceeding $6,000 and interest, extended by Empire Trust Company to the Bondholders' Protective Committee, which, by agreement between this Committee and said Bondholders' Protective Committee, this Committee has assumed.

Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation under Plan and Agreement Dated February 11, 1931

Rudolph B. Flershem, Chairman; Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters, Frank B. Cahn, Reorganization Committee. Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb, 15 Broad Street, New York, Counsel. Armand Erpf, Secretary, 50 Broad Street, New York.

Minutes of a Meeting of the Above-mentioned Reorganization Committee Held November 28, 1931, at 10:00 o'Clock A. M., in the Offices of Milbank, Tweed, Hope & Webb, at 15 Broad Street, New York, N. Y.

Present: Messrs. Rudolph B. Flershem, Chairman; Charles O. Cornell, John H. Waters.

Absent: Mr. Frank B. Cahn.

Mr. Ludington, in the absence of Mr. Erpf, the Secretary of this Committee, acted as secretary of the meeting.

[fol. 773] Various matters were presented to the meeting and were disposed of as follows:

1. Mr. Ludington projected in summary the procedure to be followed in bringing to a sale the properties and assets of National Radiator Corporation and the subsequent steps to ensue in consummating the reorganization in conformity with the provisions of the above-mentioned Reorganization Plan and Agreement. This summary of procedure as hereinafter stated was considered and approved. The immediate step to be taken is the actual sale of the aforesaid properties and assets, dependent upon the conclusion of the following matters:

(a) Evacuation of all leased warehouses, the leases of which are to be terminated by the receivers. These leases ought to be terminated before the end of the current calendar year, in order that the lessors may be in a position to prove their claims, without extension of time for such purpose, prior to the expiration of the period for the proof of claims now fixed by court order at December 31, 1931. None of these leases ought to be terminated, however, until the entire stock of goods in the particular leased warehouse has been withdrawn, thus to preclude the lessor from asserting any lien against such goods. Moreover, the principal of the Debentures ought not to be declared due until either these warehouses have been evacuated or ancillary proceedings have been instituted in the jurisdiction in which such warehouses are situated. From an estimate made by Mr. Resley of the cost of withdrawing stored [fol. 774] goods in warehouse it would appear to be cheaper to withdraw such goods from warehouse than to institute ancillary proceedings in each jurisdiction in which a leased warehouse is located.

(b) Preparation should be made to present to the court testimony in respect of the due authorization and issuance of the Debentures, their negotiation and the default in the payment of the interest in respect thereof February 1, 1931; the amount thereof outstanding and the present liquidating value of the properties and assets of National Radiator Corporation.

(c) Reduction of the amount of Debentures outstanding today of $603,000, through efforts to obtain deposits now as well as during the period of advertisement between the actual ordering of a sale of the aforesaid properties and assets and the date when such sale takes place.

Mr. Waters reported in respect of the following leased warehouses:

*Omaha, now empty.
*Indianapolis, now empty.
*Milwaukee, contains goods valued at $21,000.
*Cleveland, contains goods valued at $25,000.
*St. Louis, contains goods valued at $25,000.
*Philadelphia, contains goods valued at $10,000.
Brooklyn, contains goods valued at $25,000.
Toronto, contains goods valued at $5,000.

*Leases to be terminated, with this Committee's approval.

[fol. 775] Conditioned upon the conclusion of the foregoing, the Reorganization Committee in respect of the deposited Debentures will request Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee under the Indenture securing the same, to declare due immediately the principal of all of the Debentures outstanding under said Indenture. Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee would then declare due such principal and would obtain a judgment for the amount of all of said Debentures. With such judgment it would then intervene as a party plaintiff in the proceeding pending in the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania. Thereupon

(d) An official inventory and an appraisal by the court's appraisers of the assets of National Radiator Corporation must be filed.

(e) A hearing as to the fairness of the above-mentioned Reorganization Plan and Agreement should be had, concluding with an application to the court for an order of sale of the properties and assets of the National Radiator Corporation.

The order of sale will be preceded by some period of notice to creditors and other parties in interest and should result in a final decree, fixing the date of actual sale. There will then ensue a period of time for publication of notice of sale, during four successive calendar weeks, as required by the Federal statutes. Then in the ordinary course, the sale will take place and, if the price bid was not less than the upset price, or, if there were no upset price, would be reported back to the court for confirmation. In the event of [fol. 776] the sale being at a price deemed by the court inadequate or less than the upset price a new sale might be ordered; otherwise confirmation of the sale could be expected.

2. Consideration was next given to what would be the probable amount of the upset price, in the event that an upset price were insisted upon by the court in ordering a sale of the National Radiator Corporation properties. Mr. Ludington stated that its amount would be based on a number of factors: namely, actual cash on hand, the capitalization of earnings, the market value of the Corporation's securities and the probable liquidating value of the Corporation's plants and other assets. $1,400,000 of cash would seem to fix the minimum, and the probable liquidating value of the plants and other assets would seem to fix the maximum, amount of such upset price. As to such liquidating value the following estimate was tentatively arrived at:

Cash	$1,400,000
Accounts receivable	600,000
Inventory	600,000
Total current assets	$2,600,000
Plant and equipment	1,000,000
Total properties and assets	$3,600,000
Outstanding Debentures	$10,707,000
Accrued interest	985,000
Current liabilities	223,000
Total proyable claims	$11,915,000

[fol. 777] This yields $30 per $100 of Debentures and in respect of the $603,000 of Debentures outstanding would require a distribution of $180,900. It was the sense of the meeting, therefore, that Mr. Cornell should visit Johnstown for the purpose of making an analysis of the various properties and inventory, so that a considered valuation could be arrived at for them. Mr. Waters undertook to collect data having bearing upon the sale of surplus materials by the American Radiator Company, also correspondence and other papers relating to previous efforts of National Radiator Corporation during the past two years to sell its Framingham, Tonawanda and Dunkirk plants.

G. F. Ludington, per Mr. Waters' letter dated December 7, 1931.

3. Mr. Waters undertook to report on the probable period of time required and the cost involved in the evacuation of the leased warehouses mentioned above, in which stocks of goods still remain.

4. This Committee approved and signed, subject to delivery upon its further instructions, a written request directed to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, to declare due the principal of all of the outstanding Debentures of National Radiator Corporation.

5. Mr. Cornell reported that Bankers Trust Company was of opinion that the transfer agency for both classes of stock of the new company should go to one institution, preferably the Bankers Trust Company, and that the registrarship of both of said classes of stock should go to [fol. 778] another institution, preferably the Marine Midland Trust Company. Bankers Trust Company also suggested New York Trust Company as Trustee for the new debentures. Upon this report it was decided that the Bankers Trust Company be the Transfer Agent for the common stock and preferred stock of the new company and that the Marine Midland Trust Company be the Registrar of the common stock and preferred stock of the new company and that Mr. Cornell express to Bankers Trust Company the wish of this Committee, to be effective, unless actually disapproved of by Bankers Trust Company, that the Trustee for the new debentures be the Manufacturers Trust Company.

6. Mr. Waters requested that the certificate of incorporation and Indenture to secure the new debentures of the new company be prepared at an early date. He undertook to consider with his counsel and report to this Committee his wishes with respect to the State of incorporation of the new company, it being the sense of the meeting that in the absence of countervailing considerations the new company should be organized under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania and should acquire unto itself all of the properties and assets of National Radiator Corporation, without intervention of subsidiary companies.

7. The personnel of the new company's Board of Directors was given consideration and was referred to Messrs. Flershem and Waters for ultimate decision. Mr. Cornell was requested to ascertain of Bankers Trust Company and of J. & W. Seligman & Co. if they had any sug-[fol. 779] gestions to make in respect to membership on said Board of Directors. It was the sense of the meeting that said Board of Directors should consist of twelve members, one of whom would be Mr. Frank B. Cahn and that the remaining members should be persons satisfactory to Mr. Waters and of his nomination, to the extent that circumstances did not require the inclusion of any others.

No further business appearing, the meeting was thereupon adjourned.

A true copy.

G. Franklin Ludington, Secretary of the Meeting.

Approved:

Appeal from the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania

Before Woolley, Circuit Judge, and Dickinson and Kirkpatrick, District Judges

OPINION—Filed March 24, 1933

WOOLLEY, Circuit Judge:

The National Radiator Corporation was engaged in the manufacture and sale of radiators, boilers and other instrumentalities of radiation. It was organized in 1927 by the consolidation or merger of six independent companies in the radiator industry. Preliminary to the consolidation an appraisal of their assets was made in the sum of $26,192,000 (speaking for convenience always in round numbers).

Upon the basis of this appraisal and a showing of earnings of the constituent companies for the previous four years in sums between $2,456,000 and $3,488,000 a year, the new corporation, with $2,972,000 in cash and current liabilities of $1,478,000, issued $12,000,000 Gold Sinking Fund Debentures, bearing 6½ per cent. interest, of which $10,705,000 became outstanding. It also issued 60,000 shares of $7.00 Cumulative Convertible Preferred Stock and 270,000 shares (no par value) of common stock at an estimated value of $11,500,000, making total liabilities to security holders of all grades of about $23,000,000. Neither then nor later did it place mortgage liens upon its properties.

[fol. 802] With this capital structure, completed in August 1927, the new corporation embarked in business and earned $993,000 in the last four months of that year.

In 1928, however, the construction of residential, commercial and industrial buildings throughout the country, on which the business of the corporation was dependent, began to fall off. Immediately unfavorable competitive conditions developed. Construction work continued to decline, causing the corporation to suffer in each of the three years succeeding its organization an average deficit of $600,000 before interest on the debentures or a deficit of $1,310,000 after interest but before sinking fund charges. In this situation, which was becoming progressively worse, the corporation defaulted in interest on the debentures due February 1, 1931, though unquestionably having in hand more than enough money to pay it. A Reorganization Committee, being appointed, set to work and evolved a plan to which we shall advert presently. To this plan about 96 per cent of the security holders assented. About 3 per cent stood silent and 1 per cent objected. This took time. Another interest payment came due August 1, 1931 on which the corporation defaulted. It defaulted also on its sinking fund obligation, though having enough money in hand to pay the former and partially, if not wholly, to meet the latter. During these successive defaults the corporation was, naturally enough, harassed by suits and threats of suits. To prevent waste in the creditors' race of diligence and to protect security holders, the members of the Reorganization Committee, on October 1, 1931, filed a bill in the District Court praying for the appointment of receivers. Their prayer was granted.

The receivers, nine or ten months after their appointment, asked the court for an order authorizing them to sell all the assets of the corporation at a judicial sale for an upset price to be named by the court and under terms of [fol. 803] the Reorganization Plan. The plain purpose of the application was to dispose of the corporation's assets in a manner which would conserve and hold them as a going concern for the protection of the senior security holders.

The court made such an order. In August 1932, the receivers sold all the assets on the bid of the Reorganization Committee and the court confirmed the sale. The position of the objecting security holders (now appellants) is that, assuming but never conceding its jurisdiction to order and confirm the sale, the court erred in fixing the upset price of $2,500,000 and in confirming the sale for $2,550,000.

On the motion for an order of sale the learned trial judge set about to fix an upset price by determining the fair market value of the assets, an almost insuperable task when considered with respect to their character, the feeble market for some of them and, in these extraordinary times, an entire absence of a market for others. He had before him book values of upwards of $18,000,000 which, manifestly, were values out of all relation to the actualities. He was dealing with a proposed sale in the midst of a great business depression and therefore was concerned with selling values; doubtless realizing that, ordinarily, a thing is worth only what it will fetch. He called upon all parties for evidence on the subject. The complainants, at a hearing lasting four days, produced a mass of facts, figures and opinions; the objecting security holders produced nothing. On the uncontradicted evidence, which was all he had to go on, the learned judge set an upset price for all assets of the corporation at $2,500,000, or $200,000 more than the highest figure the witnesses had given of what might be expected in liquidation.

We have at much labor studied and absorbed this record. a recital of the mass of facts and figures would add nothing to the decision of the case. It will be sufficient to say [fol. 804] that, notwithstanding what on first view is a startling disparity between book values and market values, we cannot find on the evidence that the learned judge erred in naming the price in the order of sale. If the upset price of $2,500,000 reflected the fair market value of the assets, we cannot find on the assignment charging error in confirming the sale that the purchase price of $2,550,000 was inadequate. At this figure, the purchase price was two per cent above the upset price and ten per cent above the highest price the evidence indicated as likely to be realized in liquidation.

The assignments charging error in the order of sale and the order of confirmation are dismissed.

The law of the case arises out of a demand by the appellant-securityholders that they be paid and, to that end, the corporation be put in liquidation, and out of their challenge of the jurisdiction of the court to appoint receivers and order a sale of assets under the proposed plan of reorganization which they say was devised by certain securityholders and officials of the corporation and the trustee for the debentures in fraud of other securityholders.

We shall briefly dispose of the last question—collusion and fraud—by giving our judgment, which is in complete accord with the finding of the learned trial judge, that while the evidence shows consultation and cooperation between these several parties in formulating the plan it does not disclose collusion or fraud.

We have now reached the central question in the case, that of jurisdiction of the court to entertain the bill for receivers. It is pertinent to note the bill did not say the corporation was insolvent. That, in effect, was a tacit admission or declaration of its solvency. The corporation, by its answer, admitted the truth of all allegations of the bill. [fol. 805] Concededly, the corporation was solvent in the sense of having fluid assets enough to pay its debts then due in the usual course of trade—without giving thought to the consequences. It was perhaps not then known, as was subsequently proved, that the corporation was insolvent within the definition of the Bankruptcy Act (Section 1, cl. 15), where "the aggregate of (its) property * * * (was) not, at a fair valuation, sufficient in amount to pay (its) debts". Whatever may have been the corporation's condition as to solvency at the time of bringing the action, clearly the bill was filed on the assumption of its solvency, yet on the need of a conservation receivership for the protection of securityholders who ranked as creditors. Although after the appointment of receivers and before sale of the assets, the Bankers Trust Company, trustee for the debentures, brought two suits against the corporation, one for interest in arrears, the other for the principal of the debentures, and obtained judgments in the aggregate amount of $11,674,000, thereby indicating, as a practical matter, that the corporation was then insolvent within any of the definitions, we shall continue to regard the receivership, according to the tenor of the bill, as one for conservation of assets. In this connection it should be noted as bearing on the court's jurisdiction that the complainants in the bill were not judgment creditors. The respondent corporation, however, tacitly waived that fact and expressly consented to the decree. The Pusey & Jones Company vs. Hanssen, 261 U. S. 491, 497; Shapiro vs. Wilgus, 287 U. S. 348. Thereafter the Bankers Trust Company, plaintiff in the two judgments and then a judgment creditor of the corporation, was allowed to intervene as party-plaintiff in this case and thenceforward participated in its prosecution.

The appellants' attack on the jurisdiction of the court to entertain the bill, appoint receivers and order a sale of assets as an entirety is disclosed by the three questions they have presented:

[fol. 806] (1) "May a federal court of equity, in the absence of other equitable grounds, take jurisdiction of a foreign corporation which is solvent and able, in regular course, to pay its obligations in full, for the primary purpose of reorganizing it?"

(2) "May a federal court of equity, in the absence of other equitable grounds, and solely for the purpose of reorganizing a corporation which is not insolvent nor in imminence of insolvency appoint receivers to take possession of such corporation's property until it can be sold?"

The plain answer to these questions is "no".

The phrase "in the absence of other equitable grounds" compels this answer because it excludes the essence of the court's jurisdiction in such matters. It is the presence of equitable grounds calling for relief in equity which gives the court jurisdiction. A court of equity is not a forum of convenience to be used by a corporation merely to straighten out its business difficulties or to rebuild its financial structure. Nor is it a place of refuge to which debtors may go for protection against their creditors and against the remedies of suit, judgment, execution and sale which the law affords them. Debtor corporations are not wards of chancery. There is nothing in the mere fact of a corporation's indebtedness, nor in its inability to pay, nor in its wish to make some composition with its creditors that confers equitable jurisdiction upon a court. It is only when [fol. 807] there is something in a situation which sets up an equitable right and admits of equitable relief that parties may go into a court of equity and assert one and obtain the other. Common instances are where a corporation is insolvent or where its insolvency is imminent. Even in the latter case the right of a federal court of equity (cautiously exercised) to appoint receivers at the instance of simple contract creditors if the debtor corporation consents, is not, as one of the appellants admits, debatable. Michigan vs. Michigan Trust Company, 286 U. S. 334; Shapiro vs. Wilgus, 287 U. S. 348.

The appellants' third question, however, contains no nullifying exceptions and goes directly to the point. It is:

(3) "Does the bill of complaint in the primary cause set forth facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action for the appointment of receivers or for other equitable relief?"

The bill must, as we have stated, have equity, and equity will not lie in the mere fact, if such were the case, that the corporation could not pay interest. Here the corporation could presently pay, but payment foretold imminent consequences disastrous to the corporation and, what is more to the point, disastrous to its securityholders. Plainly those consequences were insolvency with its attendant evils to all concerned. The fact that the corporation had in hand sufficient money to meet certain current indebtedness did not alter the underlying conditions. Continental & Commercial T. & S. Bank vs. Allis-Chalmers Co., 200 Fed. 600, 613; In re Babcock, 26 Fed. (2d) 153. The facts of the situation, showing, as we find, imminence of insolvency and collapse, calling for protection of creditors, constituted a ground of equity for which relief could validity be asked by simple contract creditors within the law of The Pusey & Jones Company vs. Hanssen, 261 U. S. 491 and within the warning of Shapiro vs. Wilgus, 287 U. S. 348. The case therefore falls within the rule distinguished and succinctly stated by Judge Learned Hand in Luhrig Collieries Co. vs. Interstate Coal & Dock Co., 281 Fed. 265, 268, 269. There he showed that a bill of the character of this one, filed by simple contract creditors, is an evolution out of the judgment [fol. 808] creditors' bill to supplement the writ of execution, of which a court of equity may, with caution, assume jurisdiction with the consent of the debtor corporation. Re Metropolitan Railway Company, 208 U. S. 90. He then said:

"But if it appears that the assets of every kind are not enough to pay all creditors, if left to a general welter of attachments, executions, and separate creditors' bills, a different situation is presented. The corporation may well be solvent if its assets be nursed along, and insolvent if they be thrown to the creditors for piecemeal sale. Recognizing in such event that creditors' bills will in the end be necessary, though unsuccessful, equity will anticipate them by presently stepping in, in the interest of securing the greatest possible payment ratably for all creditors, since the protection of creditors is an interest of equity as well as law."

We find that on the bill, and on the evidence to which we cannot close our eyes, the court had jurisdiction.

The remaining question is whether the holders of old debentures, 96 per cent assenting, should be required to take new securities under the plan. The answer to this question depends on whether the proposed distribution of the new securities, as to character and quantity, is fair?

On the first question the appellants insist that holders of debentures, being "creditors, must be paid in full before any interest in the new company can be given to the stockholders of the old corporation", citing Northern Pacific Railway vs. Boyd, 228 U. S. 482, or, failing payment, there should be imposed against the property of the corporation liens for the full amount of their claims. As the appellants have no greater right to liens than to payment, we shall limit our discussion to their claim for payment. If by the expression "paid in full" they mean that the debenture holders must be paid in cash, the Boyd case is not authority for that position. If they mean that, as non-assenting security holders, they cannot be required to take securities in the new corporation which fairly represent in value and preference securities they hold in the old corporation, Phipps vs. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 284 Fed. 945, 949 and the Boyd case itself (508) are authorities against them. St. Louis & San Francisco Ry. Co. vs. McElvain, 253 Fed. 123; P. R. Walsh Tie & Lumber Co. vs. Missouri Pacific Ry. Co., 280 Fed. 38, 44; Temmer vs. Denver Tramway Co., 18 Fed. (2d) 226.

[fol. 809] In the case of Northern Pacific vs. Boyd, where common stock in an old corporation was exchanged for common stock in a new one to the exclusion of creditors, the court held that a transaction in which stockholders are preferred to creditors is invalid. In the instant case holders of common stock in the old corporation will, under the plan, be given nothing in the new corporation. They will, however, be accorded the right to buy, for $1.00, a stock warrant for each three shares of old common stock they may own. One stock warrant gives them the right to buy, before July 1, 1941, one share of new common stock at $20. The stock warrant, when bought and issued, is not a security of the corporation; it is rather a chip giving a right to gamble. Thus holders of old common stock, who, seemingly, are not complaining, stand aside, leaving the holders of old debentures and old preferred stock as the only ones to be considered in determining whether the proposed distribution is fair.

The proposed plan of distribution was evidently made on the theory that the assets of the corporation, represented by new securities, belong to creditors rather than to the corporation, Coriell vs. Morris White, Inc., 54 Fed. (2d) 255, and belong particularly to senior creditors. It is manifest that the new corporation, as in the case of the old one, could not continue business in these times and survive periodical fixed interest charges. Earnings necessary to that end were not and, for a time, may not be forthcoming, hence the provision in the plan for new debentures with interest payable at 5 per cent when earned. New debentures—really income bonds without lien yet protected against mortgages by a provision for equality—will be given only to holders of old debentures—$500 new for each $1,000 old. Stockholders, either preferred or common, will get none of them. So far, the substituted debenture is of the same grade as the old one, differing in interest rate and in time of interest payments.

In addition the holder of $1,000 old debentures will receive 5 shares (no par value) of 7 per cent new preferred stock. The interest rate of the new preferred stock is [fol. 810] higher than the interest rate of the old debenture but is payable only when earned, cumulative after an early date. As the new preferred stock is at present to be distributed only to holders of old debentures, there is little difference between them as to grade and preference. Then, finally, the holder of $1,000 old debentures will receive 20 shares of new common stock for what they may be worth.

Old preferred stock will be exchanged for new common stock, share for share. Holders of these securities apparently are not complaining. Certainly the holders of debentures cannot complain of a stock distribution that does not affect them.

And, finally, the new corporation will assume and pay the liabilities of the old corporation for taxes, wages, services and merchandise amounting to about $42,000.

We can understand why 96 per cent of the securityholders regard this distribution as fair, particularly as none of the appellants or anyone else has suggested any plan that is better or different. It is in our judgment fair and equitable.

The appellants, however, while declaring the plan of distribution unfair, are opposed to any plan because they say neither this one nor any other can hold out a promise of success. Therefore they insist upon immediate and complete liquidation of the corporation's assets. Notwithstanding the lack of purchasers and the probability of receiving nothing, they take the stand that they prefer, and in law have a right, to know and accept their fate now.

We are constrained to hold, however, that as against the rights of all other creditors they cannot in equity prevail.

In reaching this judgment we have brought into force no new principles of equity. We have simply applied to new facts old principles found in the zone in which the Boyd, Phipps, Luhrig Collieries, Pusey & Jones and Shapiro cases are landmarks.

There remains a matter raised on appeal by the International Heater Company, one of the intervening defendants, which is not free from difficulties. It appears that [fol. 811] two of the companies entering into the merger held two-thirds of the capital stock of Lincoln Radiator Company, the other one-third being held by the International Heater Company, which stayed out of the merger. This one-third interest was acquired by the respondent corporation from the International for $100,000, of which $60,000 remains unpaid, evidenced by an equal face amount of promissory notes due serially at the rate of $20,000 per annum. These promissory notes and the corporation's outstanding unsecured debentures constitute its entire funded debt. The plan of reorganization covers an offer to the International of securities of the same character and number that are offered to holders of the old debentures. The International says, however, that it never held the corporation's debentures or other formal securities; that, as a creditor under the corporation's notes of hand, it is entitled to payment in cash and therefore has attacked what was done by the court below.

Our trouble has been in classifying the International Heater Company as a creditor, feeling that if properly classified its rights would be those of the class of which it is a member. Manifestly, it is not a secured or a preferred creditor. It is not a merchandise creditor or a creditor in respect to debts currently incurred in the usual course of the corporation's business. It neither sold the corporation merchandise nor rendered it service. It simply sold it shares of stock in another corporation. The notes which were received therefor are indicative that the payee, the International, is a general creditor, nothing more, nothing less. Being so, it stands on the same plane with holders of the debentures who, likewise, are general creditors. Therefore we can see no difference between the two in law and none in the consequences of the receivership. Yet, just here, the International takes the position that there is a difference between itself and holders of debentures, as general creditors, in that it did not buy debenture securities of the corporation with their attendant hazards but accepted its notes promising payment for property sold and assigned, and that not having bought into the corporation's diffi- [fol. 812] culties it stands outside of matters involving their solution and should be discharged with full payment of its claim in money. This distinction does not appeal to us as controlling, for the International voluntarily became a general creditor of the corporation, is, as such, involved in its difficulties and can get out only by the means which the court has afforded general creditors who, without regard to the origin of their claims, have that status at the time the securities representing the corporation's assets are to be distributed.

All orders and decrees of the District Court here on appeal are affirmed.

PETITION FOR STAY OF PROCEEDINGS IN THE DISTRICT COURT FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

To the Honorable the Judges of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit:

The petition of First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, by Ehrich, Royall, Wheeler & Walter of New York City and Baker & Watts of Pittsburgh, Pa., its counsel, and International Heater Company of Utica, New York, by Miller & Hubbell of Utica, New York and Alter, Wright & Barron, of Pittsburgh, Pa., its counsel, intervening defendants in the above entitled equity proceedings in the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania, respectfully represents:

First. Said equity proceedings were initiated October 5, 1931 by the filing of a bill of complaint, which was answered by the defendant, National Radiator Corporation under date of October 9, 1931. On the latter date a decree was entered appointing Robert S. Waters and William G. Heiner Receivers.

Second. By order entered March 3, 1932 petitioner, First National Bank of Cincinnati, was allowed to intervene as a party defendant, and by a similar order, entered March 31, 1932, petitioner, International Heater Company was also allowed to intervene as a party defendant.

Third. By an order entered January 9, 1932 Bankers Trust Company, trustees, was permitted to intervene as a party plaintiff, and on the same date said intervener filed its intervening petition joining in the prayer of the original bill of complaint.

Fourth. After a hearing held by his Honor Judge Gibson on March 3, 1932, a so-called final decree of sale of the assets and properties of the National Radiator Corporation was filed and entered May 31, 1932.

Fifth. By said decree of sale the place for holding the same was fixed at New Castle, Pennsylvania, and the time as August 8, 1932; the complainants in the equity suit were authorized to become bidders at said sale and to use deposited debentures in payment of their bid, and an upset price was fixed in said order of sale at $2,500,000.00.

Sixth. By an order entered in said District Court under date of July 23, 1932 an appeal was allowed these petitioners from said order of sale, and appellants were directed to enter a bond in the sum of $1,000.00, conditioned for the payment of costs on appeal. Simultaneously a citation was issued returnable August 24, 1932. Accompanying the petition for appeal were assignments of error. On August 2, 1932 petitioners' bond on appeal was approved by the Court and ordered filed. Said appeal has been docketed by the Clerk of this Court as appeal No. 4959 and is on the printed argument list of this Court for the October Term.

Seventh. Notwithstanding the taking of said appeal, the Receivers held their sale at New Castle, Pennsylvania on August 8, 1932 and sold the property of the National Radiator Corporation, including cash, securities and receivables, to representatives of the complainants for the sum of $2,550,000.00. Said Receivers filed their return of sale. Prior thereto, to wit, on July 29, 1932, complainants filed their petition for approval of Plan and Agreement, dated February 11, 1931, for the reorganization of National Radiator Corporation. To said return of sale these petitioners filed objections in writing and to said Petition for Approval and Answer. A hearing on said matters was held by his Honor Judge Gibson on August 18, 1932, at which testimony was taken.

Eighth. At the time of the entry of the decree of sale, as aforesaid, to wit, on May 31, 1932, his Honor Judge Gibson filed an opinion, copy of which is hereto attached, made part hereof and marked Exhibit "A". After the hearing on August 18, 1932 his Honor Judge Gibson entered a decree confirming sale and approving deed. Said decree was entered September 8, 1932, and accompanying it was filed a Memorandum, copy of which is hereto attached, made part hereof and marked Exhibit "B".

Ninth. Both the said decree of sale of May 31, 1932 and the decree confirming sale of September 8, 1932 are bulky printed documents of about one hundred pages each, and petitioners pray to be permitted to file copies thereof concurrently with the presentation of this petition.

Tenth. Petitioner First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio is the owner of 68 of the $1,000 6½% debentures issued by National Radiator Corporation under date of August 1, 1927, of a total issue of $12,000,000 authorized. The banker's circular describing this issue of debentures had attached thereto a balance sheet of said corporation showing total assets and liabilities in the amount of $26,192,261.72. The tentative balance sheet of the corporation as of December 31, 1930, as set forth in the Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, which was attached to complainants' Bill of Complaint, show total assets and liabilities of $19,434,548.08.

Eleventh. According to the said Plan and Agreement dated February 11, 1931, the new corporation, now identified as National Radiator Corporation, a Maryland corporation, is to issue securities as follows:

(1) $5,500,000 of 15-yr. 5% debentures, interest payable semi-annually, but payable only out of the new company's net earnings.

(2) 55,000 shares of $7 preferred stock, without par value, preferred both as to assets and dividends, entitling the holders thereof to receive on voluntary liquidation $115.00 per share, and on involuntary liquidation $100.00 per share, plus in each case accumulated and unpaid dividends.

(3) 400,000 shares of common stock, without par value.

Twelfth. It is further provided in said Plan and Agreement that present holders of debentures are to receive for each $1,000 principal amount of deposited debentures,

$500 principal amount of New Debentures, and 5 shares of New Preferred Stock, and 20 shares of New Common Stock.

It is also provided that present holders of preferred stock will receive for each share of deposited Preferred Stock, one share of New Common Stock. Holders of common stock are given the right to receive a stock warrant to purchase one share of New Common Stock for each three shares of deposited common stock, but requiring payment to the depositary of $1.00 in cash in respect of each share of New Common Stock covered by such stock warrant.

Thirteenth. The assets about to be acquired by the new corporation under the aforesaid decrees of the Court below include almost $2,000,000 in cash and Government securities. No appraisement was made by the Court below of the physical properties included in the sale. Receivers' accounts receivable amounted to $854,000 after substantial reserves. Inventory (chiefly created by the receivers) amounted to $1,654,000 at cost; real estate consisting of numerous plants, warehouses, dwellings, etc., situated in five or six different states appears upon the receivers' inventory at $6,635,000. For these assets the Court fixed an upset price of $2,500,000, for the purpose of effectuating the plan of reorganization.

Fourteenth. Petitioner, International Heater Company of Utica, New York is a creditor of said National Radiator Corporation, holding its three promissory notes, dated December 31, 1928, payable respectively three, four and five years after date.

Fifteenth. Petitioners expect to be able to show to this Court in the presentation of their pending appeal and in such other appeal from the said "Decree confirming sale and approving deed" as may become necessary, both that the said Plan of Reorganization is unfair and inequitable to petitioners and that the carrying out thereof in the manner accomplished by the decrees of the Court below deprives petitioners of their ratable proportion or share of the fair realizable value of the asssets of their debtor corporation. Petitioners are further advised and believe that their rights can be saved only by normal liquidation in equity, or by retention of the assets in the hands of the Court below until the rights of appellants therein are finally determined by this Court.

Sixteenth. Prior to the entry by the Court below of the decree of September 8, 1932 petitioners requested said Court to direct its Receivers to withhold delivery of the title deeds until after petitioners' appeal had been disposed of by this Court. This request was made in open court at the hearing held on August 18, 1932. The request was ignored. Petitioners subsequently on September 13, 1932 presented to said Court a Motion requesting a stay of proceedings, which said Motion was refused by his Honor Judge Gibson. Copy of said Motion and the order thereon are hereto attached, made part hereof and marked "Exhibit C".

Seventeenth. Petitioners are advised and believe and therefore aver that the provisions of the Supersedeas Act of February 18, 1875 (28 U. S. C. A., Sec. 874) and the first paragraph of Rule 13 of this Court do not require the filing by petitioners of a bond, the penalty of which is fixed by the contemplated loss which further continuation of this receivership, pending disposition of this appeal, may involve or occasion. These petitioners are not defendants in any judgment of the Court below and are creditors of equal rank with the complainants in the case. They are further advised that the lodging of their appeal was effective to deprive the Court below of jurisdiction to make any orders other than to safeguard and protect the property and assets under the control of said Court.

Eighteenth. In view of the expressed declaration of counsel for the Receivers and counsel for the Reorganization Committee that it is proposed to carry out the sale as soon as it can conveniently be done, petitioners are making this application at the earliest possible date, in order that the title to the assets of the National Radiator Corporation, defendant, may not be improvidently transferred or disposed of to the prejudice of the rights of your petitioners. Notice of this application has been given counsel for the Receivers and to counsel for the Reorganization Committee. Petitioners expect to have ready for the Court a memorandum of authorities.

Wherefore petitioners prav that your Honorable Court issue such appropriate writ of prohibition or of mandamus, directed to the Honorable Robert M. Gibson, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Pennsylvania, in order that thereby the assets of this receivership be held intact until the determination by this Court of the pending, and possibly an additional, appeal by these petitioners from the aforesaid decrees of the Court below. And petitioners further pray that this Court grant them such other relief as may be suitable and necessary in the premises and as may be warranted by the power and jurisdiction residing in this Court pursuant to the Act of Congress of March 3, 1911, being Judicial Code Sec. 262 (28 U. S. C. A., Sec. 377), or any other Act confering jurisdiction upon this Court to act herein as prayed for.

First National Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio, by Ehrich, Royal, Wheeler & Walter, Baker & Watts, Its Counsel. Sidney J. Watts, of Counsel. International Heater Company, by Miller & Hubbell, Alter, Wright & Barron, Its Counsel. Gifford K. Wright, of Counsel.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

In Equity. No. 2558

RUDOLPH B. FLERSHEM, CHARLES O. CORNELL, JOHN H. WATERS, and Frank B. Cahn, as the Reorganization Committee Constituted under the Plan and Agreement Dated February 11, 1931, for the Reorganization of National Radiator Corporation, Complainants, vs.

NATIONAL RADIATOR CORPORATION, Defendant

OPINION—Filed May 31, 1932

GIBSON, District Judge:

The plaintiffs compose a committee for the reorganization of the defendant company. The defendant company admitted the allegations of plaintiffs' bill of complaint and consented to the relief sought therein. The Bankers Trust Company, a corporation of the State of New York, Trustee under an issue of debentures by the defendant, has intervened as a party plaintiff, and the First National Bank of Cincinnati, a holder of debentures to the amount of $68,000, and the International Heater Company, a general creditor, have intervened as party defendants. The plaintiffs represent holders of more than 95% of the debentures issued by the defendant company. The total of these debentures outstanding when the bill of complaint was filed, interest uncounted, is $10,705,000. The general indebtedness of the defendant is comparatively very small.

The bill of complaint prays, inter alia, the sale of the defendant's properties situated in ten Districts. The only intervening defendant appearing at the trial in opposition to the prayers of the bill was the First National Bank of Cincinnati. Its opposition was forcibly presented, but analysis does not show its contentions to be forceful. By implication rather than specific charge, it alleged improper collusion between the original plaintiffs, the intervening plaintiff and the Radiator Corporation, defendant. In so doing it based its contention largely upon the fact that the defendant had more than sufficient funds on hand to pay the interest upon the debentures at the time it defaulted in the payment of it. It did not undertake to deny that the defendant company had lost in operation about $1,500,000 for each of the last three years preceding the filing of the bill of complaint, or that it was moving toward inevitable bankruptcy when the instant suit was instituted. The most tangible effort of the intervening defendant was put forth in an effort to have a large "upset" price fixed by the Court in ordering a sale of the defendant company's properties. It also urged that a sale should not be ordered until the depression period had passed. As to the contention last mentioned, it is possible, and we hope, that conditions will improve in the near future, but in view of the fact that the expenses of the receivership are very heavy, and the operation of the defendant company is at a considerable loss, we feel it would be improper to undertake to exercise a gift of prophecy which has not actually been conferred upon us. Such attempt might well result in greater loss.

In our opinion, the evidence has disclosed no fraudulent collusion between the plaintiffs and defendants. It does show, we think, a very present need for reorganization of the Radiator Corporation, and the means suggested in the bill seem to us to furnish a reasonable chance to avoid further loss by creditors. The holders of a small proportion of the company's indebtedness do not agree with this opinion, and such creditors are entitled to consideration by the Court. This does not mean that we should overturn the plans of the great majority of the creditors to save some part of their claims unless those plans unfairly encroach upon the rights of the minority claimants. In the instant case we discern no such encroachment. All the creditors were given the opportunity to participate in the plan of the majority. The small minority did not want to participate in the reorganization plan of the majority. Under such circumstances the rights of the minority creditors seem plain. They are entitled to recover the amount of the indebtedness to them by judicial sale of the properties of the defendant, or, in event those properties are fairly sold for less than the total indebtedness of defendant, for that proportion of the net proceeds of the sale which their claims bear to the total indebtedness.

The defendant has defaulted in the payment of interest upon its bonds, and the sale of its properties is inevitable. All who appeared at the hearing agreed upon this proposition, although differing as to the proper time for the sale and the minimum price, or prices, of the properties at which the Court would confirm the sale. The difference at the hearing between the creditors desiring reorganization and the single creditor urging complete liquidation was wide. The latter pointed to the appraisement of the various component properties at the time the combination of plants was formed in 1926, and demands that an "upset" price of over $10,000,000 be fixed as the minimum confirmation price. The appraisement was upon operating plants and based upon replacement costs as of December 31, 1926. This appraisal is of little value in the determination of liquidation value at present, when only two of the eight plants in the combination are operating, and those two not fully. The intervening defendant has introduced no witness to contradict the witnesses of the plaintiffs who have testified as to present liquidating values. Its claim is so plainly extravagant as to make it worthy of little consideration. The witnesses of the plaintiffs have fixed the liquidating value of the assets of the defendant company at a little less than $2,500,000, and we think this amount reasonably represents a minimum price for the properties of defendant at which a sale of them might be confirmed by the Court. The allocation of this amount among the various properties is set forth in the decree.

The intervening defendant's counsel have cited Northern Pacific Railway Company v. Boyd, 228 U. S. 482, in an attack upon the reorganization plan set forth in the bill. That case holds that no reorganization plan may allow stockholders to exchange their shares in the old company for shares in the new, unless the rights of general creditors have been protected. The instant case is not one wherein the stockholder has been benefited at the expense of general creditors. In the proposed reorganization of the present case the creditors are given the senior securities of the new company. Common stockholders of the old company may obtain stock in the new, but only upon condition of payment of a cash assessment. In view of the fact that the properties are by the decree ordered to be sold, this contention is somewhat immaterial. The creditors who have adopted the reorganization plan are satisfied with the provisions, and those who have not accepted it will have their rights protected by the sale.

Findings of Fact

The findings of fact are as set forth in paragraphs 1 to 28, inclusive, of the decree hereinafter set forth, now referred to and made part hereof.

Conclusions of Law.

The plaintiffs are entitled to a decree ordering the sale of the assets and properties of the defendant company.

MEMORANDUM—Filed 9/8/32

GIBSON, District Judge:

Prior to the order for sale in this matter, this Court heard creditors of the defendant corporation, who objected to the organization scheme proposed by the plaintiffs. Upon consideration of the reorganization proposed, subsequent to that hearing, we felt that the obligations of the corporation were considerably greater than its tangible assets and that the reorganization proposed was proper and worthy of the approval of the Court. After the sale of defendant's properties was made and exceptions filed to the Receivers' return, we again heard creditors objecting to the reorganization and exceptions to the confirmation of the sale. Upon consideration of the testimony offered at such hearing, we have not been led to a change of opinion in respect to the good faith of the reorganization scheme, and the power and duty of the Court to approve it, as expressed in a prior opinion under this number, and also in opinion in the case of Lily Clapier v. Rudolph B. Flershem, et al., and National Radiator Corporation, at No. 2597 In Equity.

The exceptions relating to the conduct of the sale are of no weight and must be dismissed.
